PREFACE TO VOLUME II.

THIS revision of a work, published thirty-four years ago, furnishes a striking illustration of the greatly increased interest felt by the American public in matters pertaining to family history. The original volume, a novice's work, was then (1859), with the exception, perhaps, of Bond's Watertown (Mass.) Genealogies, and Cothren's History of Ancient Woodbury, Conn., the most considerable work of the kind, as to scope and size, which had then appeared. At that time, I found but few who sufficiently appreciated the nature and value of my labors to assist in perfecting them. In the preparation of the present edition, I have almost suffered from a plethora of material; and, I think, my printers have had serious apprehensions lest I should expand my work to a third volume! It is, also, a significant fact, that, since the issue of the original History, more than thirty genealogies of original Windsor families (some being works of great extent and value), viz., Allen, Alford, Barber, Bartlett, Bidwell, Burnham, Chapin, Clapp, Gaylord, Geer, Hall, Hayes, Haylen, Humphrey, Hyde, Loomis, McLean, McKinstry, Mather, Munsell, Nash, Olcott, Porter, Reed, Roberts, Rockwell, Sill, Stiles, Strong, Thrall, Winchell, Wolcott, have been issued; and that fully as large a number are now in active preparation; and from these, both in print and manuscript, this Revision has received much incidental help. Many of these genealogies, as I have occasion to know, owe their inspiration and acknowledge their indebtedness to the old Windsor History of 1859. So, I am well assured that, if a book ever had "a call" to be re-issued, it has been this one—the result of a positive, direct pressure brought to bear upon me during the past twelve or fifteen years,—in fact, since the old edition began to be scarce.

With the added facilities referred to, and the larger experience acquired by half a lifetime of more or less continuous work in this line of research, I have striven to bring this Revision somewhat nearer to my ideal of what a book of Local History and Family Genealogies should be. It is seldom permitted to a man, in his later years, to review and re-build the work of his earlier days; and this thought has added to my labors on these pages an element of profound gratitude to God, and a deeper sense of responsibility in the work itself.

My sense of obligation to those who have kindly aided me I have thought would be best expressed by giving them credit on the printed page which bears the impress of their help; and by allowing them thus to share with me the responsibility for the statements made. I have, also, been at particular pains to "clinch every nail, as soon as driven," by giving, as far as possible, the source of record of each statement made, and this with a minuteness which, though to some it may appear unnecessary, will, I am sure, be appreciated by the working genealogist. Knowing that, in the ordinary course of nature, I will soon be beyond the possibility of question and answer as to all these matters whereof I now speak, I desire so to establish the metes and bounds and milestones of my long-traveled path, that they may be easily found by those who may have cause to follow the same trail.

For greater readiness and ease of reference, I have used, in these genealogies, two kinds of type (the italic and the black-faced) in designating family names: which, I believe, will be a feature duly appreciated by those (especially of weak, or elderly eyes) who consult these pages.

Baptismal records, generally only used by genealogists to approximate birth-records where the latter are wanting, seem to me to have a deeper significance than is usually accorded to them. To the Christian they signify the date of the individual's birth into the Family of God. Thus, their sacramental import gives them a value co-ordinate with that of the record of the natural birth. I have, therefore, in this Revision, carefully preserved and recorded all baptismal data which I could find—knowing that, to some, it would be a matter of sincere interest to know that they, and their ancestry, were and are of “the baptized children of God”—and such knowledge, in these days, is not always obtainable.

While I have given full acknowledgment, throughout these pages, to those who have so kindly assisted me, I cannot forget that there were some—“comrades in arms,” I may call them—who have fallen by the way, as we journeyed together, since the printing of this work began. They were ardently interested in the Windsor Revision: the impress of their hands is upon its pages: their words of cheer and advice still ring in my ears: its success was very dear to their hearts. Let us, then, remember them—as we pass to the fruition of our labors—as they who happily have “entered into their rest,” and inscribe to them an

What I have said, in the Preface to the first Volume, concerning my Associate-Editor, Miss RUTH T. SPERRY, applies with even stronger emphasis to this volume of Genealogies. No author could have a more loyal or indefatigable co-laborer than she has been to me, from title-page to colophon, of this work. The Genealogies of the families "East of the Great River" would never have assumed the importance which they have in this volume, except for her intimate local acquaintance with them.

And now, with a few more strokes of the pen, I am to resign the charge which has been laid upon me for five-and-thirty years of this my mortal pilgrimage — of the Parish of Old Windsor. True, I have twice before essayed to do this, and have found myself "called back," but it can scarcely be again. And, had I been "to holy orders called," and this my parish, in reality a "care of souls," I could hardly have felt a deeper interest in its welfare, a stronger sense of responsibility for its character and position before the world, a more abiding love for all its children, than I do as its historian. To me, its Past is inextricably and strangely merged into its Present: it seems as if I were co-eval with Old Matthew Grant and its other first settlers; and that I had known every man, woman, and child who ever dwelt within its bounds; and as, occasionally, I tread the highways and byways of the towns which once composed Ancient Windsor, they are peopled for me with the shadowy — almost tangible — forms of those who have trodden them in the days of old. Conversant with their histories, familiar with the scenes familiar to them, linked to them by a strangely-threaded chain of heredity — what wonder is it, that the compilation of this History and these Genealogies has been to me "a labor of love" (tho' "with what toil" you shall see in the motto on title of this volume), and, in itself, a Life apart from that of every-day necessity and labor?

And so, good readers, all — who, seeking these pages for recreation, or, in quest of some ancestral clue, shall happen on these parting words of mine — let me say, in the quaint language of the Oriental blessing which looks down upon me from my library wall.

"May He who is Lord of the East and of the West, from whose Throne hang millions of stars in chains of gold, Watch over thee, Preserve thee from the Evil Eye, and from the poison of malicious tongues, and cause His Face to shine upon thee, FOR EVERMORE!"

"And my God put into mine heart to gather together the nobles, and the rulers, and the people, that they might be reckoned by genealogy. And I found a register of those which came up first."—Neh. vii, 5.

There are two questions continually put to me, and though often they are carelessly asked, and with little regard as to what the response may be, nevertheless I now and here attempt to answer them.

I. How can you be so interested in genealogy?

So far as genealogy is a record of mere names and dates, I am not especially interested in it, except as we all retain a childish pleasure for, and never wholly eliminate from our daily lives, the varied game of hide and seek.

But this study is far more than one of names and dates. No man can be identified until he is properly placed in his local habitation, and has received a parentage that no genealogist can take from him: we must learn what part he played in his day and generation, and what relation he bore to those around him. To do this requires a thorough and minute acquaintance with the history of church and town, with the topography of parish and farm: and adding town to town we have the history of the State, as it could not be gained in any other way. Such study is often wearisome to mind and body: but, mingled with the irksome labor are long drives through green fields and past quiet homes, and pleasant memories of those whom we meet as strangers and leave as friends.

II. Of what use is it?

Briefly stated, genealogy is identification, and every man must be identified ere even his government can require of him taxes, military duty, or a day of service on the jury. Before he, in turn, can vote, he must declare his age, and to learn when a man was born is the main puzzle a genealogist has to solve.

Insurance companies, the pension bureau, and the census follow on in the same line, and added to these are the memorial catalogues of schools, colleges, and all the various professions, occupations, and pursuits.

By genealogy family feeling is increased in warmth and extent, and when our hearts are well stored with kinship lore we find that they must welcome — with varied emotions, it is true — a wide circle of cousins, and cousins, and half-cousins. Interest in the history of church and state grows when we know what positions our forefathers held there and what works they wrought there. And historical facts will not escape us if they can be forced to minister to family pride.

Nor is this minute knowledge of family and town affairs insignificant if we accept these words from Dr. Bancroft: "He that will understand the political character of New England must study the political character of its towns, its schools, and its militia." And another adds,

"No satisfactory constitutional or political history of the United States can appear until the constitutional and political development of the various national subdivisions has been exhaustively studied. . . . Thus the fundamental character of the local historian's labor becomes apparent, for the evolution of our States is the story of the assimilation of localities." *

Genealogy fosters the love of Americans for America, and strengthens the bond of brotherhood between those whose common heritage is our lands and our laws. How great the need already is that some stand be made against the greed and the vice that Europe casts out upon us, the statesman, the statistician, and the police-court judge can tell.

That history repeats itself is an axiom, and that to know the past is to acquire power to control the present and to guide the future, a self-evident truth. To these let us add a deeper trust in each other, as from the pages of Genealogy we are now able to "call to remembrance the unfeigned faith . . . which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice, and I am persuaded that in thee, also." †

We regret that some will seek their register among those that were reckoned by the following genealogies, but they will not be found.‡ To many of these we appealed in vain for their family data, and to some we must say that their kind advice, "Search the public records and you can learn it all," was good, but could not be followed; time had its limits, even to a genealogist, and the blessings a man would not seek for himself we would not thrust upon him.

The work now before you is imperfectly done, but be assured in it the editors will find more mistakes than its most vigilant student can detect. To discover a mistake is good, to correct it better still, and to this pursuit we commend our readers and place a wide field before them.

Sincerely
Ruth T. Sperry.

ADAMS, of Warehouse Point, Conn. This family may, with confidence, be traced to Thomas of Colchester, Conn., who was undoubtedly descended from Henry, who came from Essex County, Eng., in 1632, to Braintree, Mass., and was the ancestor of the patriots Samuel and John Adams, the latter the second President of the United States.

Thomas, of Colchester, Conn., m. Sarah Collins, of Lynn, Mass., and had ten children, b. 1717-1732, his eldest son Thomas, b. 30 Aug., 1749, m. Mrs. Mary (Hammond) Vallett, of Montville, Conn., in 1744, under peculiarly romantic circumstances. She had m. in 1736 Jeremiah Vallett, a worthy sea captain, to whom she bore a son, but about three years after their marriage he left her for a short cruise. But months elapsing without his return or any news of him, he was given up as lost, his estate administered upon, and at the expiration of the time of mourning, "but with no unseemly haste," she married Thomas Adams, then a young and active ship-carpenter, and settled down to domestic happiness in the "late" Captain V.'s house. But in due course of time Capt. Vallett, sound and well, presented himself at their door. "Under the laws of the colony no wrong had been done or intended, and a consultation was held without delay with the good minister of the place who had tied the second knot, and a magistrate of the law as the legal counsellor, to effect an amicable arrangement between the parties. It was agreed that the wife should herself say which husband she preferred, and she unhesitatingly chose the second one, undoubtedly, from her past experience, being more in favor of a land lubber on shore than the best sailor-man in the world afloat. So the Captain graciously accepted the situation, with the stipulation, however, that young Adams and wife should depart from that neighborhood a considerable distance," the Vallett child remaining of course with his father.

Thomas Adams thereupon removed to E. W. and settled on the Connecticut River at Warehouse Point, at his old trade of ship-carpenter, and afterwards kept public-house there and died Nov., 1767, in his 40th year. Mrs. Mary Hammond (Vallett) Adams (without doubt a descendant of Thomas Hammond of Hingham, Mass., who came from Lavenham, Suffolk Co., Eng.—Savage) m. (3) Gen. ——— Wolcott, and rem. to Springfield, but separated from him by mutual consent and spent the rest of her years with one of her daughters — Ch. b. E. W.

ALLEN and ALLYN. Ancient Windsor held thrs. distinct families of this name, one of Allen from Entfield, and mostly confined to East Windsor, and two of Allyn, one of Scotch and one of English origin. Much difficulty has been experienced in the disentangling and arrangement of these Allen families, owing to the frequent disregard of orthographical correctness displayed by town clerks, grave-stone cutters, and not infrequently by the individuals themselves, as to the spelling of the name.

FAM. 37. Jabez <sup>1</sup> Samuel, <sup>2</sup> Jesse, <sup>3</sup> John, <sup>4</sup> Samuel, m. 16 July, 1817. Lucy (dau. David and Lucy W.) Markham of Longmeadow, Mass., b. Ent. 2 July, 1777; d. E. W. 21 Feb., 1842; he d. E. W. 11 June, 1870. To his eager and intelligent interest the compiler of the Allen Genealogy was greatly indebted for facts and assistance. He lived in the house now occupied by his son Jabez S., and which was built about 1760, and is still in good preservation. Jabez was of medium height, well compacted and proportioned, and robust, with a countenance expressive of a well balanced mind, and a manner natural, simple, and courteous. In his own intimate circle he was eminently social, outside of it he manifested a certain reserve, proceeding not so much from timidity as from a natural sense of caution and of not knowing how and when to speak. An inborn kindness of heart produced in him the best form of politeness, which entered into the smallest details of life. And this kindness was extended to all dumb animals, and made him a peacemaker among his neighbors and universally respected by all who knew him, and his friendly character it was bestowed, was pure, sincere, and intelligent. Cheerfulness, a peculiar vein of humor, lent a beautiful sunshine to his life.

As a farmer he was observant, thorough, and practical, employing the best methods with the best results, and his mechanical genius led him to avail himself practically of any improvements for labor in husbandry, or comfort in the family. He was the first to put a stove into the town, and his tinder box attracted much attention as a great improvement in its day upon the old way of getting fire from flint and steel. He was especially fond of horticulture, and kept well abreast of all the world's progress in science, politics, and religious and moral enterprises, etc. He was a man of great straightforwardness and a sincere Christian. His wife was a worthy companion of such a man, and his domestic life was most happy. Ch. (b. E. W.):

Thomas Allyn (Dea.),<sup>8</sup> brother of SAMUEL ALLEN and Col. MATTHEW ALLYN came first to Cambridge, Mass., from England, in 1632; was freeman in 1635. He removed to Hartford with his brother Matthew in 1635, in 1650 had much difficulty with his brother Matthew about some contracts and bonds, when several lawsuits ensued, and the court ordered Matthew to pay over to Thomas his dues and release his "special ties."—Conn. Col. Rec., i, 211.

Thomas Allyn was twice married; his first wife was Isabella ———, who died about 1678; Mr. Allyn married, second, Martha Gipson (or Gibson), widow of Roger Gipson of Saybrook, Conn., about 1680-1. Thomas Allyn removed from Hartford, Conn., in 1650, with the first planters of Mattabesek [Middletown], where he became a prominent man of the town, was chosen deacon of the First church, March 16, 1670, was a representative to the General Court, selectman, etc. Having no children, he adopted his nephew, OBEDEAH ALLEN, fourth son of his then deceased brother, Samuel Allen of Windsor, Conn., who lived with him during his minority and received a large share of his estate. Deacon Thomas Allyn died at Middletown, Conn., 16 Oct., 1688; his will was dated Oct. 15, 1688, and proved Feb. 5, 1689. His widow, Martha (Gipson) Allyn, died at Middletown, Conn., Nov., 1702, her will was dated April 30, 1690.

Allyn (sometimes Allyne) MATTHEW, (Hon.) from Braampton, Co. Devon, Eng., supposed to have been son of Samuel of Chelmsford, Co. Essex, Eng. and, if so, bap. Ap'l, 1604, emigrated with the orig. Braintree Company, 1632, to Charlestown, Mass., where 1633, he had 45 acres div. to him, at "the Common Pales" — much the largest share of any settler — had an acre for cow and three for planting ground "on the Neck", 1635, had by grant, or purchase, 5 acres at Wigwam Neck, six acres meadow near Watertown, 5 acres at Charlestown Lane, owned 5 houses on Town Plot, of Cambridge, 1635, res. near the meeting-house and was the largest landholder in Cambridge (Camb. Rec., fol. 1, 21); was made freeman of Mass., 4 Feb., 1635, was a rep. at Mass. Gen. Court, March session, 1636, prob. rem. next year to Hartford, where he was an orig. prop'r, his house-lot was on the road to the Neck (now Windsor St.), and he owned 110 acres in that and other lots, and the first mill at H., at foot of present W. Pearl St. In May, 1638, he was lodging with Roger Williams; was a proprietor at Windsor in 1640, as also a large owner at Killingworth and at Simsbury. He was a member of Rev. Mr. Hooker's church at H., but for some difference therewith, prob. of a doctrinal nature, was excommunicated, and 3 June, 1644, appealed to Gen. Ct. for redress; the records show not fully how the matter was settled, but it may have been one cause of his rem. to Windsor, in which plantation he had previously been interested, having purchased, in 1638, all the lands, "houses, servants, goods, and chattels" of the New Plymouth Co. at W. — a purchase which "extinguished the last vestige of Plymouth right and title upon the Conn. River." His W. homestead was close by the site of the Co.'s old trading house. By virtue of this purchase, Mr. Allyn, always quick to see and claim his rights, subsequently set up the plea that, having purchased directly from Plymouth, he and his ppy. in Windsor were not amenable to Connecticut taxation. The matter being referred, by mutual consent, to Messrs. Haynes, Ludlow, Hopkins and Phelps, it was decided that he should pay Connecticut rates and no other, and that he "should have notice given him, in convenient time, of all such orders as do or may concern him, and that the orders be such as lie within his compass and power to accomplish and perform in a reasonable way." — (Conn. Col. Rec., i. 53, 54.) After this reference, Sgt. Fyler brought suit against Mr. Allyn in behalf of the town, but, Oct., 1642, was ordered to pay the costs, "having made a reference before the suit," i. e., because the reference had been duly made before his suit was entered.

Mr. Allyn was rep. to the Gen. Ct. every year (except 1653) from 1648 to 1658, inclusive; a magistrate of the Colony, 1657-1667, incl.; commissioner for the United Colonies of N. E., 1660-4, when, in 1649, the Gen. Ct. desired to initiate hostilities agt. the Indians, Mr. A. was the first named of the 3 deputies to order the raising of troops; 1657, he and Jo. Gilbert were to go to Pacontuck to announce to the Indians the decision of the commissioners; 1659, he and his son John were of the committee app. to div. Indian lands at Podunk, and, at same court, were placed on a com. with power to treat with Mr. Fenwick, in behalf of Hartford, Windsor, and Wetherfield, when, 1660, the Gov. and Dep. Gov. were chosen commiss<sup>rs</sup> for the next year, he was chosen as a reserve and also to act as moderator in their absence — and was also of the committee, with power, about 30 Mile Island. In 1661 he was moderator and of the committee to petition for the charter, in which document, granted to Conn. by Charles II., he was named as one of the grantees. He was again moderator in 1662, chairman of the committee to treat with New Haven for a union in 1662 and '63, and Oct. of last year, chairman of a com. to treat with the Dutch envoys from New Amsterdam, also, with Mr. Willis, to settle the government of the Eng. towns on the west end of Long Island — which committee was renewed, in 1664, with additional members, and with authority to establish courts there, &c. The same year he was also of the committee to settle bounds between "the Bay" and Rhode Island, and the South bounds — and, with three others, "Mr. Allyn, Senior, or Junior," was desired to accompany the Gov. to N. Y. to congratulate His Majesty's commissioners, and, if opportunity offered, to "issue the bounds between the Duke's patent & o's." In 1665, under the union of the Conn. and New Haven colonies, Mr. Allyn and his son, Lieut. John, were chosen assistants, again, in 1666 (when Matthew was moderator) and 1667. In 1666 both were of the com. empowered, in case of danger of invasion, to levy troops, commission officers, &c. He was entered on the Killingsworth land records as a large land owner and first settler, tho' it is not prob. that he ever res. there.

How Matthew Allyn, as we have thus seen, was eminently "a man of affairs," and an active, public spirited citizen. "Few men," says Hinman, "had more influence, or received more honors from the people, than Mr. Allyn." Energetic, willful, and persistent in all his projects, he was yet a just, high minded man, and one of the props of the infant colony. Though he fell under the ban of the Hartford church (prob. because he entertained sentiments on baptism, church membership, or church discipline, at variance with the majority of his brethren), there are many evidences that he was still held in high esteem at Hartford, and Mr. Hinman seems to hint that the H. church encouraged him to remove, being afraid of his "influence with the settlers." In 1658, when trouble again arose in the H. church, Mr. Allyn was chairman of the com. of the Gen. Ct. to conduct a correspondence on the subject (Conn. Col. Rec., i. 321).

Mr. Allyn died 1 Feb., 1670-1; his will dated 30 Jan., 1650-71, makes his wife, Margaret, his sole executrix; gave her the use of his estate, and desired his sons and son-in-law, Newberry, to improve it for her; to his son John he gave his Kennilworth lands, and confirmed to him those lands in Hartford which he had already given him as a marriage portion. His W. house he had previously deeded to his son Thomas, subject to life use by himself and wife; he gave him also a large estate, and provided liberally for his dau. Mary (Newberry), and grand-dau. Mary (Maudsly).—Authorities consulted, in addition to those already cited, Hinman's Puritan Letters, Seaver's Hartford in the Olden Time; Mass. Hist. Soc. Collect., vi.; Memorial Hist. Hartford Co., i. 227, 228; Canda's Geneal., 121-146.

His family record does not appear in Matt. Grant's Old Church Rec. He was, undoubtedly, a bro. of Dea. Thomas of Hartford and Middletown, and of Samuel of (East) Windsor. See p. 27.

Thomas Bancroft, poet (a native of Swarkstone, on the Trent, Derbyshire, where his parents were buried, and who pr. a vol. of epigrams and epitaphs, 1639, London, Eng.) says of his brother, John Bancroft:

"You sold your land the lighter hence to go
To foreign coasts, yet Fate would have it so
Did ne'er New England reach, but went with them
That journey toward New Jerusalem."

Tradition speaks of a sojourn on Long Island and the death there of one of the three brothers, that one then went to Mass. and one to Connecticut.

FAM. 38. Frederick Jones* (Caleb Jones, Dea. John, John, Thos, Ephraim, John, John) (M. D.), b. Enfield, Conn., 25 May, 1831, educated Westfield (Mass.) Academy and Charlotteville (N. Y.) Seminary, and securing his education by his own efforts, graduated Feb., 1861, from the Medical Department of the University of Buffalo, N. Y. In October of the same year he entered the army, and was immediately placed in charge of the "Church Hospital," Harrisburg, Pa. Early in the spring of 1862, was assigned to the 76th Penn. Vols. at Hilton Head, in May, took medical charge of the forces at Pinckney Island, Seabrook, and Elliott's Plantations, S. C., and was present at the bombardment of Ft. Pulaski and the attack on Charleston. In September, 1862, he was sent to New York in charge of a party of invalids of the 7th New Hampshire Vols., and was engaged as Examining Surgeon of recruits at Philadelphia until early spring of 1863, when he was ordered to fit up a hospital for the accommodation of Confederate prisoners at Ft. Delaware, Del., and then rejoined his regiment, the 3d Penn. Artill., May, 1863. In June he was assigned to Fortress Monroe as Post Surgeon, and remained until he left the service at the close of the war, in December, 1865. Returning to Philadelphia, he attended the lectures at the University of Pennsylvania in 1865-66, and June 1, 1866, he settled in Denver, Colorado. His practice is general, though largely surgical.

Dr. Bancroft has been associated with many enterprises and organizations. He is a member of the Denver Medical Society, and its president in 1868; of the Colorado Medical Society, and its president in 1879, of the American Public Health Association; the American Medical Association; and a vice-president of the National Association of Railway Surgeons. From 1868 to 1885 he held the office of Examining Surgeon for pensions, was city physician of Denver from 1872 to '76, and from 1876 to '79. In 1876 Governor Routt appointed him president of the new State Board of Health. He was surgeon of the Ben. Holladay stage lines running out of Denver from 1860 to '70; from 1870 to '76 he was surgeon of the Kansas Pacific, and Denver Pacific Railroads, and of the Denver & Rio Grande from its construction in 1870 till 1886. As chief surgeon of this important road, he organized a medical service which was described in the American Railway Journal of January, 1886 as "the most efficient in the United States." The plans and regulations for the hospital fund are exceedingly careful and comprehensive, protecting the fund from all outside infringements, and reserving the surplus moneys for pensioning disabled employes and the needy families of deceased contributors to the fund.

A peculiar feature of this service is the provision of a medicine chest, to be in charge of the conductor of every train, containing a full equipment of the medicines and surgical adjuncts which would be immediately needed in case of railway accidents, accompanied by printed directions, and illustrated by cuts. He now holds the Chair of Fractures and Dislocations in the medical department of the University of Denver.

From 1874 to 1876 he was president of the Denver Board of Education; for years a member of the standing committee of the Missionary Jurisdiction of Colorado, and a trustee of Wolfe Hall, of Jarvis Hall, and of St. Luke's Hospital, also president of the Agricultural Ditch Company for the first ten years after its construction, and has a large and valuable ranch under irrigation by its waters.

He is medical referee for several of the largest life insurance companies of New York and New Jersey, and president (since its organization in 1875) of the Colorado Hist. and Nat. Hist. Soc. In short, Dr. B. is a large-hearted, active, "brainty" man, a good sample of the best New England stock of ancestry, grafted upon Western civilization and experiences. He married 20 June, 1871, Mary Caroline (dau. of Geo. A.) Jarvis, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Ch. :

BARBER, Thomas, first of name in New England, came to Windsor 1635, with the Saltoustaill party under Mr. Francis Stiles; was then at 24 years. The Court at Hartford, 28 Mch., 1637, "ord. that Mr. Francis Stiles shall teach George Chapple, Thomas Cooper and Thomas Barber, his servants, in the trade of a carpenter, according to his promise, for their service of their term, behind 4 days in a week only to saw and slit their own work." He was made freeman 1645, was a soldier in the Pequot fight (see p. 69, Vol. I.), 1648, dft. in Ct.; Sgt. Barber, for his disorderly conduct striking Lieut. Cook, was adjudged to forfeit his office and pay £5. He rem. to Simsbury, where he contracted to build the first meeting-house.

BARNES, William of Warehouse Point, E. W., b. Tolland, Conn., 8 Feb., 1802; m. 26 Apl., 1827, at W. Pt., Maria (dau. of Joel and Huldah Mh'n) Holkins, b.

Enf. 28 Aug., 1804, and who d. at W. Pt. 6 June, 1851. He m. (2) on 30 Dec., 1858, Roxalimah (dau. Roswell and Sally Olmstead) Abbey of Enfield, who survived him, dying 18 Apl., 1889.

Mr. Barnes was fifth in descent from Stephen and his wife Mary, who resided in Branford, Conn., in 1702, and whose ancestors probably were among the East Hampton, L.I., families of that name; through Stephen<sup>2</sup> by wife Martha Wheadon; Jonathan<sup>3</sup> by wife Elizabeth Woodruff; and father Jonathan.

His mother's maiden name was Rachel Steele. She was sixth in descent from John Steele—one of the original proprietors of Hartford—by wife Rachel; through John<sup>2</sup> by wife Mercy Warner; Samuel<sup>3</sup> by wife Mercy Bradford, daughter of Lieut.-Gov. and granddaughter of Gov. Wm. Bradford of Plymouth; Eliphallet<sup>4</sup> by wife Catherine Marshfield; and father Josiah<sup>5</sup> by wife Elizabeth Colton, daughter of Rev. Benjamin Colton. Rachel Steele was the niece and adopted daughter of "the Rev. George Colton of Bolton."

Mr. Barnes did not have a college education, although his father and three older brothers were graduates of Yale. He attended school in Monson and Colchester, and afterwards studied law in New Haven, where he was admitted to the bar December 4, 1823, according to a quaint account-book in which the fee is noted as $4.25. He was in his father's law office in Tolland for a few months, but moved in June, 1824, to Warehouse Point, Conn., where he practiced his profession until his death, December 23, 1872. He was Judge of Probate for East Windsor from 1838 until 1870, with the exception of two breaks of a year each; was elected to the Legislature and to a number of public offices during his residence of over forty-eight years in the town. William "some," d. 23 Aug., 1751. — E. W. C. R.

* From the General and Biog. Sketches of the Bartlett Family of England and America we learn that all of the name in this country spring from Adam Barthelot, of 1660, who went from France with William the Conqueror, through his descendants John, Richard, and Thomas, who came to Newbury, Mass., in 1634. Probably Robert, the ancestor of at least one branch of the E. W. Bartletts, may have been a relative of these three.

Assistance acknowledged, in this line, from CHARLES BARTLETT of Windsorville, E. W.]

Inst. for Deaf and Dumb, and a missionary of the A. B. F. C. M. A week after their m. they sailed for China, and took the charge of a memorial school at Canton, under the auspices of the Morrison Educational Society. "The light and joy of her father's home, when the voice came to her across the waters, and the call to go to far distant China had to be considered, her answer was prompt. From this time on she was truly consecrated to the noble work; her beautiful shining life was a steady light shining in a dark place, and she became an efficient and worthy helpmeet to her husband." The pupils of the school ever held their affection, and several of them have since reached high official station in the Chinese empire. Mrs. B.'s health compelled the family's return in 1847. For 27 yrs. Mr. Brown had charge of an academy at Rome, N. Y., and in 1854 he became pastor of the Owasco Outlet Church at Auburn, N. Y., where both he and she labored affectionally until his resignation in 1859, to take charge of the First B. F. C. Church mission to newly-opened Japan, and where they labored until declining health led again to their return to America in the summer of 1859. But Dr. Brown lingered only until 19 June, 1880, when he d. at Monson, Mass. His wife d. at Glenville, O. Sept. 3, 1889. Rev. Dr. B.'s father was Timothy H. Brown, a man of fine character and love of books, and his mother was Phebe Hinsdale, dau. Geo. Hinsdale. She wrote the hymn beginning "Glorious to stand while away." The family res. to Canton, res. for a while at E. W. then at Ell., afterwards at Monson, Mass. Ch. :

Burritt on his "Peace Mission" to England, where he (Bartlett) formed a pleasant literary connection. His first work, What I Saw in London, had a large and lasting success, and was followed by others, some original, some compilations, viz.: Life of Lady Jane Grey, What I Saw in Paris, Life of Franklin Pierce, Fifty Years in Chains. He was for a number of years editor and owner of the Hartford Republican (afterward the H. Post); was a prominent anti-slavery man in the "Free Soil" days; afterwards rem. to Washington, D. C., where he assisted Dr. Bailey on the National Era; and from that drifted naturally into the line of Washington correspondent and telegrapher, and was for many years one of the most active and best known of newspaper men; he was the "D. W. B." of the N. Y. Independent, "special" for the N. Y. Post, the "Van" of the Springfield Republican, Boston Traveller, and other papers of equal standing, and was, also, at one time Clerk of the House Committee on Elections. Later he was Secretary of the Chinese Legation at Washington, but failing health led him, after some years, to rem. to Farmington, Conn., where he now resides. Children:

Fam. 4. George (Geo.; James), m. Mary Seeley of Weston, Conn., in her 17th year. He was in the army and subsequently in the navy during the war of the Revolution. At the time of the firing of the town of Fairfield by the British troops, the wife of Geo. Seeley had just removed from her loom a piece of cloth which she had woven with her own hands. Her son (George, Jun.) immediately concealed it in the hollow of a sycamore tree. After the troops retired he took it to his mother, who made from it a suit of clothes in which he enlisted in the army. Later on, he was transferred to the navy, and was in the service of his country seven years. He died on the 11th day of May, 1837. His wife died on the 5th day of Dec., 1858, a. 90, a. was 5 months, and 5 days. Ch.:

FAM. 5. James Goodwin,<sup>1</sup> (Simon S.,<sup>2</sup> Geo.,<sup>3</sup> Geo.,<sup>4</sup> James), tho' born in Bloomfield, Conn., passed his boyhood in Litchfield, Conn., where his father had established a building stone business, and where he enjoyed the advantages of the L. academy; leaving which he passed a number of years in the publishing house of Mack, Andrus & Woodruff, Ithaca, N. Y.; whence returning home he studied law with the noted Judge Seymour. His health, however, rendering severe confined study impossible, he went into business, first with his father, and subsequently (1845) independently in the same line, as an importer of and dealer in granite and marble, later removing the business headquarters to Hartford. This business has now grown into one of the largest in the U. S., owning quarries at Westerly, R. I., and Mr. B. was the first in this country to use machinery for polishing granite, and has always been prompt to adopt new improvements, etc. In 1863, on his return from one of his tours to Europe and the East, in which he had been giving especial attention to marbles and architecture, his attention was attracted, while passing through England, to the success of the then recently organized Railway Passengers' Assurance Co., and seeing at once its possibilities in America, upon his return he organized and obtained a charter for The Teachers Ins. Co. of Hartford, to which, in 1866, was added a regular Life Ins. department, the whole enterprise having now, by successive sudden and enormous strides, taken position among the very foremost of New England's insurance companies. Robust, energetic, highly intellectual, socially forceful and public spirited, the business, educational, and other higher interests of the city of Hartford, are indebted to him for powerful service and upbuilding. He holds the degree of M.A. from both Yale and Williams Colleges; and his life reveals a rare but symmetrical blending of literary and artistic enjoyment with the keenest commercial activity. BIRGE (Bingde, Burge), Richard, came from Dorchester with Mr. Warham, of whose church he was a member. Had home-lot in W. Feb. 6, 1640 (see pp. 152, 545, Vol. I); also 16 acres "beyond the 2d Pine Plain, west side of Millbrook, and 8 acres south of Millbrook, 8½ acres on the side of Pine Hill," and many other lots on both sides of the river, which were afterward owned by his son Daniel, deeds dated before 1646. He purchased land in W. of Nathan Gillet, 1641, of James Eno, 1647; was junior, 1649, m. Elizabeth (dan. William) Gaylord, 5 Oct., 1644; was buried 29 Sept., 1651 (Col. Rec.); his wid. m. - Jeremiah, b. 6 May, 1648. — According to Col. Rec., he 14 Jan., 1649, 50, which agrees with ag. Eno in last line of following ext. from W. Rec.: "On 22, 1648, Jeremiah Birge being in the woods come while his brother was gone home with a load of wood, he went again for more wood, and found his brother lying under the limbs of a tree, dead and fallen when he went from him; and he returned home and John Gaylord and John Birge came with him to the place, and found Jeremiah lying on his face on the ground and three men pressing him down, one cross his neck, another across his waist, one cross his legs; so he got him out and carried him home the same day. The cause of his death judged by six men to be the constable, to be by the fall of the tree upon him. [He] was buried, aged 39 years and a half." See to Old Ch. Rec. he was the only male of W. who d. in the year 1648.

Jeremiah, after his father's death, had contracted (19 Dec., 1644) with his step-father Hoskins to serve him until he was 21 years old, in consideration of a lot of land E. side the Gr. River, and a lot on W. side of street opp. Hoskins's house; and in case of Jer.'s death, his bro. John was to serve out his time for him; and if H. should die before Jer., the latter was to serve out his full time to the est. As Jer. at time of his death lacked 6 mos. of full time of his service, John fulfilled the contract and had the land, as agreed.]

BISSELL (Byssell). — [The genealogy of this family in the first edition of this work was mainly by Rev. CHARLES H. BISSELL, then of E. W. Hill, the Litchfield branch was furnished by Dea. H. B. BISSELL of Litchfield. — In this revision we have been indebted to the labors of JOHN G. BISSELL of Rome, N. Y., and Miss ELVIRA C. CLAPP of E. W. Hill.]

It is somewhat probable that this family is of Huguenot origin, many of whom fled to England to escape the persecutions which followed the massacre of St. Bartholomew, 1572. — The family in England is but little known, and has but one coat-of-arms, which is of a religious, rather than a warlike, character, and is thus described in Becke's Complete Armory: "BISSELL, Gen., on a bend, ar. three escallops, sa. — Crest, a demi eagle, with wings displayed, sa.; charged on the neck with an escallop shell, sa. — Motto, 'In recto Deus' — In rectitude, Honor."

The family of JOHN, who came to Windsor, is the only one of the name known to have come to this country. — Tradition asserts that this JOHN, with a brother Thomas, came from Co. Somerset, Eng., to Plymouth, Mass., 1628, and that the latter died at Plymouth, or ret. to Eng., which is doubtful, as also is the tradition that Thomas m. an Indian girl, dau. of the Poquonnoc sachem, and died without issue. — probably a mixed version of a similar trad. concerning Thos., son of John John, the founder of the W. line of Bissells, sett. at W. before 1640 see pp. 152, 540, 544, Vol. I.); rec'd 1648 or '49, a grant from the Col. Ct., of the monopoly of a ferry across the Conn. River, located on the E. side, near the wharf belonging to the Quarry Co., — "the road on E. side of the Conn. River leading from it followed the present road E. to the foot of the hill, thence a N. easterly course up the hill across the farm known as the George Prior farm, where the road now has the appearance of being very ancient." — (Maj. Sam'l W. Bartlett, in Golden Wedding of John Bissell and Elizabeth Thompson, 1870).

Evidences seem to point to the fact that Bissell had built on the east side of the river as early as 1659-60. In 1662, he gave his homestead with the ferry in Old W. to his son John, and rem. with his son Nathaniel to the east side, below the mouth of the Seantie; being, probably, the first family to actually reside on the east side. "There had been cellars and houses earlier, and in 1648 William Hills sold a dwelling house, barn, and appurtenances," but these had probably only been occupied by laborers who cultivated these meadows, most of the hay being put in 'ricks' (day-stacks) and drawn to the west side on the ice, in winter." — J. H. Hayden. Thirteen years later (King Philip's War) the Bissells had neighbors and their house was fortified and garrisoned, as was Thos. Burnham's at Podunk, 3 or 4 miles below John, Jr., asked, in 1663, to be released from his ferry contract, which was granted on condition that some one could be found to take his place. Perhaps, from that time, the location of the ferry was rem. down to the mouth of the Seantie; but certainly, as early as 1677, Nathaniel B. was ferryman there, and the ferry was still known as Bissell's Ferry. The landing on the E. side was changed to the south side of the Seantie nearly a century ago. John, Jr. d. at the homestead in W., 1693, and was succeeded there by his son Daniel, b. 1663, "he by his s. Daniel, b. 1694; he by his son Daniel, who remained on the homestead until 1790, when he removed to Randolph, Vt., the old house being sold to Jacob Osborne, who rem. it to another part of the town. The whole of the original John Bissell home lot in Old Windsor is now (1891) under a high state of cultivation, and owned and occupied by Messrs. Henry and Stephen Hills; and their house, erected by Josiah Bissell, about 1800, stands about 20 rods north of the site of the original John Bissell house." — J. H. Hayden.

He was evidently a man of consequence in town and church, as his pastor thus enters his death in A. S. R.: "Dec. 24, 1776, died, Josiah Bissell, Esq., of the small pox, at Reading. A pillar has fallen! a year of great mortality." He is mentioned, at the bp. of his dau. Aurelia, as belonging to the "7th Society for North Society" under Parson Hinsdale. Esq. Bissell was one of a committee appointed by the Gen. Assembly "to repair to sundry towns in the S. W. quarter of this State," for the purpose of "examining dangerous persons, i. e., persons suspected of disloyalty to the patriot cause," and while in the discharge of this duty, was taken ill and died at Reading, Conn., of the small pox. His heirs (Ruth, Elijah, and Josiah Bissell) memorialized the Assembly, 23 Oct., 1777, to defray the expenses of his illness and burial, which was granted. The itemized bills for these expenses, the acceptance of Esq. Bissell's official accounts with the State, and the memorial of his heirs, above referred to, are to be found in *MS. Gen. Morey, who was born at Hebron, Conn., May 27, 1735, removed to Oxford in January, 1766; being one of the first settlers. He became an extensive landowner in and around Oxford, on both sides of the Connecticut River, built the first sawmills there, and procured a charter for the first ferry across the Connecticut River.

He represented Oxford in the Fourth and Fifth Provincial Assemblies of the Colony of New Hampshire, 1755, and in the first House of Representatives of the State of New Hampshire, 1776; was a member of the New Hampshire Committee of Safety, and Colonel of the 12th Regiment of Foot, New Hampshire, during 1775 to 1782, during the Revolutionary War. During the entire period of the war he was actively engaged in mustering, equipping, and forwarding to the Continental Army, the troops raised by New Hampshire.

He removed to Paris, Vermont, in 1782, and was Assistant Judge of the Circuit Court of that State, 1782 to 1790 inclusive, and member of the Legislature of Vermont, 1783, 88 to 90, inc. 93 to 95. He died in Paris, Hebron, July 31, 1775, to Maria Palmer, and died at Oxford, Aug. 10, 1800.

He had five sons and two daughters, of whom the oldest son, Isaac, Morey, Jr., born June 30, 1760, at Jan. 25, 1820, served in the army during the Revolutionary War, as Lieut. Col.

His second son, Capt. Samuel Morey, born Oct. 21, 1762, died April 4, 1844, was a man of great scientific attainments, and was the discoverer of the application of steam as a motive power in the manufacture of No. 1 of the Locomotive, at The New Hampshire, at Lowell, Mass., published in 1824.

The third son, Judge Moulton Morey, born July 4, 1765, graduated from Dartmouth College in 1790, became Assistant Judge of the Orange County Court, and Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the State, having been elected a member of the Vermont Legislature in 1824 and '25.

Mr. Bissell d. at Rome, N. Y., 19 Feb., 1891. He was educated at Onondaga Academy, and spent much of his early childhood in North Carolina with his uncle, Judge Forman, the founder of Saratoga, N. Y. From 1837 to 1843 he was a contractor on the Black River Canal; he then entered the drug business (Bissell & Leonard, and later, G. N. Bissell & Son). He subsequently retired from active business, and the firm still remains, under the title of J. G. B. & Co. Mr. B. was a director and for several years the vice president of the Bank of Rome, one of the organizers of the Rome Exchange (now the First National Bank) of which for many years he was president, and for a number of years he had the honor to be president of the Rome Savings Bank. He was long, and at the time of his death, president of the Rome Gas Light Co., and one of the promoters of the Rome Iron Works, in early days an advocate for plank roads and later on of railroads, manufactures, etc., etc. He was one of the oldest members, and for thirty years warden and vestryman of Zion (P. E.) Ch., retiring from his office when age pressed too heavily upon him. His personal worth cannot be over-estimated. No resident of Rome was ever held in higher esteem. His name was the synonym for integrity, honesty, and fair dealing. He took his Sunday religion with him into his store and all his business relations. His honesty of purpose and perfect fairness were household words. He would allow of no imposition upon any person with whom he did business, or came in contact. He represented all things exactly as they were, and, rather than allow his customer to suffer, he would himself take the consequence. This was his rule, and he never deviated from it. He was a man of wide reading, and rare intelligence, and, while taking much interest in politics and political events, he never would accept nominations for office, and never held any office except that of village trustee. Children:

FAM. 105. George Perkins (Col.) (Josiah,<sup>6</sup> Josiah, Esq.,<sup>3</sup> Josiah,<sup>1</sup> Josiah,<sup>1</sup> John,<sup>1</sup> John<sup>1</sup>), in boyhood lived in Haddam, Conn.; then followed the sea for awhile, and when nearly 20 years of age, became a clerk in the Hartford Bank; next became cashier in a bank at Springfield, Mass., and soon after cashier of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Hartford. In 1851 he, with Calvin Day and D. F. Robinson, began the banking business under the firm title of Geo. P. Bissell & Co.; later, the firm of Geo. P. Bissell and A. S. Robinson; later still, Bissell and Edward H. Perkins, and, since May, 1876, Geo. P. Bissell and A. H. Ohlstead.

He became very widely known with hosts of friends, generous almost to a fault, answering all kinds of appeals to his purse, of unconquerable activity and persistent energy, gifted with a humorous way of looking at things, always ready to lead or to do more than his part in public affairs when the cause had his approval, an early and enthusiastic Republican, a man who did not want office, but who worked hard for the cause and whose example and influence carried many more. There are many who can remember him in the Fremont days in 1856, when he was one of the original organizers of the Fremont Club; and almost as a matter of course he was one of the original "Wide Awakes" and marshal of the procession when Abraham Lincoln was at Hartford in 1860.

When the whole North was stirred in the early days of 1861, by the threats of the South, a number of young men organized in Hartford, under the name of the citizens' Drill Corps, and with competent instructors were taught simple military evolutions. Colonel Bissell was a member, and with others graduated into the then recently organized Hartford City Guard. He joined February 20, 1861, took part in the first parade May 1, rose to the rank of corporal, and while doing duty with the company at the State Arsenal, was appointed colonel commanding camp of recruits, located down on the New Haven turnpike. This was in September, 1862, and soon after, on September 16th, he was appointed colonel of the Twenty-fifth Regiment.

This regiment, one of the best of Connecticut's nine months' regiments, was recruited in Hartford and Tolland counties, and was composed of young men of the best material. It was mustered into the United States service November 11, 1862. Three days later the regiment, consisting of over 800 men, left Hartford for Centerville, L. I., and two weeks later sailed for New Orleans, La. The regiment was engaged in the battles of Irish Bend, La., April 11, 1863; the advances on Port Hudson, La., May 25 '66 and June 14 '65, and the engagements at Brashear City and Bayou Bend, La., June 23 '24, 1863. The battle at Irish Bend was one of the hottest engagements of the war, considering the number of troops engaged and the time occupied in fighting. The regiment in this fight lost ninety five men killed or wounded, being nearly one fourth of the number who went into battle.

Colonel Bissell was necessarily absent from his command during a period some time after the battle of Irish Bend, being prostrated by malarial fever. He refused to be left with the sick and wounded, as ordered by the surgeon, and insisted on accompanying the regiment. Growing worse, he was finally sent to New Orleans, where he arrived nearly at death's door, and remained confined to bed for several weeks. From July 16, 1863, he commanded the Third Brigade, Fourth Division, Nineteenth Army Corps, with headquarters at Donaldsonville, La. Major McManus had command of the regiment during Colonel Bissell's absence.

As a commanding officer Colonel Bissell was a good disciplinarian, kind and considerate to his men, and careful of their wants and health. In the field, and when under fire, he was brave, cool, and determined. Although a stranger to the men of the Twenty-fifth Regiment when he was elected colonel by the line officers, he soon became well liked and afterwards very popular throughout the command. He had the power of imbuing the officers and men of his regiment with his own magnetic spirit of enthusiasm, bravery, and promptitude.

After the war he kept up his active interest in the cause he had helped to defend and in all that related to its promotion and to the preservation, in a proper way, of the associations then formed. He was a member and trustee of Robert O. Tyler Post, G. A. R. — was one of the prime movers in securing the Memorial Arch to the memory of Hartford soldiers and sailors in the war, and chairman of the committee which selected the design and had charge of the work. He made the speech presenting the monument. Time would fail to record the numberless ways in which his interest and activity were manifested in this one direction. In 1869 '70 he was paymaster general on Governor Jewell's staff. He commanded his old regiment on Battle Flag Day, September 17, 1879. On his return from service he did duty with us first love, the City Guard, at various times, was one of the early presidents of the Veteran Association, and in 1882 was captain of the Veteran City Guard.

He was a member of the Army and Navy Club and one of its founders, and of the Tyler Post, G. A. R. as well as Tyler Post, he was always active in the Twenty-fifth Regiment Association, was its historian, and gave a large sum to cover the cost of its first edition. The same active public spirit ran through his life. He was one of the presidents of the Young Men's Institute, and when the question of the Young Men's Institute made a large subscription, and when the call to close up the $400,000 fund he doubled it, making his contribution $1,000. He was, withal, common sense and judgment, had managed large affairs ably, and been trustee on numerous important estates. He was concerned in many business enterprises, the largest, perhaps being the Wheeling Bridge & Terminal Railway Company, of which he had been at the head for three years.

Colonel Bissell was a great lover of paintings, and bought largely and with discrimination. He leaves a fine collection, which includes many good specimens of modern European artists and some excellent American pictures. About three years ago he made a voyage to Japan, and he with his wife and daughter already traveled extensively in their own country and in Europe. A trouble with digestion, combined with untiring energy and great mental strain, closed his active and useful life, April 11, 1891.

In announcing his death, the Hartford Connecticut (April 13th) said: "He was full of public spirit and of enthusiastic patriotism, and when there came opportunities to advance the city or to defend the country he was ready in the cause. In the serious duties of citizenship he did his part well, and his contagious enthusiasm has time and again aroused his fellow citizens. Along with the seriousness of purpose, which proved itself on occasions of necessity, he possessed an unlimited fund of good nature and a keen and clever wit, and his bright sayings have day after day carried a smile through the whole circle of his wide acquaintance for he knew everybody and everybody knew him, and no one else was like him. He was a familiar figure in Hartford and he will be much missed and sincerely mourned in the city to whose interests he has shown himself so truly devoted."

Mr. Bissell left home at the age of 16 years to enter a store in N.

Edward Trujillo

Y city, thence, in 1817, he rem. to Geneseo, N. Y., where he continued as a merchant until the spring of 1828, when he removed to Lockport, N. Y., and erected there one of the most extensive mills then in Western N. Y., and soon became possessed of a large property and a beautiful home. In the spring of 1833, while on a western tour, he visited the present Toledo, then known as Port Lawrence and Vistula, containing, at that time, less than 100 inhab., and so impressed was he with the commercial importance of this point, that he made a large purchase of real estate and liberal expenditures in various improvements. In 1836, with a few others, he began to build the Erie & Kalamazoo R. R. to Adrian, 33 miles, at a cost of $300,000, and it was so far completed in July, 1837, as to commence the running of cars, by horses, and at a time when not a barrel of pork or flour came over the road for the first year; but the road was in daily use to feed the population of Southern Michigan. It was this road which, in after years, proved to be the lever that finally settled public opinion in favor of Toledo as the only commercial point of any great value at the S. end of Lake Erie. The final result of building this road, at a time when all knew that it would not pay as an investment, was to concentrate at this point several important railroads, costing millions of dollars, and the 700 miles of canal, the business of which, connected with Lake Erie, was done at this point. These were the logical results of the opening of the road to Adrian, for which the State was more indebted to Mr. B. than to any other ten men. The financial crash of 1837 almost ruined him, making the later years of his life laborious in the effort to remedy the losses of that destructive year — an effort in which he was, in some degree, successful. Though disappointed in the slow growth of Toledo to the eminence which he early foresaw for her, his faith was never dimmed in the final attainment of this position among the cities of the West. Mr. B. was a man of education and refinement, of great foresight and sagacity; an energetic worker who knew no such word as "fail." While he commanded universal respect and confidence in business circles, he was, owing to a natural reserve and dignity, known intimately only in the domestic circle, where his affectionate and unselfish character was fully displayed. Far-seeing and thoughtful, his views of life were eminently practical and sensible, and he early advocated many of the doctrines which are now daily growing in popularity, especially those pertaining to the rights of women. At a time when their defenders stood singly and alone, he advocated their equality in law — their equal need of, and right to, a collegiate, and even to business education, as a dependence for the future. In these views he was in advance of his times. Children:

Loston Perot was great great grandson of James Perot, who came from France after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685, and settled in New Rochelle, near New York. His son James, born in 1712, went to Philadelphia near Frances Mallory, and founded a family there. One of his sons, Elliston, born March 16, 1743, near New York, at an early age and was brought up by his uncle, Robert Elliston, Comptroller of Cass.

By 1841 Elliston with a brother John, settled in Philadelphia, and founded the Perot family of that city. Elliston's daughter, Dr. Elizabeth Marshall Morris, who married June 17, 1823, Francis Perot, son of Elliston, was the mother of Mrs. Bissell, is a 2d granddaughter of Christopher Marshall, member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, who served with distinction during the Revolutionary War, and great great great great-granddaughter of William W. Morris, who came to Philadelphia with William Penn. One of her ancestors was Captain Samuel Morris, who served during the Revolutionary War of the Philadelphia Light Horse, the escort of George Washington's army. This company, now called the First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry, is the oldest military organization in the United States in continuous existence having been formed Nov. 17, 1774, by the British. The Perots of Philadelphia of whom Capt. Morris was one. Another ancestor, Major Anthony Morris, was killed at the Battle of Princeton.

BISSELL. [By Miss RUTH T. SPERRY of E. W. Hill, for GEORGE F. BISSELL, Esq., of Chicago, Ill.]

John<sup>1</sup> (Capt.) (John<sup>2</sup>, Samuel<sup>2</sup>, John<sup>1</sup>), early at Bolton, where he had land set out to him in the first apportionment of town lands, 1722; was selectman in 1721 and for many subsequent years. He was established and continued to be Lieutenant of the company or trainband in the town of Bolton in Oct., 1722 (Col. Rec., vol. v, 330); later he was Captain, but after his appointment to a Justice of the Peace in May, 1739, he was more frequently designated Esq. He represented the town in the Assembly and was in many ways a prominent man. John Bissell of Coventry (Fam. 17), was app. Capt. of the 2d Co. in that town in 1738 (Col. Rec., xiii, p. 191), and as there were then two men of the same name and title res. in adjoining towns, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between the two when the name appears on State records. Then, too, the whole region was sparsely settled, and town and parish lines frequently changed. Later we find Ozias Bissell, though a resident of Bolton (see B. Land Rec.), chosen lieutenant of a company in (now East) Hartford. John Bissell's home-lot in Bolton was at Quarryville, and there he and his wife were buried. We could not find any record of his est. in the Hartford Prob. Office. Capt. John m. 22 Feb., 1710, 11, Hannah (dau. of Samuel) Denslow, who was b. 14 Nov., 1690 (W. R.), and who d. 13 Jan., 1752, in 60th year. Capt. John Bissell, Esq., d. 8 Feb., 1771, in 88th year of his age. (Children (Bolton Rec.).)

FAM. 12. Chauncey (Rev.), (*Col. Calch, <sup>2</sup> *Calch, <sup>3</sup> *Calch, <sup>4</sup> *Wm., <sup>5</sup> *Sim., <sup>6</sup> Robt.), m. 16 Nov., 1815, Laura ( dau. Peter and Sylvia Farnam, b. Salisbury, Conn., 14 Aug., 1792, and who d. Ill., 6 Sept., 1875. He grad. Y. C. 1810, where he received his first permanent religious impressions, and with the College Church he united. He studied theology at Andover Seminary, where he graduated 1813, was ordained and settled over the First Congregational Church in Coventry, Conn., Sept. 20, 1815, and served it faithfully and acceptably until his dismissal, on account of ill health, 20 Mch., 1844. The church at the time of his settlement was small and unhealthily divided, but, with the co-operation of a few strong and fervent members, thirty-six persons were added to the church by profession during the first year of his pastorate, sixteen the next. In 1823 there was a revival, which added nearly a hundred; another in 1828, and others in 1829, 1831, 1834, and 1838. Mr. Booth's education was thorough and exact; his manner grave, dignified, and sincere, — ever watchful over his feelings and over his lips, although eminently social in his disposition; he enjoyed the confidence and esteem of his people in a high degree. He died in South Coventry, Conn., 24 May, 1851. His memory was honored by a sermon, preached at South Coventry, May 26, 1851, by his successor, Rev. Charles Hyde, and afterwards published. Obadiah Allan<sup>1</sup> (Obad., Amos, Amos, Sam., Her.), was b. in Wells, Vermont, 11 Nov., 1807. He m. (1) Kate — — —, and had two daus. He m. second, Laura Bowe, dan. of Asa Bowe. Had one son who died in infancy. Mr. Bowe was editor of the Windsor Times and Herkimer Journal, and advocated abolition of slavery far in advance of his neighbors. He resided in Herkimer, N. Y.; afterward in N. Y. city, where he d. 6 Feb., 1859. He was buried at East Windsor Hill, Conn. An obituary notice in the New York Sun of 7 March, 1859, says:

"Mr. Obadiah A. Bower, for some time past connected with the editorial department of The Sun, died yesterday afternoon at his residence on Third avenue. Mr. Bower was a native of Vermont, and was a fellow apprentice to the printing business with Mr. Horace Greeley, of The Tribune. The friendship then founded was never interrupted, and it was through Mr. Greeley's representations of the experience and personal worth of his friend that he became, about three years ago, connected with our office. . . . Mr. Bower has been connected with the American press, as printer and publisher and in other capacities, for over thirty years. As a newspaper publisher he was not fortunate, probably because of his want of keen business habits, and his conscientious advocacy of views which were in advance of the times. He was a man of genial disposition, of fine literary taste, and an ardent, inflexible advocate of what he believed to be right and just."

The Boleyns claim to be the first family who located here, taking a large tract of land on the borders of East Windsor and Enfield, but they have no records back of the burials in the yard in King Street.

BURNHAM (Burnam). (This revision is indebted to the Geneal. Record of Thomas Burnham, the Emigrant, etc., — Second Edition, by Roderick H. Burnham of Hartford, published since our first edition was published, viz., in 1881.)

Thomas, born in England in 1617 (descended from the Burnhams of Herefordshire, England), was an educated man and lawyer—a man of determined character and energetic in business and public matters. He appears at Hartford about 1647/8, and in 1659 he purchased from Tantonimo, "the one-eyed chief" sachem of the Podunks a tract of land now covered by the towns of South Windsor and East Hartford, on which he resided, and a part of which is still in the possession of his descendants. He was a large landholder in the Colony, his house at Podunk being one of the five on the east side of Connecticut River. This was fortified and garrisoned during the Indian War of 1675. His legal career was summarily closed by the court in 1662 on account of his successful defense, as attorney, of Abigail Betts, charged with blasphemy, wherein, though he "saved her neck," he was himself condemned to "ye prison-keep," but he defended himself so strongly and shrewdly, demanding "justice according to Law," and declaring himself to be "a Subject and Denason of England," that the sentence was not carried into effect, and he was merely deprived for a time of his citizenship and debarred from acting as an attorney for others in the court, though allowed to argue his own cases. He was readmitted to citizenship, 1665, and among W. freemen, 1669. He m. Anna Wight, b. in England, and d. 28 June, 1688, æ. 71; she d. 5 Aug., 1703. He had nine children.

(Notes furnished by Prof. Daniel Cady Eaton, New Haven, Conn.)

James Cady, second s. of Nicholas and Judith (Knapp) Cady, b. Watertown, Mass., 28 Aug., 1655, removed with his father and brothers to Groton, Mass., about 1668. He married, 11 June, 1678, Hannah (dau. of Ellis) Barron, b. 6 Mch., 1658. He d.

at Groton, 2 Dec., 1690, intestate. The inventory of his estate is recorded at p. 319 of Vol. 7 of the Middlesex Probate Court records; it amounted to £69. 9s. 0d., and was returned, so the record states, by John Cady and James (sic) Cady, brothers of the deceased. His widow was living in 1711, when she was named in her father's will. Children (James, Elizabeth, and Aaron, known to have been such, the others are given by more or less probable conjecture):

1. James, b. at Watertown, 1 Apr. 1679, m. Thankful —; was of Sherborn, Mass., till 1710; then of Marlboro' (1711-1744); then of Pomfret, Conn., till his death, 18 Jan., 1742; he had 12 ch.: Hannah, Elias, Joseph, Sibil, Silas, Sarah, Resyiah, Phebe, Amarah, Mary, Cornelius (who went to Coventry, Conn.), and Phonkrol. His tombstone is in Brooklyn, Conn., by the side of his wife's, who d. 18 May, 1741.
2. John, perhaps b. at Watertown about 1680-1681, the Sergeant John Cady of Windsor (see above).
3. Daniel, b. about 1682-1683; m. Abigail —; rem. from Groton to the falls of the Quinnebaug river, a place then called Aspinock, in 1707; sold out in 1721, and was for a time of Tolland and then of Canterbury, but returned to Aspinock, and was living in 1751. His ascertained children were: Ephraim, Amos, Zeviah, Timothy, Sarah, Abigail, Jonas, Lydia, and Jedidah.
4. Abigail, who m. Ezekiel Cady, son of Daniel, Sr., at Groton, 22 Apr., 1707, as recorded at Pomfret. The rec. of Rev. Dudley Read-trot wrongly marries her to Daniel Cady on the same day. She d. Pomfret, 11 Apr., 1757, having been the mother of 9 children: Jerman, Ezekiel, Abenath, Hannah, Elizabeth, Jonas, Fanny, Hezekiah, and Abigail.

5. William, who had children bpt. at Killingly, Benjah, 1746, Abiah, 1748, and Fajah, 1750. This family probably rem. to Plainfield or Norwich.

6. Elizabeth, b. at Groton, 10 Apr., 1686, perhaps the Eliz. who m. Timothy Parkhurst at Killingly 15 Jan., 1716.

7. Aaron, b. at Groton, 7 Apr., 1688, was a "cord-winder" at Marlboro', Mass., 1714-1747, rem. to Canterbury, 1747; to Coventry, 1755, and to Tolland 1780; b. m. at Cambridge, Mass., 23 Feb., 1709-10, Mercy, daughter of Joshua Fuller, b. 11 Feb., 1688-89, and had 2 ch.: James, bpt. at Waltham, 1 July, 1711, Leona, b. at Canterbury, 7 Dec., 1718 (afterwards Dr. Cady, whose sons lived in Columbia Co., N. Y.), and Elizabeth, living m. married at Cambridge in 1748.

John Cady (prob. s. of James). The records of transfers of land show his residence in Groton, Mass. (1699-1704), Plainfield, Conn. (1704), Canterbury (1704-1721), Tolland (1721-1725), Willington (1725-1727), Windsor (1728-1739), Coventry (1740), and Tolland (1740). Probably he soon returned to Windsor, where he died Sept. 6, 1751. One of the Tolland deeds, dated Sept. 6, 1721, conveys to his "brother Daniel Cady of Tolland" 254 acres of land for £65. Another deed, from "Daniel Cady, Jr., of Canterbury" to "my brother John Cady of Willington," dated Aug. 23, 1725, reconveys the same land for £160. Investigations in Windham county show that this Daniel Cady, Jr., was neither Daniel Cady of Tatnick Hill (Brooklyn), nor his son, but was the Daniel Cady who came from Groton to Aspinock on the Quinnebaug River, in 1707, and lived most of his life in Killingly. In the History of Windham County Daniel Cady of Aspinock is confused with Daniel Cady of Tatnick Hill, who was a son of Nicholas Cady of Watertown. Similarly, Sgt. John Cady is confused by Boul and Savoy with his uncle John, s. of Nicholas Cady; for Joanna, wife of John, Sr., was living long after John, Jr., had children borne by his wife Elizabeth. That this John Cady was the s. of James Cady of Groton is inferred from the following facts: He lived in Groton with the other Cadys and with them came to Connecticut. Aaron, the proved son of James Cady, followed John to Canterbury, and afterwards went likewise to Tolland and Coventry. Cornelius, grandson of James, and son of James, Jr., also went to Coventry. Dr. Aaron Cady is asserted to have been either brother or cousin to Ebenezer, s. of John Cady, by the descendants of both Dr. Aaron and Ebenezer, who settled together in Columbia Co., N. Y. John's age, as given on his tombstone, conflicts with this belief, but ages on tombstones are often wrong, as, for instance, on the tombstones of Daniel Cady of Tatnick Hill, and of Ebenezer, s. of this very John. The families of the other sons of Nicholas are known, but in the family record of James there is a blank of seven years from the birth of James, in 1679, to Elizabeth, in 1686, which blank is the only place where the names of John, David, Fagat, and William can be inserted.

Sergt. John Cady was married twice. His first wife, Elizabeth —, was the mother of five and perhaps six of his children; the second wife was Elizabeth Mather [poss. Eliz., dau. of John and Sarah (Fitch) Stoughton, b. 19 Feb., 1692, and m. Joseph Mather, who d. 7 Nov., 1717. — R. T. S.]. Cook's Barial Rec. gives Oct., 1739, Mr. Cady's child. The date of neither marriage is known, but we may suppose the first to have taken place about 1698, and the second twenty or thirty years later.

The grave of John Cady is in the old burial ground at East Windsor Hill. Epitaph: "Here lies the body of Mr John Cady, who died Sept the 6th, A.D. 1751, in the 74th year of his age." The distribution of his estate is to be found on file in Hartford Probate Court. Widow Cady died 29 Feb., 1760. — Cook Record.

FAM 2. John (John<sup>s</sup>), m. Hannah Abbott, 6 May, 1729, and is said to have res. at Coventry. Tradition gives him three sons: Asahel, Nahum, and Amos. Bond assigns him dau. Hannah, who m. William Shurtleff, Nov., 1753.

FAM 3. William<sup>2</sup> (John<sup>s</sup>), was taxed in Windsor in 1732, was of Plainfield in 1740, in which year his father gave him land in Coventry. He lived in Coventry in 1742-1744, and is said to have gone to Dalton, Mass. According to tradition his sons were William and Jeremiah.

FAM 4. Eleazer (John<sup>s</sup>), was taxed in Windsor in 1732, lived in Plainfield. His will was dated Dec. 10, 1766, and was proved in Feb., 1767. It names his wife Kezia, eldest son John, youngest son Squire, then under age, and only daughter Lucy, wife of Obadiah Johnson of Canterbury. Ch.:

|  | 3 Squire, was constable in Plainfield in 1796. This family was probably continued, for another Squire Cady was town clerk there abt. 1830. |

FAM 5. Ebenezer<sup>2</sup> (John<sup>s</sup>), received from his father, in December, 1736, a gift of 53 acres in Windsor, "next the great river." In 1740 he was for a short time a resident of Plainfield, but within the year removed to Coventry, where he probably resided several years. He is next heard of as coming with his whole family to New Concord, now Canaan, in Columbia Co., New York, probably about 1762. Family tradition gives him an intermediate stay (from 1751 to 1762) in Dutchess Co., N. Y. His wife was Prudence Palmer, daughter of Jonathan and Mercy (Manning) Palmer, who was born in the northern part of Stonington, March 31, 1718-9. He died at Canaan, May 16, 1779. His wife lived till about the close of the century. Children:

Prudence, daughter of Ebenezer and Prudence Cady, was probably their oldest child, as the inscription on her gravestone reads, "Prudence, wife of Daniel Lovejoy, d. June 8, 1824, aged 81 years." Where she was born is unknown. Her marriage may have taken place in "The Oblong," i. e., near Amenia, Dutchess Co., N. Y. Her husband's tombstone reads, "Sacred to the memory of Capt. Daniel Lovejoy, who departed this life July 28, 1795, in the 57th year of his age." Another stone, near by, is that of "Sarah, relict of Mr. Benjamin Lovejoy, who d. May 16, 1799, in the 82d year of her age." Where the Lovejoys came from is not known, but it is very probable that they were Connecticut people. The Lovejoys settled in Canaan, N. Y., probably in 1761, and they are buried in the western part of the town. Ch. (the order of age uncertain):

FAM. 6 Ebenezer (Capt) (Ebenezer? John?), b. 20 Jan., 1743; first of the Cadys to settle in Columbia Co., N. Y. His grandson related that he came there some years before the Revolutionary war, as a hired servant of his brother-in-law, Daniel Lovejoy, and that the rest of the Cadys came the next year. The application for a pension of his brother Elijah fixes the date of this settling as 1762. He married Chloe (dau. of John and Ruth Pratt) Beebe, born at either Kent or Sharon, Conn., 29 Apl., 1747. CHAMBERLAIN, James (Capt.), of E. W.; was a son of Joseph C., who was res. in Tolland, Conn., 1737, and who was prob. a desc. of Thomas of Newton, Mass., prob. son of William of Woburn, Mass. (see Savage's A. E. Gen. Dict., I.). Capt. James was b. 11 Feb., 1734, O. S., and 27 Jan., 1757, he m. at Coventry, Ct., Abigail (dau. Zachariah) Boynton and wid. of John Palmer, by whom she had 4 ch. b. in C. They rem. from C. to Tolland abt. 1752, and to Warehouse Point, E. W., before 1787. He is described as "well known to all people for miles around and to boatmen from one end of the navigable portion of the Conn. River to the other. So candid and judicial was his mind, so acute and unbiased his reasoning powers, so dignified and magisterial his appearance (six feet in his stockings and weighing over 250 lbs. avoirdupois), that, for settling disputes, or awarding claims for damages, etc., he was the umpire invariably selected, if possible; and his decisions were accepted and acquiesced in by the parties at variance, with rare exceptions, as conclusive, if not entirely satisfactory. Though of Puritan extraction, the worthy captain, shortly after his arrival in E. W., became (from conviction of the inherent defects of Congregationalism as a polity of Church government) a devout and consistent Churchman, and with Gen. Jencks, Wm. C. Warner, and others of like mind, organized the present Episcopal parish at Warehouse Point, and was a devout and consistent Churchman until his death. Capt. Chamberlain commanded a company of cavalry one or two tours of duty during the Rev. war; was a rep. from Tolland in the Gen. Assembly in 1775. Children (all b. Coventry, or Tolland, Conn.):

Achsah Strong (maiden name Fuller) of Monson, Mass. Ch. (by 1st wife):

* Samuel is supposed to have been a Huguenot. The name was honorable in France as far back as the 10th century, when a Frenchman won a coat of arms and the soubriquet of "Capitatus" from a cut on his head, received in battle. The cap itself, with a cut in it, and the sword lying across it, became the coat of arms of the C. family, and this heraldic device survives in the American branch. It is supposed that Samuel's father fled first to Holland; whence, after marrying Cecely, a French maiden, he rem. to Dartmouth, Eng.; and emig. to Roxbury, N. E., where, with several children, he settled about 1635; and finally, 1642, or a little later, rem. to Springfield, Mass., where he became a deacon in the S. Church. His sons, Henry, the Selectman, and Japhet became interested in what is now Chipsope, at the lower end of which street H. built a house, while Japhet built at the upper end. H. had five ch., J. ten; of these eight were boys, and those eight boys beget eight seven children.— Mason A. Green's Hist. of Springfield, 175.

While a resident of Union, in 1812, he became a non-commissioned officer in a company which served for two years as Minute Men. In June, 1816, he made a trip with a friend in a wagon from Union, Conn., to New York State. Beyond Madison, 22d, they were caught in a snow storm, and when they reached Greenbush, N. Y., found the Hudson River too deep to attempt a crossing. A horse ferry-boat was at the time being built for the Albany ferry. He m. at Enf. 2 Feb., 1820, Elizabeth (dau. War was a leader in the patriotic town of Tolland; was Col. of the 23d Conn. Mil. and as such made several campaigns; was at N. Y., in 1776, with his entire regiment, diminished, however, by the many previous enlistments. On the evacuation of that city his conduct was deemed particularly honorable by those who witnessed it. He was the wealthiest man in T., and the leading business man. He also owned several slaves; was elected to the General Assembly at 45 annual elections, and is recorded as present at 15 special sessions; was a J. P. for 26 years, continuing in office until above 77 years of age; retained command of his reg. until above 70, the business on field days being performed by an adjutant. He was a remarkable man, in hardihood as if made of iron. In the army he not only endured but seemed to thrive upon food which the soldier ordinarily loathed. In the coldest weather he never used gloves or mittens, and walked outdoors barefoot in March, when above 80 years old. A neighbor who for twenty-eight years res. near him never heard him laugh, and he seldom smiled. Solving Statist.

Joseph came to W., from Dorchester (poss., as Savage suggests, from Cambridge), prob. about 1637. "April 3, 1638, the wife of Joseph Clark died" (O. C. R.), owned ld. at W. (see p. 153, Vol. 1.) He made his will 1640, leaving property to two minor children (unnamed), and (O. C. R.) died and was buried 11 Apl., 1641. No wife is mentioned in his will, but these children were Joseph and Mary, both baptized (according to O. C. R.) 30 Sept., 1638. This son Joseph died 2 May, 1659 (O. C. R.), leaving his property to his sister Mary, who m. 26 Nov., 1656, John Strong, Jr. A Frances Clarke (said by some to have been the widow of the above Joseph), m. 22 Feb., 1638, 9. Henry (Dea.), then of Hadley, made his will 1675, wherein he mentions that he was a member of the W. church, viz.: "My will further is, that the disposal of my housing and land at W. be, and be understood to be, with this proviso, that the rates and maintenance due therefor to the ministry, be continued and paid to the 1st Ch. of Christ at W., of which I was sometime a member."—*W. * The possibility of a relationship between this HENRY and Hon. D. of Woodsoe, and John, Esq., of Hartford, and George of Milford, is thus discussed by Mrs. F. W. G. SARGENT of New Haven, Conn., in a letter to the author: "I find that George, Clark, was a brother of John, Clark, Esq., of Hartford, at Neward of Saybrook, lately of Milford, deputy commissioner, patentee, of Connecticut, etc. In the Milford records a lot is mentioned as belonging to John's Clark. in his will gives a son the lot which had belonged to his (George's) brother Daniel. He mentions his brother John. He also speaks of property in Great Munden, England, given him by his brother Edward, to dispose of to his (George's) children and grandchildren. Concerning other property there, he says: "I understand that Mr. Whiting hath not finished with my brother Daniel Clarke; if he gets the land I do give it to my son, John Clarke." Who was this "DANIEL CLARKE" who took up land in Milford, which he apparently never occupied? It would seem probable that he was at the time in this country. We may believe that Mr. Whiting, then a merchant in England, took charge of the property there to transfer it to the heirs in this country, and that he was trying to make an arrangement with the "brother Daniel" which would secure an additional part to George Clarke. No Daniel Clarke appears in Connecticut at that early period except Hon. Daniel of Windsor. Was he the "brother Daniel"? There are coincidences which make it probable. George Clarke is found in Milford in 1639, the same year that Daniel Clarke came to Windsor with his uncle, Rev. Mr. Huit. John Clarke, Esq., who had been previously in Cambridge, Mass., for some years, was in the first division of lands at Hartford in 1639. George and Daniel Clarke had each children named Mary, Elizabeth, Sarah, Hannah, and John, in early in the same order. Daniel Clarke's son John repeated all these names. George and Daniel had each a son and grand-son named Samuel. George's brother, John Clarke, Esq., had children named Elizabeth, Sarah, and John. Only a person who has studied old genealogies can understand how much evidence of family relationships, afforded by use of the same baptismal names. The coincidence is also to be noticed that both Hon. Daniel and Rev. Mr. Huit, Esq., were among the patentees of Connecticut. So, also, was HENRY CLARKE, who came to Windsor about the time that Daniel did, and he may have been another brother. He left no children, and gave his property to heirs of other names, perhaps a sister and her children; he mentions no brothers. There is, therefore, no evidence of relationship between him and any of the other Clarks."

Aaron (Capt.), b. Eng., 1610, at Dorchester, Mass., 1630, had land gr. him at W., 5 July, 1636, in 1653 was gr. lands at Massacoe (Sims), "on both sides the River, next above the Falls,"—Col. Rec. Savage says (N. Eng. Gen. Hist., 445) that he was discouraged by a controversy and rem. to Northampton, Mass., 1661, and was a prop'r at Westfield, 1667-8; rep. to Gen. Ct., 1668, is first ment. on N. records 29 Feb., 1664, in an agreement with Lieut. William Clark about land. The Hist. Dorchester says "he was a man of great energy and a devoted friend of the regicide judges, Goffe and Whalley; while they were in this country they res. in his neighborhood." A. Rec. give: "Invent. 26 Dec., 1690, est. of Major Cooke, dec'd, taken by Jona. Hunt and Joseph Parsons; house and homestead; about 300 acres in Hartford Colony; 1 parcel land in Windsor; Noah Cooke is Ex'r to Est. of his father, Maj. Cooke."

Capt. Cooke was a man of mark in W., as elsewhere, is ment. Col. Rec., pp. 87, 148, 155, 242, 246, 309, 314, 317. His military career seems to have commenced in W., for 21 May, 1653, Lieutenant Cooke was app. Commander in Chief of the 65 soldiers drafted out of the 10 Conn. towns, on a requisition of the Commissioners of the United Colonies, for a war against the Dutch, Windsor having the second largest number of men; and 25 May, 1655, "Lieutenant Cooke was chosen Captainye at Windsor, he had 87 papers [votes]; only 19 for others." Sept. 4, 1656, he was ordered by the Town to beat the drum on Lord's and lecture-days, from the top of the meeting-house, for which he was to have 20s for the next year.

In March, 1657-8, he was one of the listed persons for troopers, and presented by Maj. John Mason as "Captain Aaron Cook" of W. He was the owner of The Complete Body of the Art Military, by Lieut. Col. Richard Elton, pub. in Eng., 1649, which volume he left, by will, to his son, the second Capt. Aaron, to whom, as a marriage portion, he had given his dwelling-house and land on Sandy Bank, in W., and which Aaron, Jr., in 1664, deeded to John Maudsley.

In 1687, Gov. Andros made Capt. Cooke a major (then the highest military office in Mass.), and, after Andros's fall, he was again captain. In 1683, he was one of the County Court who sat at Springfield, upon the case of Mary Webster, "under strong suspicion of having familiarity with the devil," or using witchcraft—a case afterwards referred to the Ct. of Assistants, at Boston, and which resulted in her acquittal.

The valiant Captain, as appears from frequent mention in the W. Town Rec., was a great hunter of wolves. He d. at Northampton, 5 Sept., 1690, æ. 80. A monument was erected to him in N. in 1881 by Josiah Parsons Cooke, his 6th lineal descendant. (1) ——— (dau. Thomas) Ford; (2) Joanna (dau. Nicholas and Elizabeth) Denslow, who d. FAM. 10. Charles Haskell (Seth, Seth), m. 19 Sept., 1838, Lydia (dau. Dr. William S.) Pierson of W., began his business life, 1836, as a manufacturer of wrapping paper in the basement of a grist mill, ten years later, 1847, built a new mill in Windsor Locks, on ground now occupied by the C. H. Dexter & Sons' Paper Works, the products of which, largely by virtue of improved methods of his own devising, came to rank among the best goods in the market. In 1855 he became President of the Connecticut River Company, and during fifteen years of administration made a fairly remunerative property of that which had before been almost valueless to the stockholders. To his enterprising and judicious management the company owes its large increase of water power in the canal, and the village its consequent growth of manufacturing industries. He never held civil or political office; but there were no matters affecting the welfare of the community which did not awaken his lively interest, and he was foremost in all measures of public improvement. The impress of his mind and hand was to be seen on all the material interests of the town. But his best work was in those things which concern the higher well being of every community — the school, the home, the church. He was a central figure in all the best activities of Windsor Locks for thirty years; and his life, taken in all its bearings, was by far the most influential that Windsor Locks has ever known. He had a remarkably fine presence and winning address, with a commanding form, slightly bowed in his later years by rheumatic suffering. He was of quick and clear apprehension, systematic in business, hopeful and earnest in whatever he undertook, responding freely and gladly to calls for help, whether in money or personal service. He d. 29 Aug., 1869, in his 59th year. Ch.

DOBSON, Mr. Peter (who had a factory near Vernon Depot, and was an English man), m. Sophia Strong, 10 Meh., 1819. — R. D.

Mr. Dobson, b. Preston, Lancashire, Eng., 5 Aug., 1781, came to Vernon, Conn., 1809. Physically large and powerful of frame, he was also a vigorous, deep, and wholly original thinker, and a close and independent observer, with a decidedly mathematical and inventive mind. He built and operated the first cotton spinning mill in V., and Cogswell's Hist. of Rockville, 1823-71, contains a chapter of reminiscences from his pen, of the great growth of the manufacturing industries of that vicinity, of which he could well say, as did Casar of old, "all of which I saw, and a great part of which I was concerned in." Mr. D., however, had more than a local distinction, honorable as that was to him. A brief and modest paper, contributed by him to the Am. Journal of Sciences, in 1829, was accepted by the eminent geologists composing the Geological Society of London (when it came to their notice in 1832) as solving a question which had been long and fruitlessly discussed by them, viz., as to the cause of grooves, scratches, and peculiar markings observable on certain rocks and boulders. His theory, based on his own observations while getting out stone for the foundations of his own cotton mill at V., led Mr. Dobson to the belief that these markings, etc., were due to aqueo-glacial action "combined with that of stational glaciers, acting in place, or moved gently downward and forward in summer, and in winter backward." His views, which evoked much reading and thought, were declared by Sir Roderick Murchison, Pres. of the Geol. Society, as containing "the essence of the modified glacial theory at which our hairs arrived after so much debate;" and he "congratulates American Science in having possessed the original author of the best glacial theory . . . a previous acquaintance with which might have saved volumes of disputation on both sides of the Atlantic." Mr. Dobson d. at V., 18 Meh., 1878, a. 96 yrs., 7 mos., 13 days. His milling interests were continued in V. by his son, Hon. John S. Dobson, who inherited some of the paternal characteristics, and was a prominent and valuable citizen of Vernon. He d. c. 64, leaving a daughter, Mrs. Emma D. Parker.]

COAT OF ARMS OF DRAKE OF ASHE.

DRAKE. [Since the appearance of our first edition, much research has been given to the English ancestry of the various families of this name in America. The Rev. W. L. CHAFFIN of No. Easton, Mass., and H. B. DRAKE of New London have been prosecuting researches especially in the line of Thomas Drake of Weymouth, Mass. We give, herewith, a brief abstract of what has thus far been discovered.]

In England the name has long been borne by many distinguished as navigators, clergymen, martyrs, and authors. Among the foremost of these English families is that which had its seat at Ashe, Co. Devon, and from it descended the greater portion of the Drakes of Mass. and Conn. The line of ancestry of the Windsor (Conn.) Drakes may be thus summarized:

- I. John, of Exmouth, Eng., 1360; m. Christian (dau. of John) Billett, and acquired Ashe. They had a son, John,<sup>2</sup> who was unlawfully excluded from Ashe by Christopher Francheyne, the son of his mother by her second marriage with Richard Francheyne.
- II. John,<sup>2</sup> settled at Otterton, about 16 miles from Ashe; m. Christian (dau. of John) Antage, and founded the Otterton Family of Drake, through his son,
- III. John,<sup>3</sup> who inherited Otterton and m. a Cruwys of Cruwys Morehand. Their son,
- IV. John,<sup>4</sup> of Otterton, m. Agnes (dau. John) Kelloway, and had issue: John,<sup>5</sup> Richard, Robert, Thomas, and Agnes.
- V. John,<sup>5</sup> settled first at Axmouth, and by a suit-at-law recovered Ashe. He m. Margaret (dau. of John) Cole of Kill; their son,
- VI. John,<sup>6</sup> inherited Ashe; m. Anne (dau. Roger) Greenville; had issue: Bernard, who inherited Ashe; Robert,<sup>7</sup> Richard, who settled at Eshire, Co. Surrey.
- VII. Robert,<sup>7</sup> settled at Wiscomb, parish of South Leigh, Co. Devon; m. and had issue: William,<sup>8</sup> and Henry.<sup>8</sup>
- VIII. William,<sup>8</sup> of Wiscomb, Co. Devon; m. and had issue: John,<sup>9</sup> b. about 1600, and Thomas.<sup>8</sup>
- IX. John,<sup>9</sup> b. at Wiscomb, Co. Devon, abt. 1600; m. Elizabeth Rogers; this was the family which emigrated to New Eng. and finally settled at Windsor.

(For above, see Lyson's Magna Britannia, VI, part I and II; also, John Prince's Worthies of Devon, 328, edition of 1810.)

* Thomas, another memb. of this family, and poss. bro. of John,<sup>9</sup> the Windsor settler, came to Mass. and sett. at Weymouth, where he d. 1621; or the Thomas of Weymouth may have been a cousin of John,<sup>9</sup> of Windsor, and son of his uncle Henry.

There was also a Robert Drake, b. abt. 1580, who sett. at Exeter, N. H., abt. 1643, but rem. to Hampton abt. 1651, and who was at one time res. in Colchester, Essex Co., Eng., from whence he prob. emigrated to Am. Three sons and a dau. came with him. He may have been a grandson of Robert Drake, the martyr, minister of Thundersley, Co. Essex, burned at the stake in the reign of Queen Mary. — Savage's N. Eng. Genealogical Diet.

There was a SAMUEL DRAKE res. at Fairfield, Conn., 1650, rep. to Gen. Ct., 1662; rem. to East Chester, N. Y., 1665. — See App. to Bolton's Hist. West. Co., N. Y.; Savage's N. Eng. Genealogical Diet.

From these four all the Drakes of New Eng., N. Y., N. J., and the Western States, are believed to have been descended.

There was a later emig. viz. Ant., 1717, to some of the Southern States, of desc. of THOMAS, youngest bro. of Admiral Sir Francis Drake, and later on, in that line from John D. of Ivy Bridge, Co. Devon, Eng., viz. Jos. ph., b. abt. and before 1700; Francis, bp. 1701, and Bampfylde, bp. 1704. Joseph was murdered in Va.; Francis sett. in present Nash Co., N. C.; desc. now in N. C. and Ga.; and tradition avers that Bampfylde came North — poss. some of the Penn. Drakes may desc. from him. John A. Harrison of Charlotte, N. C., Dr. N. T. Drake of Tolson, N. C., and Engen Drake of Ogeethorpe, Ga., are engaged in editing the genealogy of this line. Admiral Sir Francis Drake, in his will, names Richard Drake of County Surrey as his "well-be-

John, the emigrant,* came to Boston, 1630, bo't land at Taunton, but did not settle; came to W. before 1639. — Aug. 17, 1659, John Drake, Sr., dyed accidentally as he was driving a cart loaded with corn to carry from his house to his son Jacob's; the cattle being 2 oxen, and his mare. In the highway, against John Griffin's, something scared the cattle, and they set a running, and he laboring to stop them by taking hold on the mare, was thrown down on his face, and the cart-wheel went over him, brake one of his legs, and bruised his bodye so that he was taken up dead, being carried to his daughter's house, had life come again, but dyed in a short time, and was buried on the 18th of August, 1659. — Will settling est. bef. loved cousin," and makes him one of the "Rulers and Over-seers" of his will; also, "to be aiding and assisting to my said Executors." Thomas Drake, bro. to the Admiral, names no bro. in his will, but names an uncle John. Richard, above named, is said to have been cousin nephew to the Admiral. Therefore, the two lines of descent may have been from the sons of John Drake and Agnes Kelloway, or from John Drake and Margaret Cole.

The surmise given in our first edition that John of Windsor, and Robert of Hampton, N. H., were bros., has been disproved by recent investigation.

* This revision of the Drake Genealogy owes its completeness very largely to the careful researches of Mr. Timothy Drake, of Hartford, Conn.

* Orent's Hist. Torrington contains genealogies of descendants of Noah and Hannah (Skinner) Drake; also of those of Joseph and Elizabeth (Barber) Drake of W., said Joseph being supposed son of Joseph, Jr., and Sarah (Eason) Drake of E. W. Joseph Drake, who m. Elizabeth Barber of Windsor, Conn., 7 Mch., 1751, was prob. a son of Joseph, Jr. and Sarah (Eason) Drake, as he named his only s. John Eason Drake. They lived in Torrington, Conn. Samuel may have been b. in 1825 or '6, and Joseph m. 1824 or '5.—T. D.

† Why. Ch. Rec. give to Noah the following baptismal records: Hannah, bp. 26 Oct., 1746; Ira, bp. 3, d. 9 Dec., 1749; Moses, bp. 9 June, 1751; Noah, bp. 11 Sept., 1757; Annise, bp. 7 Feb., 1762; Lucy, bp. 26 May, 1764.

‡ If, acc. to Orent's Torrington Hist., this Hannah was b. 1743, she must have been twin to Noah, who b. and d. 1743. We have preferred to consider 1748 as the correct date of year.

§ These children seem to have been erroneously credited, in our first Edition (p. 586), to a Dea. Daniel and a Dea. Nathaniel.

W., defeating his father, who was his competitor on the Rep. side. After the session ended, Mr. D. cut law office of R. D. Hubbard, after which he was adm. to the Hartford Co. bar, and at time of his enlistment was in the law office with Lieut. Gov. Geo. Sill. The day after the fall of Fort Sumter, Apl. 15, 1861, at a conference between him and Gen. Joseph Hawley, it was decided to organize a volunteer rifle company and the names of Hawley and Drake appear as first and second on the enlistment paper then and there prepared, as also upon the enlistment paper now on file in the State Adjt. General's office. The company was enrolled on evening of 16th. Standing on the rear platform of the train which bore his company from Hartford to the regimental rendezvous at New Haven, preparatory for the departure of the command for the front under Colonel Dan Tyler, Lieutenant Drake said to a friend as he bade him good-by: "You will hear from me, if it is at the cannon's mouth." The remark was an index of what was in him. He could have led a forlorn hope with as much coolness, intelligence, and decision, as he would have conducted a case in court. (See below.) The Grand Army Post at Manchester, Conn., is named after him.

3. Charles Francis, d. 23 Sept. 1880, a. 4 mos.

[The following sketch of Col. Drake's military service is furnished by Gen. J. L. Otis of Florence, Mass.]:

ALBERT W. DRAKE joined the 10th Regt., Conn. Vol. Inf., as Major, on its organization at Hartford in August, 1861, and was promoted and mustered into the U. S. service as Lieut. Colonel of the same regiment Oct. 26th, following.

On Oct. 31st the regiment left Hartford for Annapolis, Md., where it remained in camp of instruction for two months. During this period Lieut. Col. Drake devoted all his time and energies to perfecting the drill, improving the discipline, and instructing the officers, with marked success. He was not an educated soldier—better than this, he was a soldier by instinct. Under his instruction the regiment became the best drilled and one of the best disciplined in Burnside's army. Jan. 2, 1862, it took transports with the Burnside Expedition for North Carolina. The troops remained on shipboard for five weeks continuously, both officers and men exposed to great hardships and privations during the time. Lieut.-Col. Drake was then suffering from the disease of which he soon after died, and this experience was far more trying to him than service in the field would have been.

The first landing was at Roanoke Island, Feb. 7, 1862. The troops landed by leaping into the water from the small boats as they grounded, and wading ashore. Col. Drake submitted to this trial with the rest, then remained in an open field during the whole of the succeeding cold, rainy night. The battle commenced on the morning of the 8th. Col. Russell was killed early in the engagement, leaving Lieut.-Col. Drake in command. He handled his troops under the trying circumstances that followed with great courage, coolness, and skill, walking up and down the line, directing and encouraging officers and men, under a fire from which his regiment suffered the heaviest loss of any engaged. When the action was over, he led his command on in pursuit of the enemy for a mile or more, when he was ordered to leave the line of pursuit, move about half a mile to the left, and attack Fort Barto, a strong work mounting ten heavy guns, and well manned by the enemy. He moved to the attack with great promptness, but the enemy had evacuated the works before the Tenth arrived, and there was nothing to do but to take possession. The regiment remained near the fort for three days without shelter, Col. Drake occupying an old deserted shanty; then returned to the transports. After remaining afloat an entire month, the regiment landed at Slocum's Creek, on the Neuse River, at daylight on March 13th, and marched all day towards Newberne in mud that seemed bottomless, Col. Drake marching with it on foot the entire day. He was then in a physical condition that would have taken almost any other man to the hospital. The command bivouacked at night in the rain within reach of the enemy's guns, the Colonel spending the long rainy night in the open air, without protection. Soon after daylight he led his regiment into the battle of Newberne, and formed it in line under a severe fire with as much coolness as if it had been an ordinary drill. During the battle he continued walking up and down the line with the same steady courage that characterized all his actions, and, as soon as the fire from the enemy's entrenchments began to slacken, led his regiment promptly forward to the assault. That night his command took possession of a deserted rebel camp in the rear of Newberne, and Col. Drake, although unable to sit up for any length of time, retained the command and took measures to have the usual strict discipline of the camp maintained.

Col. Drake had received his commission as Colonel, dating from Feb. 8th, but was never mustered. He had become so worn and exhausted by the hardships of the campaign as to be entirely unfitted for duty, and was compelled, much against his inclination, to accept a leave of absence. He failed steadily from that time and died at his home in South Windsor on June 5, 1862.

Among Colonel Drake's striking characteristics were, a lofty, unselfish patriotism, a strict sense of justice, with great coolness and dauntless courage in trying circumstances. He was liberally endowed by nature with intellectual force and abilities and soldierly qualities. His ideal of the soldier was a most exalted one; it was an every day saying with him that "the true soldier is always a gentleman," and, in condemnation of the vice of profanity, it was a common remark of his, "Swearing is ungentlemanly, therefore unsoldierlike." It was his constant endeavor to impress upon all under his command so high an ideal of soldierly character that it should become with them a controlling moral force; a high and ever-present standard of conduct and duty. It was his aim to cultivate in them a pride in the command to which they belonged that would at all times restrain them from doing any act that would tend to its discredit.

Circumstances made Col. Drake, to a large extent, the instructor, drill-master, and disciplinarian of the regiment from the time of his first connection with it; and, although it had other commanders of courage, skill, and soldierly abilities, it is but justice to say that the high character it maintained for discipline, courage, and soldierly conduct throughout its entire term of service was due in no small degree to the influence of its early training under him. His own soldierly qualities made him a severe critic with officers, but not an unjust one. Any careless or willful lapse from duty on their part met with such prompt and emphatic condemnation that it was seldom repeated. He held them to conduct and responsibilities according to their several ranks, but expected all to give their earnest and constant efforts to the discharge of their official duties. It was inevitable that under the conditions then existing there would be officers in every new regiment who had no special aptitude for military service, and who found it exceedingly difficult to fit themselves for its duties. Col. Drake recognized that to deal justly and properly with such was one of the most delicate and serious of his responsibilities. Those who showed by constant attention that they had an earnest desire to fit themselves for the discharge of their novel duties and responsibilities could rely upon his aid and forbearance; for those who, besides an inaptitude for the discharge of their duties, showed a want of interest and effort, he expressed his contempt in language not to be misconstrued.

With the enlisted men under his command Col. Drake was always a favorite, as all officers with a fine sense of justice are sure to be. In his intercourse with them he was invariably kind and considerate, and, when having occasion to correct them, was careful to avoid the use of any language that would tend to leave a sense of degradation or of having been reprimanded. It was always his purpose to cultivate a sentiment of self respect and manliness; for this reason he was remarkably successful in impressing upon them an important lesson that "Young America" stood in great need of; that there was nothing unmanly or degrading in obeying, without question, legitimate authority. If improperly saluted by a sentinel when passing the lines, Col. Drake would turn his horse, carefully instruct the soldier in his duty, and leave him with a sense of pride and satisfaction at having been so kindly instructed by an officer of rank. Drake never failed in such cases to call the sentinel's captain to account for not having his men properly instructed in guard duty.

The following will illustrate Col. Drake's fine sense of justice and his readiness to lay aside all pride of preconceived opinions when convinced that he had been wrong. A captain who stood high in the Colonel's good opinion was in command of a large company in which both the lieutenantancies were vacant. The Orderly Sergeant of the company was a brave and capable young man, and the Captain asked Drake to use his influence in getting the Sergeant promoted. Unfortunately, the regiment had been for some weeks on board transports where no clothing could be procured. An important article of clothing, drawn by the Sergeant before going on board, proved to be of that variety known as "patriot shoddy," and had resolved itself into its original rags, and in spite of all his efforts to keep it presentable, had assumed a most disreputable and unsoldierlike appearance. The Colonel promptly, not to say ungraciously, refused the Captain's application on the ground that the Sergeant's dress was such as to indicate that he did not properly appreciate the importance of the position he then held, to say nothing of promotion to the rank of a commissioned officer. It was in vain to represent that it was unjust to hold an enlisted man responsible for the condition of his clothing under the circumstances; Drake would not listen to any explanation. A week or two later, during the Battle of Newberne, while the left of the regiment was suffering severely under fire, the Colonel walked down to that part of the line where he found the much-depreciated Sergeant under a hot fire coolly assisting his Captain in rearranging the sights of the muskets, which had been set too low. Drake noticed what was going on, said nothing to the Sergeant, but spoke pleasantly to the Captain and returned to the colors. The next day, however, he took occasion to remark in the presence of his officers that the Orderly of Company — — was worth two ordinary lieutenants. In a few days a lieutenant's commission arrived for him without further solicitation. Having seen him stand the test of all tests of a good soldier, the Colonel was as prompt to do him justice as he had previously been to condemn him.

Notwithstanding the precarious condition of his health, Colonel Drake spared himself no hardship to which his men were subjected, nor would he while on the march allow men fatigued with hard duty to be detailed for the purpose of constructing accommodations for himself better than they could have. He seemed to make it a matter of duty to fare no better than they. This was well illustrated the night before the battle of Newberne. The troops had landed at daylight, marched all day over almost impassable roads, and bivouacked at night in the rain. Some of the company commanders had neglected to see that their men were properly supplied with rations before landing, and their companies were destitute of food. The sergeants reported the condition of their men to the Colonel. Although sympathizing deeply with them and not a little indignant, he could do nothing for their relief. He, himself, almost in the last stages of consumption, without shelter from the rain, was reclining on some wet bushes collected by his servant, destitute of food or drink through negligence on the part of the staff officer whose duty it was to have attended to his being provided for. An officer of the regiment who was well supplied, learning of the Colonel's situation, had food and coffee prepared, and, walking over to where he was lying, offered them to him. Drake reached out his hand with an expression of relief and pleasure, then drew it back and said, "No, Captain, keep it yourself; you need it as much as I do." The officer replied that he had a sufficient supply and was not depriving himself of anything necessary to his comfort. "Then," said Drake, "give it to your men; there must be some among them sick and worn out by our hard march." "My men are all fully supplied with three days' rations," replied the Captain; "you are not depriving them of anything, either." The Colonel then took the food, but before tasting it, turned to the company commanders who had come to justify themselves for the destitute condition of their men, and said, "Gentlemen, here is both an impeachment and a lesson in duty for you which cannot possibly be made more forcible; this is my answer to your excuses: an officer with no possible advantage over you in opportunity has brought his company here well fed and provided for, while your men are hungry and destitute. This must not occur again, it is the first and most important duty of a company officer to see that his men are properly provided and cared for."

Colonel Drake's early death left too short a term of service for him to make a record with which the general public could be acquainted — only those who served with him had opportunities to learn of his high qualities as a soldier and a man. But short as it was, it proved sufficient to win for him the unqualified approbation of his superiors and the respect and admiration of his comrades in arms. His service in drilling and disciplining the regiment, and the command of it at the Battle of Roanoke Island, after the death of Colonel Russell, and at Newberne demonstrated beyond a doubt that had his life been prolonged he would have made a national reputation. When he left his regiment at Newberne to go home on leave of absence, he appeared to be entirely confident that he would soon return with renewed vigor and continue the service in which he had already won an enviable reputation. But his dearest hope that he might return to duty and end his life among his companions in arms and in the active defense of his country was not to be realized, nor was the hope shared by his comrades. They felt that his early death was inevitable, and on his departure the expressions of profound regret and sorrow were not confined to his own command, but came from Burnside, Foster, and others of high rank throughout the Department. His death not only caused a sense of personal bereavement with all, but all felt that the country had lost one of the most intelligent and promising officers of his grade in the service.

EATON. [The following family record furnished by Prof. DANIEL C. EATON of Yale College.]

Daniel (Capt.), first person of this name on Windsor records, was born at Reading, Mass., 1 June, 1678, and was s. of Daniel and Mary Eaton, and 2d. son of William E., an early settler of R., who came from Staple, Co. Kent, Eng. Capt. Daniel res. for some time in Lynn, Mass., was gr. fd. in Lambstown (now Hardwick) Mass., which land he sold to Thomas Powers of Worcester, the deed dated at Windsor, Conn., Apl., 1731. He res. some yrs. in Tolland, Conn., perhaps having gone there with his elder bro. William, about 1713–16. His family rec. is gleaned partly from books at Salem and Lynn, Mass., and partly from those at Tolland, Conn. He m. (1) Mary Collins of Salem, 7 Oct., 1701 (or, by Tolland rec., 9 Oct., 1702), she d. 10 Mch., 1704, and he m. (2) Abigail Hebard, 7 (or 9) Oct., 1701. The date of his death is not certainly known, but a fun. rec. of Daniel Eaton d. 11 Jan., 1741, may refer to him, or possibly to his son. (Ch. Obj. Ist. writ.)

FAM. 2. Daniel<sup>1</sup> (Capt. Dan., Dan., Windsor), b. 1705, prob. at Lynn, Mass., was of Willington, Conn., 1729–32, and of Windsor, 1731–39, how much longer is uncertain. He was the Daniel Eaton, Jr., ment. (p. 813, Vol. I) as signing a petition in parish of Ell., 1731, together with his father. Whether it was this Daniel, or his son, who was in Capt. Benj. Allen's company in the Crown Point Expedition, 1755 (see p. 251, Vol. I.), is uncertain. He m. his cousin Hannah (dau. John and Mary Eaton) Cole, at Boyford, Mass., 19 Dec., 1727. "Hannah Eaton d. 10 Mch., 1784."—Fam. Rec. Children:

- 1 Hannah, b. Willington, 22 Sept., 1729.
- 2 Daniel, b. Willington, 13 Apl., 1732, must have died young.
- 3 Nathaniel, b. Windsor, 26 Apl., 1736. Of him nothing is known with certainty, but he may have been the N. who m. Kezia Laurence, at Springfield, Mass., 19 Feb., 1764, and had son Nathaniel, b. at S., 11 July, 1764; he must have d. not long afterwards, for Wid. Kezia Eaton of S. was m. to Gustavus Ellsworth of Windsor, 14 Apl., 1776. If she had been the sister-in-law of the third Daniel Eaton of W., her second

m. to a W. man would be easily accounted for. The S. Nathl., b. 1791, was prob. the N. Eaton who m. Mary Kent (intention recorded), 13 Oct., 1781, "both of West Springfield," and had a s. William, b. 22 Oct., 1783. An Eaton family of Springfield, Bradford Co., Penn., is prob. desc. from this William, tho' their trad. gives the name of John to William's father, but their ancestor Wm was b., as their rec. have it, 23 Oct., 1759.

- 1 John, b. Windsor, 6 June, 1739.
- 2 Daniel, b. 1 June, 1740. Fam. Rec. FAM 3 (Perhaps others).

Aaron, m. Lydia Barber, 21 Oct., 1762 (W. Rec.). This was Ensign Eaton of Stafford, Conn., b. at Tolland, 8 Mch., 1737, s. of SAMUEL and Jenima Eaton, and gd. s. of William, the elder bro. of Capt. Daniel Eaton of Ell. They had five children, Barbara, b. 1763, Aaron, b. 1766, Lydia, b. 1769; Lavinia, b. 1772, Joseph Barber, b. 1775. Mrs. Lydia Eaton was hurt by the falling of a well-sweep at her own door, 29 July, 1790, and d. the next day. He m. (2) in 1790, Mrs. Abigail Converse, dau. of ——— Allen, and had children Josiah Wells, 1791 or '2, Luther, 1792 or '3, and Sarah, 1795; he d. 25 May, 1815.

FAM. 2. Asahel Knowlton (A.M., M.D.) (Joshua, Josiah), grad. A.M. at Ham. Coll., N. Y.; was for some years principal of the academics at Little Falls and Fredonia, N. Y., afterwards Prof. of Chemistry at Eclectic Med. College, Rochester, N. Y., sett. in N. Y. city as an analytical chemist; discovered and patented a process for making steel directly from the iron ore, and also a quick process for tanning leather. His attention becoming attracted to the gold mines of North Carolina, he invented and patented several improved processes of amalgamation and separation. Shortly after, in connection with Charles C. Spencer of Canastota, N. Y., he entered into the mfr. of optical instruments, microscopes, telescopes, etc., at that place, and constructed for the Litchfield Observatory, Hamilton Coll., its large telescope, then the largest ever mfd. in this country. In 1856 he was engag. in N. Y. city in the refining of kerosene from W. Penn. and E. Ohio coals — this being before the discovery of petroleum. During the early part of the Civil War he was largely engaged in the preparation (by processes of his own invention) of the peculiar green and other colored inks required in the printing of the Government greenbacks. From 1874 to '77 he was engag. in Montana Territory in gold and silver mining, for which he perfected new processes and machinery. Ret., 1877, to Brooklyn, N. Y., he invent. a new kind of prism, using bisulphide of carbon, and also a direct-vision spectrocope. He was an early inventor in the telephone line, and has, of late yrs., been actively engaged in electrical inventions and mfr., especially that of electric storage-batteries. FAM. 4. Jonathan<sup>4</sup> (Rev., D.D.) (Rev. Timothy,<sup>3</sup> Rich.,<sup>2</sup> Wm.<sup>1</sup>), Pres. of College of New Jersey; was educated by his father, then highly-esteemed as a teacher of the classics, at E. W.; studied Latin when 8 yrs. old; grad. Y.C., 1720, before he was 17 yrs. of age; res. in college for nearly two years after, fitting himself for the ministry: in 1722 preached for a few months to a small Presbyterian congregation in New York city, but out of respect to his father's wishes declined their invitation to settle; in May, 1723, received a call to the Church and Society in Bolton, Conn., which, after much consideration, he formally accepted, 11 Nov., 1723 (Windsor Farmer, p. 82), but his pastorate there, if any, was brief, for in June, 1724, he was appoint. tutor at Yale College, which office he held until 1726, when he was invited to preach as colleague to his grandfather Stoddard, Northampton, Mass., where he was ord. as colleague Feb. 15, 1727. His work here was a great and useful one (Mr. Stoddard died in 1729), and in 1734 and '35 occurred, under his ministry, one of the most extraordinary revivals in America. We quote from Dr. Sprague's admirable sketch in the American Pulpit: "After this there was no unusual attention to religion in the congregation until the early part of 1740, when another revival occurred in connection with the great religious movement inaugurated by the labors of Whitefield. Against the fanatical tendencies and demonstrations, so prevalent at this period, Mr. Edwards set his face like a flint; and in this sad state of things originated his celebrated work on the 'Religious Affections,' designed to discriminate between a genuine and spurious Christian experience.

Jonathan Edwards

Mr. Edwards's ministry, up to the year 1744, had been eminently successful and happy; but at that time an event occurred which proved the harbinger of great disquietude and agitation. It had come to the knowledge of the pastor that certain immoral practices [the custom of 'bundling'] were indulged in by some of the young people of the church; and after preaching a most impressive sermon on the general subject, he moved the appointment of a committee from the church to investigate the matter and report the result of their inquiries. Such a committee was appointed, and when the report came to be read from the pulpit, it turned out that among the culprits were members of many of the most influential families of the place. Great disaffection was produced by the course which had been taken, and it was forthwith determined by the church that they would proceed no further; notwithstanding the decision must needs involve the deliberate yielding up of the discipline of Christ's house.

The church in Northampton had, under the ministry of Mr. Stoddard, received the doctrine that unconverted persons, provided they are not immoral, have a right to come to the Lord's Supper. Mr. Edwards had always had his doubts in regard to the correctness of this doctrine, but never reached the full conviction that it was unscriptural until the year 1749, when he published his 'Humble Inquiry into the Rules of the word of God, concerning the Qualifications requisite to a complete blood, which were transmitted through the union of Richard Edwards and Elizabeth (Tutbill) to the Edward-line, crop out here with all the force of unimpaired vitality. Writers who have speculated much on the strange and curious outbreaks of depravity in certain members of the Edwards race, but which were restrained by the strong will of President Edwards, to renew their fierce activity in his son Pierrepoint, and his grand-son, Aaron Burr, can find ample explanation of their origin upon physiological grounds, if they will study the history of that branch of the Tutbill family;

"Great wits are sure to madness near allied,
And thin partitions do their bounds divide."

—Stoughton's Windsor Farmer, p. 68. See, also, Note on p. 69 of same, for the key to cause of divorce of Richard Edwards from his first wife, Elizabeth Tutbill.

standing and full communion in the visible Christian Church.' This produced the greatest excitement, and a plan was quickly matured for effecting his removal from his charge. The matter was submitted to a mutual council consisting of the neighboring ministers, and it was finally determined by a majority of one, that he should be dismissed. He remained in Northampton for some time after his dismissal, and occasionally preached to the people when they had no other supply; but the parish at length had a meeting, and passed a formal vote that he should not again enter their pulpit. During all this time there were a considerable number of the members of the church who were fully satisfied that he was in the right, and who remained his fast friends — indeed, so strong were their convictions and feelings on the subject, that they proposed to withdraw from the old church and establish a new one, provided he would consent to remain among them. Though he was not favorably inclined towards the project, on the ground that it might serve to perpetuate dissensions in the place, he so far yielded to their wishes as to consent to submit the matter to an ecclesiastical council. Such a council, in due time, convened, and, after due deliberation, reached a result in harmony with his own convictions; so that the matter was finally abandoned.

The great mass of those who joined in opposition to Mr. Edwards never manifested any change of feeling in respect to him. A few, however, on mature reflection, saw and acknowledged their error; and among them one of the most eminent civilians of that day in Massachusetts, who addressed a letter to him, written in a tone of the deepest regret and humiliation, and who, in due time, received one from him in return, that would have done no discredit to the magnanimity of Stephen. Mr. Edwards, in being separated from his congregation, was deprived, to a great extent, of the means of supporting his family. He was, however, generously cared for by his friends in Scotland, who sympathized deeply in his troubles, and sent him a liberal pecuniary donation. Within less than a year, however, he received an invitation from the church in Stockbridge to become their pastor, and at the same time he was solicited by the Commissioners at Boston of the 'Society in London for Propagating the Gospel in New England and the parts adjacent,' to become the missionary to the Housatonic tribe of Indians, then residing in Stockbridge and its vicinity. He accepted the invitation of both the church and the Commissioners, and was set apart as a pastor and a missionary, in July, 1751. Here he continued ten years, and during this period wrote his celebrated works on 'Original Sin' and on the 'Freedom of the Will.'

On the death of his son-in-law, the Rev. Aaron Burr, president of Princeton College, the trustees of that college immediately turned to Mr. Edwards as a suitable person to succeed him; and he was accordingly chosen, and with great reluctance and many misgivings accepted the office. He was dismissed from his charge in Stockbridge in January, 1758, and was inaugurated as president at Princeton on the 16th of the next month. He had scarcely entered upon his new duties, however, when the prevalence of small pox induced him to be inoculated and this disease was the cause of his death, 22 Mch., 1758."

The absolute limitations of space forbid such a biog. sketch of JONATHAN EDWARDS as he deserves in this history of his native town. Many writers have essayed the task, and the facts of his life and the measure of his genius are now fully established. We cannot, however, refrain from quoting the eloquent tribute paid to this most eminent of all Am. theologians, by the author of Windsor Fairies.

Tyson Edwards, D. D., of New London, Conn.

" Full justice is being done this wondrous man both at home and abroad. The brilliant light which broke like a meteor's gleam from these western wilds, when he arose and demonstrated his propositions, has spread like a silver lining over the dark clouds of German mysticism, while to-day the great minds of England and France pour high eulogiums on the humble 'Stockbridge missionary.' In the background of our New England history he moves a figure of the stateliest proportions. Yet, we who live so near the scene of his labors and triumphs have not seen him as they who, removed from the immediate conflicts in which he engaged, have viewed him. . . . But, now, at the distance of more than a century, we begin to realize the force of his character, and vie with each other in offering some refutation of the proverb, 'A prophet is not without honor save in his own country, and in his own house.' No loftier praise has been accorded any American than this tribute from the Westminster Review (1852, Vol. lvii): 'Before the commencement of this century America had but one great man in philosophy, but that one was illustrious. From the days of Plato there has been no life of more simple and imposing grandeur than that of Jonathan Edwards, who, living as a missionary at Northampton,* then on the confines of civilization, set up his propositions, which have remained as if they were mountains of solid crystal in the center of the world.' He came upon the field during the contentious period when the primitive Church of the New World was struggling against the assailing powers of darkness. The insidious workings of the 'half-way covenant' had prepared the path of corruption and opened the way for innovations which threatened the spiritual life of the Church. His youthful ear had listened to the noise of tumult in his father's house, where the rival factions that wrangled over the location of the new meeting-house were wont to assemble. The very college in which he was educated was without a resting-place, and not until after his graduation did the fierce war over its removal to New Haven cease. Upon all these petty strifes and dissensions Edwards had looked with that apparent indifference with which the great warrior looks upon the skirmishing pickets of the advancing foe; but, nevertheless, he read in them the signs of the times, and when, a few years later, the Church of Christ, weakening in the grasp of the relentless world-power, was about to stoop to concessions unworthy of its high position, he rose 'and thrust between the struggling foes his giant strength,' forced apart the relenting foes, and, with the sword of the Spirit in his hand, fought his way to the front ranks of the eighteenth century polemicists."

Jonathan Edwards m., 28 July, 1727, Sarah (dan. of Rev. James) Pierrepont of New Haven, Conn., she being then in her 18th year, remarkable as an example of early piety, and combining the highest graces of personal beauty with the more surpassing graces of a cultivated mind and a heart which "dwelt with God." It was to her that the delicate and pure mind of her future husband paid the following exquisite tribute of appreciation, inscribed in 1723 upon the blank leaf of a book, still preserved:

"They say there is a young lady in ——, who is beloved by that Great Being who made and rules the world, and that there are certain seasons in which this Great Being in some way or other invisibly comes to her and fills her mind with exceedingly great delights, and that she hardly cares for anything except to meditate on him. That she expects after awhile to be where he is, to be raised up out of the world and caught up into heaven, being assured that he loves her too well to let her remain at a distance from him always. There she is to dwell with him. Therefore, if you present all the world before her with the richest of its treasures, she disregards it and cares nothing for it and is unmindful of any pain or affliction. She has a strange sweetness in her mind and singular purity in her affections, is most just and conscientious in her conduct, and you could not persuade her to do anything wrong or sinful if you would give her the whole world, lest she should offend the Great Being. She is wonderful for sweetness, calmness, and universal Benevolence of mind. Especially after this Great Being has manifested himself to her mind. She will sometimes go about from place to place singing sweetly, and seems to be always full of joy and pleasure, and no one knows what for. She loves to be alone, walking in the fields and groves, and seems to have some one invisible always conversing with her."

Her father, Rev. James Pierrepont, was fourth pastor of the 1st church in New Haven, and her mother (his 3d wife) was the dau. of Rev. Samuel Hooker, second pastor of the 1st ch. in Farmington, and gr.-dau. of Rev. Thos. Hooker, first minister of Hartford, Conn. She died at Philadelphia, Pa., 25 Oct., 1758, in 49th year.

ELLISON, Laurence, 1644. — See Plan and Distribution of Ancient Windsor.

ELLSWORTH,* (Elsacort, Eلسacorth, Eلسacorth, Ellsacorth, and Aylsacorth). "The name is derived from that of a small village a few miles from Cambridge, England. This village is situated on a rivulet, once remarkable for albs. Hence, as the Saxon word "worth" signified place, the village was originally called Eلسacorth; but afterwards Ellsworth; and, as the custom formerly was for the first settler in a new place to take the name of the settlement, we have, in that circumstance, the origin of the family name." — MS. of Hon. Joseph Wood.

In Arthur's Etymological Dictionary of Family Surnames, 1857, it is said, "AYLSWORTH: the name admits of several meanings, Eal, Saxon, finished, completed, and acorth a farm-house or village. Ayls, Cor. Br., low meadow, flat-lands, washed by a river, sea, or lake, and gacorth, a worth, farm-house, or village.

Worth, any sufficiently warded place, it came to denote a small farmstead. The Assistance acknowledged in first edition from JAMES ELLSWORTH of Northampton, Mass., and JOSEPH ELLSWORTH of E. W. In the present revision we are indebted to W. IRVING VINAL, Esq., of the U. S. Geodetic Survey of Ellington, for tracing out the hitherto somewhat obscure ancestral descent of Chief Justice Ellsworth, and for the genealogy of his descendants, as well as for the biography of the Chief Justice; while his father-in-law, Rev. GEORGE T. WOOD of Ell., kindly adds an anecdotal sketch of the distinguished jurist. The labors of the late EDWARD KING of Indianapolis, Ind., have most largely contributed to the completeness of this genealogy, especially in the Western lines of descent; and FREDERICK ELLSWORTH of Hartford, Conn., has rendered aid in regard to the E. W. families of the name.

* Written in 1822 (3 revised) by Pres. Jackson of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and used by Flanders in his "Lives of the Chief Justices of the U. S.;" MS. now in the poss. of W. Henry Vinal, Esq., of Ellington.

primary sense of the word is strength (Webster). Elsworth, it is known historically is homogenous with Aylesworth, in which the first syllable is either a transposed form of Eyles (an old spelling of Elias) or an abbreviation of Aylmer, Elmeric, with the possessive s added. Or, noting that the English town of Aylesbury was originally spelt Aylesbyrig, we may reasonably conclude that Ayl, and sometimes El, is a contraction of Egil, one of the gods of Norse mythology — Sigil, the hero-archer. — Prof. Charles Dod in Home Journal.

Josias, or JOSIAH ELLSWORTH, son of John, is said to have been a descendant of Sir John Ellsworth, of the time of Edward the Third, who resided in Cambridgeshire, England. Hon. Joseph Wood's MS. supposes Josias to have been of Yorkshire. This conjecture is "derived from Mr. John Ellsworth, who was a respectable merchant in London at the beginning of the present century, and who stated that it was a tradition in his family which had long resided in Yorkshire, that a member of it had formerly removed to foreign parts; that he was a young man when he left, and had never returned." This statement concurs with that in the MS. Notes of Oliver Ellsworth, Jr., on the Ellsworth Family, written in 1802, to the effect that his father, the Chief Justice, while abroad on his diplomatic mission, made some researches concerning the origin of the family. In Dorchester, whence most of the Windsor people came, he found none of the name. In London he found two John Ellsworths, both respectable merchants, one of whom, a rich cheesemonger, claimed a relationship with the Chief Justice, on the strength of a tradition of ancient date, handed down to him by his father, "that one of the brothers of this John Ellsworth's great grandfather had removed or gone to foreign parts and never returned," and though this young man's Christian name was not recollected, the Justice was inclined to believe that it was his ancestor, Josias.

From records in London he ascertained that Sir Richard Ellsworth had been, in 1672, a privy counsellor to Charles II, and a resident of Bristol: also that the family of E. were quite numerous in Yorkshire, about fifty miles north of Cambridge; and that nine miles east of C. there was a small village called Elsworth (or Eelsworth), whence the said John Ellsworth of London said he had come; and that his ancestors in Yorkshire, for several generations, were good livers but not distinguished. The Justice visited this village, which was of ancient appearance, with a very venerable church, and through the village ran a small river which probably gave origin to the family name: "worth," the last syllable in the name, is of Saxon origin, and signified a ford or fording-place. The first syllable of the name Els, or Eels (probably, also, a Saxon name) had its present meaning and the fact that the country around this village is low and flat, particularly about the town of Ely, which is likewise in the neighborhood of Cambridge; and there are many fens or watery spots "where it appears, by an old English geography, that there is an abundance of eels and fish, whence it is thought that Ely (town) takes its name"—renders it probable that the "Eels-fording place" gave rise to the name of the village, and also of its principal family.

In the Appendix of the Register of the Aylesworth Family, by Sylvester Aylesworth,* a pamphlet of twelve pages, published at Utica, N. Y., in 1840, mention is made of three brothers, who left Wales because of religious persecutions. The eldest, THEOPHILUS, fled to Holland, and spelled the name Elsvort, or Elswort, after the Dutch pronunciation. He afterwards, about 1664, came to America, and settled in New York city, where many of his descendants lived, as late as 1840. In 1670 the persecutions were renewed, and the second brother, JOSIAS, came to America and settled in Connecticut. His descendants spelled the name Ellsworth, and the author says "to that family belonged Chief Justice Oliver Ellsworth," etc.

* This work, above referred to, gives but one line of the family, without dates, for four generations, except in the family of William, of the 4th generation.

But, unfortunately for this last conclusion, the ancestor of the Windsor Ellsworths had been many years in that place before 1670. The third brother, ARTHUR, came to America about 1681, and settled in North Kingston, R. I. An extensive genealogy of his descendants has been published, entitled, Arthur Aylsworth and His Descendants in America, with Notes Hist. and Geneal., relating to the Family, from Early English Records. By Horace Elhanan Aylsworth, M.D., Roseville, Warren Co., Ill. Edited by James N. Arnold, Editor of Narragansett Hist. Register. Printed by the Family. Edition 250 copies. Providence, R. I., 1887, cxxxvi, of Index, 496.

This includes a reprint of the twelve-page pamphlet entitled, "A Register of the Aylsworth Family, issued at Utica, N. Y., 1840, by Sylvester Aylesworth, before referred to. But the compiler of the later work does not agree with the conclusions of Mr. Sylvester Aylesworth, as to the three emigrant brothers: (1) as to the certainty of their Wish origin; (2) as to the name of the eldest brother, which should be Christopher, instead of Theophilus, and he is found in New Netherlands as early as 1653, and his eldest child, b. 1656; (3) as to the identity of the second brother, with Josia of Windsor; and (4) as to the alleged dates of emigration of both the older brothers.

Josias (Sgt.), was born in 1629. Hinman (1st Series, p. 26) says he was in Connecticut in 1646, a statement which is, however, totally ignored by Savage, in his Genealogical Dict. of New Eng. His name first appears on the W. Town Rec. in connection with his marriage, 16 Nov., 1654, to Elizabeth Holcomb; and, the same year, he bo't a house and lot S. of the Rivulet (and near the Old Mill) on what was afterwards known as the Gillett pl., opp. res. of late Hon. N. H. Barber. In 1655 he bought the property now known as the Chief-Justice Ellsworth place (see p. 155, Vol. 1.); he was a juror in 1664; made freeman 21 May, 1657; his wife was adm. member of W. ch. about 1663; he contributed 3s. to the Conn. FAM. 22. Oliver<sup>4</sup> (Capt. David,<sup>2</sup> Jona.,<sup>2</sup> Josias<sup>1</sup>), LL.D., Yale, Dart., et Coll. N. J., Chief-Justice of the U. S.; b. at Windsor, 29 Apl., 1745*; "was placed, at an early age, under the instruction of the Rev. Dr. Bellamy, clergyman of a neighboring parish, and, in 1762, he entered Yale College, remaining there two years. At Nassau Hall, now Princeton College, New Jersey, he attained high rank as a scholar, and there received the degree of A.B., in 1766. After his graduation, his father having determined to educate him for the gospel ministry, he was placed under the instruction of the venerable Dr. John Smalley. Influenced, however, by an early inclination to the profession of law, he abandoned theology after one year's trial, and soon entered upon his favorite study with the first Governor Griswold of Connecticut.

* For this biographical sketch we are indebted to W. IRVING VINALE, Esq., of Ellington, Conn. See, also, Lives and Times of the Chief-Justices of the Supreme Court of the U. S., by Henry Flanders, Philadelphia, 1881, i. pp. 55-276. Most of the material for Flanders' biog. of Ellsworth was furnished by Hon. Joseph Wood of New Haven, Conn., who married Frances, dau. of Oliver Ellsworth. A biographical sketch of the Chief-Justice was written by his grandson, Oliver E. Wood, and published in the N. Y. Evening Post, in 1875 and '76. Another gd.-son, Rev. Geo. J. Wood of Ell., prepared a concise sketch and deposited it in the National Museum, Independence Hall, Phila., 2 July, 1876. Other sketches, anecdotes, etc., of Chief-Justice Ellsworth have been collected and written by these two grandsons. See, also, Sargent's Lives of the Chief-Justices, as well as the carefully-prepared biographies in Allen's and other American Biographical Dictionaries.

Subsequently, with Judge Root of Coventry, he completed the course of reading prescribed, and was admitted to the bar of Hartford county in 1771. While pursuing his professional studies, Mr. Ellsworth incurred debts; these he discharged by cutting and selling wood from a tract of land which he owned, after vainly trying to sell the land itself. Freed from his pecuniary embarrassment, he was ready to begin practice as a counsellor at law. His father gave him a house and farm in Bloomfield (then Wintourbury), and, in 1772, he married. For a little more than three years he divided his time between his farm and his profession, the income from the latter being very small. His skill in preparing and ability in advocating an important case, entrusted to him by a neighbor, secured a verdict for his client and obtained at once for himself a high professional reputation. His practice rapidly increased, and in the autumn of 1775 Ellsworth began his public career as State's attorney. He sold his farm, removed to Hartford, and there devoted himself to a larger and more remunerative practice than that of any of his contemporaries of the Connecticut bar. His resolute will and power of concentrating his mind upon the analysis of the subject in hand, together with his concise statements of the points involved, lucid and forcible arguments, gained for him a commanding position at the very head of the profession. Politically, Mr. Ellsworth was a Whig, and at the beginning of the Revolutionary war he was chosen to represent Windsor in the General Assembly of Connecticut. While a member of the legislature, he served actively with the militia of the State, and was one of a committee of four, called the "Pay Table." The duties of this committee were "to examine, liquidate, adjust, settle, and give all needful orders" for the payment of military expenditures. In October, 1777, he was elected one of six delegates to the Continental Congress, taking his seat twelve months afterwards. He served as a member of the Marine Committee, acting as a Board of Admiralty; and, also, on the Committee of Appeals, taking a prominent share in all political discussions and measures. By yearly election, from 1780 to 1784, he was a member of the Governor's Council, in which body he served with unrivalled influence. At the end of June, 1783, he left his seat in Congress, and, although re-elected, declined to serve.

In 1784 he declined the appointment of Commissioner of the Treasury, tendered to him by Congress, preferring the legislative assignment as Judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut. He conducted the duties of this office with rare ability and great reputation until he was made a member of the Federal Convention assembled at Philadelphia in May, 1787. In this body he bore a distinguished part, and soon became conspicuous as one of the ablest advocates of the rights of the individual States. To him we are largely indebted for the federal element of our constitution, "by which so many sovereign States are kept in distinct activity, while included under a higher sovereignty." He moved in the convention to expunge the word "National" from the Constitution, and to substitute the words, "Government of the United States," and this was finally agreed to without a dissenting voice. To his clear discernment and strenuous exertions, coupled with those of his distinguished colleagues, Roger Sherman and the Hon. Judge Patterson, more than to any others, we owe "the best government, instead of the worst and most intolerable on earth." Ellsworth did not put his name to the instrument, when completed, "solely because important domestic considerations compelled him to leave the Convention as soon as all the provisions of the Constitution had been perfected."*

His son, Oliver Ellsworth, Jr., in his M.S. Reminiscences, written 1803, says: "He (i. e. his father, the chief Justice) told me, one day, upon my reading a paper to him (in his illness), containing an eulogium upon the late Gen. Washington, which, among other things ascribed to him the founding of the American Government, to which to oblige I, collected, saying that President Washington's influence while in the convention, was not very great, it was not much as to the forming of the present Constitution of the United States in 1787. Judge T. said that he himself was one of the five who drew up that Constitution—or that he, with five others, viz: Gen. A. Hamilton of Massachusetts, deceased, James Wilson of Pennsylvania, Rutledge of South Carolina, and Madison of Virginia, drew it up.

See, also, a valuable article on Oliver Ellsworth by Judge HENRY M. SHEPARD, in the Chicago Law Times, April, 1888.

In the following year, in the State convention for the adoption of this Constitution, Mr. Ellsworth was mainly instrumental, by the force and energy of his invincible arguments, in securing its ratification. Upon the organization of the new government at New York, April 6, 1789,* Mr. Ellsworth was seated as one of the Senators from Connecticut. He was appointed chairman of the committee to organize the Judiciary of the United States. The original bill, in his handwriting, passed with but slight alteration, and its provisions are still in force.

He was called "The Cerberus of the Treasury," being particularly watchful over the public expenditures. He took an active part in building up the credit of the country, providing for the "support of the government, for the discharge of the debts of the United States, and for the encouragement and protection of manufactures." He was spoken of, by John Adams, as "the firmest pillar of Washington's whole administration."† By common consent he was yielded precedence in the Federal ranks in the Senate, then composed of the élite of the Republic. The mission of John Jay to England, in 1794, was due to his suggestion, and when the treaty then negotiated met with alarming opposition in the House of Representatives, he successfully defended it, and it was approved by the Senate.

March 4, 1796, Mr. Ellsworth was appointed the successor of Mr. Jay, as Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. As he had been long estranged from the practice of the legal profession, he carefully prepared himself for the duties of his new station, by an extensive course of study upon those points in which he felt himself deficient. All his habits and faculties were specially adapted to the discharge of judicial functions; his dignified bearing, courteous impartiality, and acknowledged ability won for him, everywhere, the confidence and esteem of the bar. His clear perception aided greatly the dispatch of business, while his decisions, as they are preserved in the reports, are notably concise and sound. At the beginning of Adams's administration, the relations existing between the United States and France had become so unfriendly that a war seemed inevitable, obliging the Government to make military preparations. The French Directory, seeing that Americans were really aroused, finally made overtures for an arrangement of the difficulties between the two countries. In 1799, President Adams, on the recommendation of a Senate committee, appointed Oliver Ellsworth, Patrick Henry, and William Van Murray, Ambassador of the U. S., and Extraordinary Commission to negotiate with France. Mr. Henry declined to act, on account of age, and Governor William R. Davie of North Carolina was named in his stead. Mr. Ellsworth entered on this duty with reluctance, but, waiving all personal feeling, accepted the high responsibility. After receiving final instructions, he sailed with Davie on the frigate United States, Nov. 3d, but, meeting with many delays, did not reach Paris until March 2, 1800. As Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary, they were accorded a cordial and enthusiastic reception. They found Napoleon Bonaparte at the head of the Republic, erected on the ruins of the Directory. More wise and politic than his associates in the government, he soon concluded an adjustment of all disputes, preventing the impending war and an alliance between

OLIVER ELLSWORTH, Esq., Chief-Justice

America and England, that would have been most unfavorable to the interests of France. On the part of this country, the negotiations and discussions were conducted almost exclusively by Judge Ellsworth. While it was found impossible to obtain all the concessions which our envoys demanded, the convention agreed upon in September secured all that, under the actual circumstances, was necessary. France conceded the rights of neutral vessels, agreed to pay indemnity for depredations on our commerce, and assured us peace without at all sacrificing our rights or interests. Although the treaty met with opposition in Congress, time has proved that the honor and welfare of this country could not have been placed in more capable hands.*

Mr. Ellsworth's health had, for some time, been seriously impaired; the voyage to Europe and subsequent travel on the Continent only contributed to increase his malady. The time of his departure for home being delayed until late in the autumn, it was thought that his life would be endangered by attempting to recross the ocean at that unfavorable season. He was carried to England on board of the frigate Portsmouth, the vessel which was to bring the ambassadors back to this country. There he tested, with some benefit, the efficacy of the mineral waters at Bath. His son Oliver, who had accompanied him as secretary, returned home with Commissioner Davie, bringing with him his father's resignation of the office of Chief-Justice. While in England, Mr. Ellsworth was the recipient of marked attention on the part of the Court, and of the leading public men, as well as of the Bench and Bar. He sailed from Bristol, England, in the ship Nancy, in April, 1801, and, after a painful voyage, was landed at Boston. † Safely arrived at his home, and freed from the cares of public office, Mr. Ellsworth resolved to pass his remaining years in the quiet of private life. In 1802, however, he was again elected a member of the Governor's Council, which acted as a Superior Court of Errors in Connecticut, being the final Court of Appeals from all inferior State jurisdictions. Here his influence was controlling, for, in addition to the weight of acknowledged talents, he now united the authority of age and long distinguished public service. In May, 1807, the Legislature of Connecticut remodeled the State Judiciary, and Ellsworth was appointed Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court. He accepted this appointment, but, finding that the decline of his health would impair his usefulness for the duties of the office, he resigned it before the adjournment of the Legislature. The nephritic complaints to which he had been so long subject attained a fatal violence this year. He died Nov. 26, 1807, and was buried in the cemetery at Windsor. A monument, erected by his children and suitably inscribed, ‡ marks his resting-place.

"Ellsworth died greatly regretted, as in his life he had been admired for his extraordinary endowments, his accomplishments as an advocate, his integrity as a judge, his patriotism as a legislator and ambassador, and his exemplariness as a Christian."

* See, in this connection, and with reference to Ellsworth's share in this convention, a most interesting article in The Century magazine, July, 1887, entitled, "An Incident in the Life of John Adams," by the historian, Hon. George Bancroft.

Dear Mrs. Ellsworth:—I shall leave France next month, let our business, which is yet unfinished, terminate as it may. If it please God that I see my family and friends once more, I shall certainly love them better than ever.

PARIS, AUGUST 5, 1800.

OLIVER ELLSWORTH.

‡ Monument in Old Cemetery at Windsor:

In Memory of OLIVER ELLSWORTH, LL.D., an Assistant in the Councils and a Judge of the Superior Court of the State of Connecticut. A member of the Convention which formed, and of the State Convention which adopted, the Constitution of the United States; Senator and Chief-Justice of the U. S.; one of the Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary who made the Convention of 1800, between the United States and the French Republic.

"Amiable and exemplary in all the relations of domestic, social, and Christian character, permanently useful in all the offices he sustained, whose great talents, under the guidance of inflexible, consummate wisdom and enlightened zeal placed him among the first of the illustrious Statesmen who achieved the Independence, and established the American Republic. Born at Windsor, April 29, 1745, and died Nov. 26, 1807."

Mr. Ellsworth is described as having been tall and erect. His eyes were blue, large, fine, and penetrating, while his brows were arched and heavy; the ordinary expression of his features was pleasant. His manners were plain, simple, and unaffected, yet all in his presence felt the courtness and dignity of his bearing. He was particular as to his personal appearance, and never hurried at his toilet; in public he always appeared in black silk stockings, with silver knee buckles, and wore a fine ruffled shirt. While occupying the seat of justice, his silk robe and powdered hair greatly heightened his natural advantages.

“He was a lover of the peace and order of society; one that respected the public institutions of Christianity, — a professor of the religion of Jesus from youth. In private life he was regular, and strictly temperate. In his intercourse with men he was social, easy of access, and, from the improvement of his mind and that fund of useful knowledge which he possessed, his conversation was improving and highly entertaining. In learning he was not inferior to his successor, Chief Justice Marshall; in labor he was his equal.”

Daniel Webster, on one occasion, in the Senate, referred to Ellsworth as “a gentleman who had left behind him, on the records of the Government of his country, proofs of the clearest intelligence and of the utmost purity and integrity of character.”*

In 1790, Yale College conferred the honorary degree of LL.D. upon Oliver Ellsworth, U. S. Senator. This example was followed by Dartmouth and Princeton Colleges in 1797.

Mr. Ellsworth was an intense and continuous thinker; so much so that he was often oblivious of the presence of those around him. His thinking, too, was generally such as pertained to subjects of national concern, or some important case at court with which he happened to be, for the time, engaged. Whenever he was walking in the hall of his house, as he often did, or sitting by the fireside alone, or with company, his lips would be seen to be moving, and his thoughts were some times distinctly audible.

That Judge Ellsworth did not escape the violence of political criticism any more than his co-peers of that day is evident from the following (few from many) extracts from the Journal of William Maclay (edited and published by Edgar S. Maclay, A.M., New York: D. Appleton & Company, 1890. Maclay was opposed to the Federalists; indeed he was said to have been the “father of the Democratic party).

April 9, 1790

P. 235 Ellsworth reported a bill for the government south of the Ohio. It was to be the same as the government of the Western Territory, mutatis mutandis. I had some previous discourse with Ellsworth on this subject. I can with truth pronounce him the most unemphatic man I ever knew possessing such abilities. I am often led to doubt whether he has a particle of integrity; perhaps such a quality is useless in our country.

January 12th, Wednesday, 1791

A bill was now called up respecting consuls and vice consuls. This bill was drawn and brought in by Ellsworth, and, of course, he hung like a bat to every particle of it. The first clause was a mere chaos — style, preamble, and enacting clause all jumbled together. It was really unamendable, at least, the shortest way to amend it was to bring in a new one.

This same Ellsworth is a striking instance how powerful a man may be in some departments of mind and defective in others. All powerful and eloquent in debate, he is, notwithstanding, a miserable draftsman. The habits of the bar and the lists of litigation have formed him to the former, the latter is men a degree the gift of Nature.

P. 29. May 10, 1789. . . . Ellsworth, the most conceited man in the world, drew up a new resolution
It was to keep the differences out of sight, and to proceed de novo on a title for the President.

June 12th, 1790

P. 290. . . . Ellsworth, a man of great faculties and eloquent in debate, but he has taken too much on himself; he wishes to reconcile the Secretary's (Hamilton's) system to the public opinion and welfare, but it is too much; he cannot retain the confidence of the people and remain in the good graces of the Secretary. He may lose both.

* Prepared especially for this work.

As an instance illustrative of this peculiarity, Mr. Jabez H. Hayden of Windsor Locks once informed the writer that there was a young man engaged in teaching in Mr. Ellsworth's vicinity, to whom the Judge was desirous of showing some attention, and so he invited him to call at his house. The teacher, Mr. A., accordingly called one evening, and was ushered into the parlor, where the family was seated before the fire, the Judge himself in front and deeply absorbed, as usual, in his own meditations, talking away in a low voice to himself. The others arose and greeted Mr. A. as he entered, while the Judge never even noticed that any one had entered, but went on thinking for some time. After the visitor had been engaged awhile in conversation with the family, and was beginning to feel somewhat at ease, all at once the Judge happened to look up and espied him for the first time. Supposing he had just come in, he arose and greeted him very cordially, and began to introduce him to the others.

It was his custom often to ride from Windsor to Hartford, in court time, on horse-back, and to take a boy behind him to bring back the horse. This boy, in giving an account of his rides, said that the Judge was all the time talking to himself about some case in court, and never seemed to know that any one was with him.

His daughter, Fanny — Mrs. Wood — said that her father was accustomed to use snuff, and that, when he was more than ordinarily engaged in thinking, or in writing, he would take out his box at frequent intervals and go through the form of taking a pinch, and would then drop most of the snuff in little piles on the carpet near him. His family sometimes judged of the intensity and depth of his meditations by the number of these piles of snuff around his chair. At one time, believing, as well he might, that he was in the habit of taking snuff too often, he carried his box into the garret and deposited it on the top of the stairs, thus obliging himself to ascend and descend two flights of stairs every time he wanted a pinch. But, finding that this consumed too much time, he finally kept his box again in his pocket, and probably never entirely relinquished the habit.

Although he was necessarily absent from home much of the time and engrossed with important public interests, he was strongly attached to his family and to his neighbors, and was always rejoiced when his duties allowed him to return.

He made but little account of table indulgences. His eating he seemed to regard as simply a means of enabling him to continue his working and thinking. Indeed, the latter process was not often interfered with by his meals. When his meal was ready, and he had been summoned, he usually moved toward the table without delay, saying, "Who eats? who eats?" Very little talking was ever done there by the other members of the family. The head of the family was so busy with his thoughts that the rest felt little disposition to interrupt their current.

Among his many excellences he was entirely devoid of any foolish pride or ostentation. His father had given him a farm and house in Wintonbury (now Bloomfield) before he was married and about the time he began to practice law in Hartford. He was accustomed to walk into the city during court time, and to walk back in the evening, that he might attend to his home cares. One day, as he was walking into Hartford he met an acquaintance riding in his own carriage. His friend jocularly addressed him with, "I am surprised to see a man like you going on foot; why don't you ride?" "I have observed," answered Mr. E., "that most men have to walk some part of their lives, and I prefer to do my walking while I am young and able to do it."

As a speaker Mr. Ellsworth was rapid in utterance, concise in his language, and deeply in earnest, rather overwhelming his listeners by the force of his argument than winning his way by any artful and pleasing form of words.

He was a man of majestic and commanding mien. The best likeness of him, by far, is contained in the life-size painting of himself and wife, by Earl, an English painter of celebrity, which still occupies its old position in the family mansion at Windsor. The bust made by Angur of New Haven (from several smaller likenesses, and from one or two sittings of Mrs. Wood, whose brow and forehead bore quite a resemblance to his), which is in the Supreme Court Room at Washington, has some of his looks, but is altogether too stern.

The Emperor Napoleon, who was First Consul of France, when Mr. Ellsworth, with Messrs. Davie and Murray, was sent to negotiate a treaty with that country, was at once impressed with Mr. E.'s looks and bearing at his official presentation, and remarked to some one near him, "We shall have to make a treaty with that man."

The Judge was a devout man and a sincere Christian; a statesman guided by religious principle. Mrs. Wood told us that, on his return from France, after a period of anxious care and of physical exhaustion, greatly increased by a malady that at last proved fatal, as he alighted in front of his home at Windsor and in a state of great weariness, he was so impressed with a sense of God's goodness in bringing him safely home that he paused at the outside of the gate and bowed his head upon it, there offering up a brief prayer of thanksgiving for his preservation, before speaking a word to his family.

A description and picture of the Chief Justice's mansion at Windsor will be found on page 432 of Vol. I.

FAM. 37. William Wolcott<sup>2</sup> (Gov.), (Chief Justice Oliver,<sup>3</sup> Capt. David,<sup>4</sup> Junr.,<sup>5</sup> Justus<sup>1</sup>), grad. Yale Coll., 1810; "studied law at the then celebrated Law School at Litchfield, Conn., under Judges Reeves and Gould, and in the office of his brother-in-law, Chief Justice Williams. He was drawn towards the law by a natural taste and hereditary proclivity, and prosecuted its study with great energy and high purpose. He mastered it with great painstaking, neglecting not the slightest means to familiarize himself with it. It was his habit at this time to write on blank pages of the interleaved copies of the elementary works, which he had thus prepared for the purpose, all the new decisions in the American and English courts, thus keeping himself informed of the exact state of the law on any point that might arise. He was admitted to the bar in 1813, and in a city where the progress of a young lawyer is seldom rapid, his success was such that in 1817, when Judge Williams, whose practice was second to none at the Connecticut bar, was elected to Congress, Mr. E. was taken into partnership with him and placed, for two years, in the management of his extensive business. By this time, Mr. Ellsworth's own reputation as an able lawyer had brought him an extended practice, in which he continued with unabated ardor for sixteen years. In 1827 he was sent to the United States Congress as a Whig representative; continued there for five years, and resigned at the close of the twenty-third Congressional session. His congressional record was highly honorable to himself and satisfactory to his constituents; as a member of the Judiciary Committee, he was active in preparing measures to carry into effect Pres. Jackson's proclamation against the nullification of South Carolina; he was one of the Cong. committee to investigate the affairs of the U. S. Bank at Phila.; to him, more than to any one else, is due the extension of the Copyright Law; and he was the unflinching advocate of a moderate protective policy, such as should develop home manufacture.

Returning to his home in 1831, he soon regained his lucrative practice; but, in 1838, was persuaded, much against his own wishes, to stand in nomination for Governor, and was elected by a large popular majority, and continued in the office four years, by successive re-elections. During this period he was twice offered and declined an election to the U. S. Senate. He continued at the bar until 1845, when the Legislature elected him a Judge of the Superior Court, and the Supreme Court of Errors. He remained on the bench as an associate Judge of the Supreme Court until his office expired (1861) by limitation of law upon arriving at the age of 70. Then, full of honors, and still in the use of his vigorous intellectual powers, he retired to the well-earned rest of private life — but not an idle life, for his interest in public affairs remained unabated.

He received the degree of LL.D. from Yale College in 1838; he was Professor of Law at Trinity College, Hartford; one of the original incorporators (and, at the time of his death, president of the Board of Directors) of the American Asylum, at Hartford, for the Education and Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb; president of the Board of Directors of the Hartford Retreat for the Insane.

He was a Puritan of the best stock. His honesty was of perfect whiteness. Rufus Choate once said of him, in a speech before a legislative committee of Mass., as a man of "hereditary capacity, purity, learning, and love of the law," adding, "If the land of the Shermans, and Griswolds, and Daggetts, and Williamsses, rich as she is in learning and virtue, has a sounder lawyer, a more upright magistrate, or an honest man in her public service, I know not his name." In Judge Ellsworth were hereditary qualities of great mental and moral worth. Like his father, the Chief Justice, he was remarkable for the simplicity of his tastes and habits. In manner he was dignified; in person he was tall and finely proportioned, with as fine a personal presence and bearing as any man of his time; he was a good speaker and had a fine voice; in conversation he was earnest and sincere, and all his intercourse was marked by kindness and integrity of nature. The crown of his enduring character was his Christian walk and conversation. He early professed Christ and, ever after, through all his membership in the old Centre church of Hartford, was an humble and faithful follower of his Lord.

He delighted in theological studies and discussions, and took a very active part in religious movements. He was a prominent friend of the great charitable and missionary enterprises, was much interested in Sunday-schools, and even after he had attained a high official position, he continued his duties as a teacher in the school connected with his church. From 1821 until his death, a period of 47 years, he held the office of deacon in the Centre church. In all things he was an admirable representative of New England, a man of old-time integrity, sincerity, solidity of character. Sermon preached at the Funeral of Hon. Wm. W. Ellsworth, by Rev. Geo. H. Gould, Pastor of the Centre Church, &c., &c., Hartford, 1868. Psalm xii. 1.

C., 1810; studied law with Judge Gould at Litchfield, Conn.; m. and settled in W. in practice of law, but was not strongly wedded to his profession, and indulged in the pursuits of agriculture; had a spirit of enterprise, and was for a time extensively engaged in building improvements in Hartford. In 1832 he was appointed by President Jackson as Chief Commissioner among the Indian tribes to the south and west of Arkansas. In this service he made several extensive journeys towards the Rocky Mountains, in one of which he was accompanied by Washington Irving, who thus obtained the materials for his "Tour on the Prairies." At the end of two years Mr. E. was placed at the head of the U. S. Patent Office, a position which he held for ten years, and was then appointed U. S. Land Commissioner, and settled at Lafayette, Ind. Here he made extensive entries of the public lands in that State, which resulted in making him the largest landholder and farmer in the West. Failure of health induced him to remove to Fair Haven, Conn., in 1856, where he d. 27 Dec., 1858. He left a large bequest to Yale College. He was in his views and calculations a man largely ahead of his times. Before his death he was enthusiastic in his belief that the time would come when steam would be used to plow the great western prairies and to secure the crops, etc. Indeed these views were afterwards brought up, after his death, when his will was being contested, to prove his unsoundness of mind and incapacity to make a will.

FAM. 91. James William (Edgar B., Elisha, John, Thos., T., Thos., Josias), m. 4 Nov., 1874, Eva Frances (da. Oliver M. and Rebecca C. Williams) Butler, b. 16 July, 1852, who d. 3 Nov., 1888, res. Chicago, Ill. JAMES WILLIAM ELLSWORTH was born at Hudson, Summit Co., Ohio, October 13, 1849. His mother, Mary H. Dawes, is a daughter of Judge Dawes of Maine, and the early associations of her husband, Edgar B. Ellsworth, and herself on the Western Reserve with the New England ideals and spirit, had much to do in forming the character of their son. James W. Ellsworth grew to youthful manhood in an atmosphere characteristic and vitalizing. His father was an earnest Republican, and the Western Reserve was the battle ground of discussion on which ideas of liberty were sure to have supremacy. His mother constantly held before him the true conception and value of life and life's privileges of culture. As a boy it was his dream to gather about him the ministries of books and pictures that his business career might serve the higher end of education and character. Hardly out of his youth he began his career in Chicago. A partnership followed upon his industry and success, as, at length a large business in mines and coal came to demand his time. His education at Hudson in the preparatory school of Western Reserve College, had only stimulated desire. Thrown upon his own resources, and in the ardent pursuit of his tasks as a business man in the large and growing West, he still found time for the cultivation of his artistic tastes. A marriage with Miss Eva F. Butler brought him affection, ennobling associations, and a still more quick desire for the true and beautiful. Mrs. Ellsworth died in 1888, leaving him and their two children a precious influence. His public spirit has manifested itself in his labors as one of the South Park Commissioners, as an early friend and patron of the Art Institute, as president of the Inter-State Exposition and as one of the directors of the World's Columbian Exposition. He was one of the founders of the Union League Club, Mr. Ellsworth has collected many choice specimens of art in sculpture, pottery, and coins. His private library, distinguished as it is by the presence of many unique specimens, above all the "Gutenberg Bible," is only equaled by his collection of paintings, the chief and consummate canvas being a well-known portrait by Rembrandt. Children:

Thomas Hooker's company in 1636; rem. to Northampton abt. 1654; was a first settler there and witness to a deed from the Indians to Maj. John Pyncheon, for the Hartford Co'y, of land comprising the town of Hadley; ret. to Htfd. abt. 1660 and, same yr., became poss. of a large tract of land on E. side Great River, at Podunk, in what is now So. W., and which, with aid of his sons, he began to improve. In 1666 his sons, John and Samuel, resided there, and he was, in 1669, the only freeman of the name in W. In 1672, among those appointed to work the roads in W., were Edward, Sr., Edward, Jr., and John Elmer. He was killed by Indians, in June, 1676 (during the King Philip's War), probably at Podunk, or on his way thither, for he seems to have retained a res. and ppy. in Htfd. until his death.  Mass., but left there before 1715, and in 1716 '17 was at New Haven. In a notice of the town of Westborough, Mass., written 1767, by Rev. Eleazer Barkman, it is stated that "a church was gathered here, Oct. 28, 1724," and adds, in a note, "Mr.
 Daniel Elmer, candidate for the ministry from Conn., preached here several years, and received a call from the people, but there arose difficulties, and though he built upon the farm which was given for the first settled minister, and dwelt upon it, yet, by the advice of an eccl. council, he desisted from preaching here, and a quit claim being given him of the farm, he sold, and with his family rem. to Springfield

ENO (Enno, Enos). [For the very thorough enlargement and revision of this genealogy, (as compared with that given in our first edition,) we are indebted to Rev. HORACE EDWIN HAYDEN of Wilkesbarre, Pa., thanks are also due to Dr. HENRY C. ENO of Saugatuck.] The name is thus written in official papers in Conn. The final s was added by Gen. Roger Enos, but was always silent. "There has always been a tradition that the family came from France." That word "always" is to cover a period of nearly 250 years, 1646-1891. It is worthless unless the tradition was written down by some one early in the 18th century. The name "Ennew," pronounced "Ennoo," has long existed in Colchester Co., Essex, Eng. The Rhode Island family of Enos pronounced their name with an "s." It is found written in the 18th century Emis, and "Eanoss." The Delaware Enos family doubtless descend from the Rhode Island family. James Enos' trade of a barber is as much English as French. In his day no man in London could vote unless he was a member of one of the trade guilds of that city. Nor could he be elected Alderman, Sheriff, or Lord Mayor of London until he had served his apprenticeship in a trade guild. The Lord Mayor was required to be a member of one of the twelve great Livery Companies. James Eno had probably learned his trade of barber surgeon in the Barber Surgeon Company of London, of which Sir Astley Cooper and other eminent surgeons were apprentices. New England, Maryland, and Virginia were largely settled by men who had thus learned their trades as apprentices to the English Craft Guilds. Isaac Allerton of the Maryflower, whose descendants are among the most distinguished of New England and Virginia people, learned his trade in the Merchant Tailor's Company, London. John Gedney of Salem, Mass., "vintner" and "inn-keeper," and his son, Bartholomew Gedney, "ship carpenter," ancestors of the noble family of Fairfax in Virginia had learned their trades there.<sup>20</sup>

With his son, James,<sup>2</sup> owned lds. at Massacoe. In W. Ld. Rec., under date of 28 Nov., 1663, is rec. gr. of "a stray [i. e., a strip, or small, unused piece] of ld." to James Eno, "in the Palizado, to build him a shop upon, to barber in, and he has now built it"—see, also, chapter on Early Settlers and Distribution of Home Lots. {In corroboration of this hint at James Enos's business, there still exists in the possession of a member of the Eliphalet Eno family of Torrington, Conn., a very curious shaving, or barber's bowl, such as were used by the surgeon-barbers of olden times, and are even now used in Spain and some other European countries. This bowl, of which we give a picture (from photograph), is of coarse delft, or crockery, of a grayish-white color; is 38 inches on its outside, and 24 inches on its inner circumference, and has on one side of its rim a circular indentation, intended to fit around the neck and under the chin of the person being shaved, while nearly opposite to it is a hole, or dent, in the rim, evidently for the thumb. There is, also, another hole in the rim of the bottom of the bowl, for the purpose of inserting a string which encircled the waist of the customer, to hold it in place. The inner face of the bowl is decorated with representations of the various utensils and adjuncts of the barber's trade (viz., seissors, razor, combs, soap, and brush, and the date 1663) done in blue and under-glazing, as is, also, the conventional ornamentation of the border.

In the same family is kept a very ancient Eno baptismal blanket and "fixings," thus described by the present owner, Mrs. Henry J. Jackson, a. 70, a grand-dau. of Eliphalet Eno of Torrington, Conn.: "This baptismal robe is a piece of cloth, of mixed cotton and silk, quite thick, with stripes of various colors and shades (drab green, blue, and red, very gay). It is 3 feet 4 inches in length, and 2 feet 8 inches wide, of two breadths; a pair of little shoes of the same material, 8 in. long; a pair of mitts (very small) of drab linen, embroidered upon the back and around the thumb with silk thread, and tipped at end with red silk; then a tiny little cap of silk of darker stripes and trimmed around with same as robe." In the hands of Mr. John S. Eno of Brewsters, N. Y., is an ancient sword said to have been brought from England by the Emigrant Eno, which has been handed down for several generations in the line of the eldest son.—H. R. S.]

FAM. 12. [Eliphalet<sup>1</sup> (Sam.,<sup>2</sup> Jas.,<sup>2</sup> Jas.<sup>1</sup>), m. 31 Aug., 1789, Sarah (dau. John) Whiting of Torrington, Conn. He rem. to T.; was memb. Conn. Leg., 1782-1792; one of the original democrats in T. He d. 14 Sept., 1833.

Eliphalet Eno gave land for a burial ground in Torrington, and upon his tombstone are the following lines:

"Here lies the worthy, generous man
Who gave the ground on which we stand;
He gave it for the use of all
Who are interred within this wall."

We understand that the Eno family of Windsor owned land both in Torrington and in Colebrook as original proprietors, and, for a time at least, these lands were run in connection with the Windsor farm.

They drove cattle out to Torrington for the summer, and back to Windsor to winter. "Aunt Eunice Eno" used to come out to Torrington on horseback and knit stockings while riding out and back. Once they were ready to go from Tor. to Windsor with a cart and oxen with a load. One ox was disabled, and "Uncle Ashbel" put a horse in with the other ox, and made the trip safely. Eliphalet Eno saw (when a boy) a man bring home to Windsor in his pocket two potatoes, from New Haven or elsewhere, saying to his wife: "They say these potatoes, when roasted, are as good as an egg." The potatoes were planted in the garden, and Mr. Eno saw them harvested in the fall, nearly half a bushel, probably the first potatoes raised in Windsor.

When a young man, Eliphalet Eno went down the river in his own boat, after salt for himself, and to do errands for his neighbors. On the way home his boat swamped and all the cargo was lost. Mr. Eno said, "I was poorer than any man I know, for my own property was gone, and I had no money to pay my neighbors for what they had entrusted to me." FAM. 15. Roger<sup>1</sup> (Maj. Gen.) (David, Jas., Jas.), b. Simsbury, 1729, d. Colchester, Conn., 6 Oct., 1808. Always spelled his name "Enos." He m., Windsor, 10 Mch., 1763, Jernsha (dan. of Daniel and Esther Moore) Hayden of W.; she was b. W., 23 Nov., 1739; d. Irasburg, Vermont, 20 Mch., 1830. General Enos was highly educated, handsome in appearance, and a man of more than ordinary ability. He entered the military service of Connecticut, 1759, his name heads the list of volunteers from Windsor for the Canada campaign of 1759-60. The Conn. Assembly successively promoted him for services in the field, as follows: Ens. of 1st Co., Col. Phineas Lyman's Reg., Mch., 1760, Lieut. of same Co. at Montreal, Canada, Sept., 1760; Adj't of the Reg't, 1761, during which year he also acted as Capt.-Lieut. of 1st Co.; 1st Lieut. of same Co., 1762; Capt. of 5th Co., Col. Israel Putnam's Reg't, 1761, in expedition against Indians. He accompanied his command in exped. against Havana, 1762. In 1773 he was app. on a commission composed of Col. Israel and Rufus Putnam, Phineas Lyman, and himself, to survey the lands in the Mississippi Valley granted by the Crown to the provincial troops engaged in the French war and the Havana campaign, and from which resulted the colony settled at Natchez, Miss., by Col. Lyman. In 1775 he entered the Continental Army as Lieut.-Col. of the 22d Reg't in Arnold's Exped. to Canada; returned from that exped. with his command, 25 Oct., 1775, and on 1 Dec., 1775, was tried by court-martial on the charge of "quitting his commanding officer without leave," and was "honorably acquitted," his return being a necessity to preserve his troops from starvation. The circumstances of this case are forcibly stated in the admirable defense of Enos's conduct, made by Rev. Horace Edwin Hayden of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in an article entitled, "Gen. Roger Enos; A Lost Chapter of Arnold's Expedition to Canada, 1775," pub. in the May (1885) number of the Magazine of American History.

Resigning his commission (as then Lieut. Col. of 16th Conn. Reg't.) 18 Jan., 1776, we find him, in May, 1777, serving on a committee of Windsor citizens to secure a bounty of $20 to each man who should enlist in the Continental service. He afterwards commanded one of the regiments thus raised and stationed in the S. W. cor. of the State. Late in 1779 he left the Conn. service and rem. to Vermont, where, with others, he settled the town of Enosburg, March, 1780. In 1781 he was appointed Brig. Gen., and placed in command of all the Vermont troops then in service. In 1787 he was elected Maj. Gen. of 1st Division of the State of Vermont, which position he held until 1791, when he resigned, having been for over thirty years almost continuously in the military service of his country.

From 1781 to 1792 he was a member of the Vermont Board of War, of the State Assembly, of the House Committee to settle the N. H. and Vt. controversy, and a Trustee of the University of Vermont, elected by the Assembly, also one of the House Committee to consider the Vermont resolutions passed by the Continental Congress. From his entrance into the State in 1779 until 1792 he was one of the most prominent actors and most honored figures in the history of Vermont, where none ever doubted his loyalty to the United Colonies, his military ability, or his moral courage. In 1792, at the age of 63, worn out with long and active service, he resigned all public offices, and retired to Colchester, Vt., where he passed his remaining days with his daughter, Mrs. Gen. Ira Allen. He died 18 Oct., 1808, a. 79, and was buried at Burlington, Vt., in the same plot as Ethan Allen and Ira Allen, the latter of whom married one of Roger Enos's daughters. (*Ch. (bp. W. C. 1. William, b. 2 July, 1832. There is an interesting incident connected with the life of this individual, that is worthy of a place in this genealogy. Ammi Filley, father of William, removed to Michigan when this boy was about a year old, and located with his family in the town of Jackson, then a wilderness, where, by industry and economy, he soon became the possessor of a good farm. Although surrounded by savage tribes, he had no fear, as they were apparently friendly. On the 24 of August, 1837, William, then a child of five years of age, went out for a swamp near by with a hired girl, to gather berries. The swamp was between the house of Mr. Filley and the dwelling of Mr. Mount, the father of the girl, and where they were to spend the night. After picking berries for a time William expressed a wish to go home, whereupon the girl led him to the road, and pointed out the way to Mr. Mount's, which was in sight. But on the girl's arriving at the house, she learned he had not been there; nor had he been to the house of his parents'. When upon an alarm was immediately given, and the whole population commenced a diligent search for the lost child, continuing all day and night for more than a week, but in vain. Finally, Mr. Filley began to suspect foul play by the Indians, and after making repeated inquiries of the different tribes and families in the vicinity, and making pecuniary offers to the chiefs and influential men, Mr. Filley himself it crossed for months the wilds of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa, without success, and, returning to his family, gave him up as lost. Time rolled on, for William, though lost, was not forgotten, till his mother, finally, through grief, sank into an untimely grave. After the death of his wife, Mr. Filley visited a connection, his former home, and while here his long-lost child was providentially restored to him. It seems the lad, before reaching the house of Mr. Mount, was overtaken and kidnapped by a party of Indians, who happened to pass that way, and was forced to accompany them in all their migrations, until he was captured from them, in 1842. Upon reaching the city visited Albany, N. Y., where his father was discovered among them, but no clue could be obtained from them by the authorities of the city in regard to the paternity of the child. He was therefore placed in their orphan asylum. Subsequently to this, in 1844, Mr. Cowles of Scotland, Mass., being in want of a boy in his family, was recommended to this place, whither he went, and from whence he brought home this lad to his residence in Scotland. The facts in relation to the boy, so far as the transactions at Albany were concerned, came to the knowledge of the Rev. Dr. Cooley of Granville, Mass., who having heard of the circumstances under which the child was lost, communicated the intelligence to Mr. Marvin, the grandfather of the boy, and, without delay, made known the same to Mr. Filley, then in Connecticut. From the knowledge thus obtained, he (Mr. Filley) visited Mr. Cowles in Scotland, where the lad then resided; and, though somewhat changed by time and exposure, yet his appearance was a counterpart to other members of the family, and by a mark on his head, and a well-remembered scar on his hand, he was fully identified. From the boy's story, it appears he had constantly lived in the same family, which consisted of Indians, Paul Pyle and Phoebe, his wife, with their dau., Martha, and Thos. Williams, who had adopted him as their son, he supposing himself an Indian boy. He had an indistinct recollection of attending school but when and where he knew not, but remembered he did not go to school with Indians. The first place he recollects of having visited was Green Bay. In the summer they wandered back and forth through Michigan, New York, and sometimes visited Connecticut; at one time encamped several weeks in Stonington. In the winter they quartered in wigwams, and lived on small game, such as skunks, rabbits, and bullfrogs, the latter of which was to them a rich repast. Occasionally they made a few baskets, which they sent William to the nearest grocery to exchange for whisky. In all his wanderings he traveled barefoot, summer and winter, suffering from cold, hunger, and fatigue.

FISKE. [This sketch, written by his son, Rev. Geo. McCLELLAN FISKE, D.D., of Providence, R. I., is a faithful portraiture of one who well deserves the lasting remembrance of those whom he so long and usefully served.]

Marcus Lyon (M.D.), 7th s. of Rufus and Irene (Scripturae) Fiske, was b. in Willington, Conn., 16 Dec., 1817. His gt. gd. fthr., Stephen Fiske, came to W. from Watertown, Mass., the first settlement and home of the name in this country. In Eng. the Fiskes were an ancient Suffolk family, not titled, but of high respectability, bearing a gentleman's coat-of-arms, granted by Henry VI. Lieut. Rufus Fiske, gd. f. of our subject, was an officer in the Revel. War, one of the early magistrates of Willington, and of its first representatives in the State Legislature. Marcus was dependent for educational advantages upon the public schools, the village academy, and private tutors, all of which he improved to the utmost degree. Likewise, as a traditional New Englander, he taught school for several terms at different places in Conn., R. I., and Mass. Deciding upon the medical profession, he made for it a very thorough preparation. After enjoying the preceptorship of Dr. Alden Skinner of Vernon, Conn., Dr. Robert Grosvenor of Killingly, Conn., and Dr. Wm. Grosvenor of Providence, R. I., he completed his course of study at the Berkshire Medical College, Pittsfield, Mass., then an institution of much celebrity. He then went to Philadelphia, and became a private pupil of the distinguished Dr. Geo. McClellan, founder of both the Jefferson and the Pennsylvania Medical Colleges. Entering the latter, in which Dr. McC. was then a Professor, he was grad. with the degree of M.D., 4 Mch., 1842.

He soon after established himself in East Windsor, Conn., at Broad Brook, where he remained until the autumn of 1864, when, on the death of Dr. Joseph Olmsted of Warehouse Point (E. W.) and at the solicitation of the people of that part of the town, he rem. thither, spending there the remainder of his life, and dying there 2 Apl., 1888.

Among physicians Dr. F. was widely known and honored as a Fellow of the Conn. Med. Society, and as one of its oldest members. An experience of over forty years gained him the best reputation as a practitioner, a reputation which carried his practice also into six or seven of the towns adjoining his own. His splendid skill and talents were always at the service of every one who needed them. He was quick and accurate in diagnosis, sanguine, confident, hope inspiring to his patients; never at a loss for an expedient; always present minded and full of resources. To the last, even with Death's hand upon him, he toiled to relieve human suffering. As his biographer (of the Conn. Med. Soc'y) has said of him: "Dr. Fiske was a man of great energy and of more than ordinary ability, commanding at all times the respect of his associates in the profession, beloved in an uncommon degree by those to whom he administered in their hour of affliction and gloom." East Windsor has had no citizen of more sterling intellectual and moral merit, nor one more worthily endeared to its people. A man of most decided opinions, political and ecclesiastical, which he held regardless of their bearing upon his temporal interests; of entire independence of mind, and of stout moral courage, he was for these very qualities respected, even by those who differed with him most. And, withal, he was a man of great modesty and lowliness of mind, never putting himself forward, nor seeking to sit down in the highest room. Well-read, and unusually versed in history and political science; with a clear and logical mind, and gifted with ready speech, he was repeatedly urged to enter public life; which, however, he resolutely declined.

He was one who consecrated his calling to the glory of God, and was deeply interested in all religious matters. Reared under Baptist traditions, he was, on reaching manhood, attracted by that branch of the Holy Catholic Church, known in the U. S. as the Prot. Epis. Church, and was confirmed in Grace church Broad Brook, of which he was one of the founders and a vestryman, and, during his connection with it, a main support. Subsequently, for many years, he was a vestryman and warden of St. John's church, at W. Pt. The clergy ever found him a loyal condjutor, a wise counselor, and a sympathizing friend; and, during his long professional career, he never accepted a fee for his services from a minister of any fortunate marriage crowned the misery of his condition, and, in 1769, while yet a young man, he became an adventurer of fortune. After many vicissitudes he became a resident watchmaker of Trenton, N. J., where he exercised his trade at the commencement of the Revolution. The demand for arms induced him to undertake the business of a gunsmith for the American forces, which exposed his property to destruction when the British entered the village in Dec., 1776. He joined the New Jersey troops and endured the rigors of a winter camp at Valley Forge. Returning thence, he recommenced the trade of a silversmith in Bucks Co., Penn., occasionally traversing the county to repair the watches and clocks of the inhabitants. Having procured an appointment as deputy surveyor from the State of Virginia, he started for Kentucky, with a knapsack upon his back and a compass in his hand in the spring of 1780. In the fall of 1781 he returned to Philadelphia, having made extensive surveys between the Kentucky and Green rivers. In the spring of 1782, collecting the payments of $1,000 which had been received in Continental currency, he was barely able to raise £150 Penn. currency, as a capital for Western adventure. At the mouth of the Muskingum, this remnant of his fortune, invested in flour and goods, was captured and destroyed by Indians, two of his party killed, and nine taken prisoners. Fitch had the address to conciliate Capt. Bullhoe, the leader of the band; and the physical endurance to sustain the rigors of Indian captivity. After various adventures he reached Warminster in the winter of 1782-3, penniless and dejected. Here there came to him (April 15, 1785,) the idea of utilizing steam as a motive power, first for carriages, then in navigation. "I was then altogether ignorant," says Fitch, "that a steam engine had ever been invented. The propelling of a boat by steam is as new as the rowing of a boat by angels, and I claim the first thought and invention of it." His first model of a steamboat with paddle wheels was made by him in Cobe Scout's log shop, and tried on a small stream on Joseph Longstreth's meadow, about half a mile from Davisville, Southampton township, Pa., and realized his anticipations. Its machinery was of brass, its paddles of wood; and the model, when exhibited to several of the scientific and distinguished gentlemen of Philadelphia, secured from them strong letters of recommendation, which helped him much in his presentation of his claims to Congress and some of the State legislatures. In Sept., 1785, he presented a drawing and models of his boat to the Am. Philosoph. Society of Philadelphia, and early in 1786, the State of New Jersey enacted a law, giving him "the sole and exclusive right" of constructing, using, etc., all kinds of boats, or water craft "impelled by the force of fire or steam," in all the navigable waters of that State. On the 20th of July, in that year, he was experimenting with a skiff having a 3 in. cylinder engine, moving a screw of paddles, which failed to meet his wishes. Disheartened by his failures and stung by the jibes of the lookers-on, he repaired to the tavern and indulged freely in liquor, but the next day, feeling much ashamed of himself, he retired early to rest, and as he himself relates, "about 12 o'clock at night, the idea struck me about cranks and paddles for rowing of a boat, and for fear that I should forget or lose the idea, I got up about 1 o'clock, struck a light, and drew a plan. I was so excited that it was impossible to sleep." This plan was put into execution on a skiff, July 27th, much to his satisfaction. His finances being now exhausted by his experiments, he applied to the Penn. Legislature for a loan of £150, and failing to get it (by a vote of 28 to 32) he applied to its Speaker, Gen. Thos. Mifflin, for individual aid, in a letter in which he uses these prophetic words: "Honored Sir, I am of opinion that a vessel may be carried 6, 7, or 8 miles per hour by the force of steam, and the larger the vessel the better it will answer: and am strongly inclined to believe that it will answer for sea Voyages as well as for inland Navigation, which would not only make the Mississippi as navigable as Tide water, but would make our vast Territory on those waters an inconceivable fund in the Treasury of the United States. Perhaps I should not be thought more extrav agant than I already have been . . . when I assert that six tons of Machinery will act with as much force as ten tons of men, and should I suggest that the navigation between this [country] and Europe may be made so easy as shortly to make us the most popular Empire on Earth, it probably, at this time, would make the whole very laughable." His claims had now so far attracted public attention that exclusive rights for fourteen years to the waters of New York State were granted him 19th March; Delaware, 3d February; Pennsylvania, 28th March; Virginia, 7th Nov., 1787, by the Legislatures of those respective States. In this year, also, his second boat (built in the previous year) was perfected. It was 45 ft. long and 12 ft. beam; its engine was of 12-inch cylinder, and it had 6 oars, or paddles, on each side. Its trial, upon the Delaware, at Philadelphia, 22 Aug., 1787, was witnessed by the members of the Convention for framing the Federal Constitution, then in session in that city, and by nearly all the Members of Congress, except Gen. Washington. Chief Justice Oliver Ellsworth of Windsor, Conn., was on board the steamer, and pronounced it a success. To Fitch, however, its speed was not satisfactory, and he set about raising the money with which to construct a larger boat.

Finally, by the drawing, engraving, and sale of a map of the Northwestern Territory, all of which was done with his own hands in the rude workshop of his friend, Cobe Scout of Warminster (the impressions from the plate being taken on a cider-press), he raised about $800, and in Feb., 1787, formed a stock company (40 shares) and built a boat 60 feet long and 8 feet beam, and moved by paddles at the stern. Its trial trip was to Burlington, — 20 miles distant — the longest trip ever made by a steamboat at that time. At every town along the river banks they were greeted with cheers and waving of handkerchiefs, and when within a few rods of their destination their boiler pipe sprung aleak and they came to anchor. The boiler was soon repaired, and the boat made several trips to Burlington and back without any accident. But the boat only moved at a rate of three miles an hour and the company was discouraged. Another rally was effected, however, the shares doubled, and a new boat built, aptly called The Perseverance. On the 12th of October, 1788, thirty passengers were taken from Philadelphia to Burlington (20 miles, up stream), in three hours and ten minutes. This speed did not satisfy Fitch or those who had a pecuniary interest in the enterprise, and they built a new boat with larger machinery — the cylinder eighteen instead of twelve inches in diameter. Various alterations and improvements were made in the machinery before satisfactory speed was attained. On the 16th of April, 1790, a trial trip was made, and, says Fitch, "although the wind blew very fresh at the northeast, we reigned Lord High Admirals of the Delaware, and no boat in the river could hold its way against us, but all fell astern, though several sailboats which were very light, and heavy sails that brought their gunnales well down to the water, came out to try us."

Several equally satisfactory trips were made with members of the company and invited guests; and Fitch, elated with his success, exclaims: "Thus has been effected by little Johnny Fitch and Harry Voight [an inventive genius whom Fitch often consulted], one of the greatest and most useful arts that has ever been introduced into the world; and although the world and my country does not thank me for it, yet it gives me heartfelt satisfaction."

On the 16th of June, 1790, Governor Thomas Mifflin and the Supreme Executive Council were passengers on this boat, and were so highly pleased that they presented the steamboat company with a suit of flags, the cost of which was £5, 6s. 11d. The speed of the boat was eight miles an hour. It afterwards ran ninety miles one day, and became a regular passenger boat between Philadelphia and Burlington. The two Philadelphia papers, the Pennsylvania Packet and the Federal Gazette, gave notices of the days and time of sailing:

The steamboat is now ready to take passengers, and is intended to set off from Arch street Ferry, in Philadelphia, every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, for Burlington, Bristol, Bordentown, and Trenton, to return on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. Pennsylvania Packet, June 15, 1790.

The same notice was published in the Federal Gazette, June 14, 17, 19, 22, and 24, 1790. In the New York Magazine is an extract from a letter dated August 13, 1790. "Fitch's steamboat really performs to a charm." It is estimated that the boat must have gone at least two or three thousand miles that summer carrying passengers. Was this not a success?

Wishing now a boat large enough to carry freight as well as passengers, the new company was consolidated with the old, and another boat was contracted for—The Perseverance, with the intention of sending it to New Orleans for the navigation of the Mississippi. It was hoped that it would be finished in time to save the benefit of the Virginia law (passed Nov. 7, 1787), which gave Fitch the exclusive right of navigating the Ohio River and its tributaries with the steamboat. In this, the company were disappointed. The boat and machinery were nearly completed, when a violent storm arose, causing it to break from its moorings, and it was blown upon Petty's Island, in the Delaware, opposite the upper part of Philadelphia. The tide being unusually high, the boat was driven so far upon the land that it was impossible to get it off in season to avail themselves of the benefits of the Virginia law. The stockholders became discouraged and refused to furnish any more funds, and Fitch having exhausted all his resources, the boat was abandoned and remained for four years without any change, and was advertised for sale at auction Aug. 18, 1795. Fitch applied to the Federal Congress for a patent, which was granted Aug. 26, 1791, for the term of fourteen years. This document (signed by General Washington, and by the Commissioners, Thomas Jefferson, General Henry Knox, and John Randolph), proved, however, of little use to Fitch, and was destroyed by fire in 1836.

In 1793 Fitch went to France, at the solicitation of the U. S. Consul at L'Orient, Aaron Vail, to build a steamboat. Arriving there at the time of the Revolutionary troubles, he could not obtain any pecuniary assistance. Depositing his papers and specifications in the hands of Mr. Vail, he went to England, remaining in London for a time with his friend, Mr. Leslie, formerly of Philadelphia. In 1794 he returned to the United States, working his passage as a common sailor. He found his way to East Windsor, now South Windsor, to the house of his sister, Mrs. Timothy King, and to the house of his daughter Lucy, Mrs. Kilbourne. After remaining some two years with his sister, he starts off again on his steamboat enterprise. In 1796 he constructs a steamboat out of a ship's yawl. The boat was moved by a screw propeller on a large pond of fresh water in the city of New York, called The Collect, which was afterwards filled, and embraces the ground on which stand the Tombs and other adjacent buildings. In the spring of 1798 Fitch built a model steamboat three feet long, at Bardstown, Kentucky, which was tried upon a small stream near that town.

Some time between the 25th of June and 18th of July, 1796, this remarkable man, broken down with misfortunes, disappointments, and discouragements, committed suicide by poison, in the chamber of a tavern, attended by no relative or friend (except his landlord), and was buried in the graveyard in the presence of six or seven persons. (His will was made June 25th and admitted to probate July 18th.) His remains lie unhonored, in Bardstown, with a rough stone, without inscription, to mark his resting place. His journals and other MS. were deposited in the Philadelphia Library, and formed the foundation of Thompson Westcott's biography of John Fitch.

As to the merits of later claimants: In 1788 Patrick Miller constructed a boat, and William Symington made an engine for it, and on the 14th of October, 1788, it was moved by steam in the lake of Dalswinton, in the presence of several spectators. This did not answer their expectations, and the next year (1789) Mr. Miller had a twelve-horse engine made and fixed to his double-bottomed boat, which was tried on the Clyde and Forth canal, with success. This was England's first successful steamboat experiment. Symington continued his experiments, under the patronage of Lord Dundas, and in March, 1802, two vessels of 70 tons burden each were towed by the steamboat, Charlotte Dundas, 19½ miles in six hours, against very strong head wind. The English declare that this was the first practical steamboat experiment. Fitch, twelve years prior to that, was carrying passengers regularly, according to advertisements, eight miles an hour.

A writer in the Boston Recorder of September 23, 1858, gives Captain Samuel Morey of Orford, N. H., the credit of being the first man to propel a boat by steam: Morey was an original thinker and inventor, commencing his experiments with his little steamer on the Connecticut, as early as 1790. After working three years in perfecting his machinery, he, in the summer of 1794, propelled a small steamer from Hartford to New York at the rate of five miles an hour. Chancellor Livingston, Judge Livingston, Edward Livingston, and John Stevens, went with him from New York to Greenwich. From this time to the time of Fulton's experiments there were many steamboats constructed by different individuals; prominent among them were Oliver Evans, Nicholas I. Roosevelt, and John Cox Stevens. To Stevens is due the credit of making the first maritime voyage. He went with his steamer, the Phœnix, from New York to Philadelphia, in June, 1808. Roosevelt built the first steamboat, the New Orleans, that navigated the Ohio and Mississippi, in 1811. The next claimant, and the one who is very generally accorded the honor of first practically demonstrating the application of steam for moving vessels, is Robert Fulton. It was not until 1803 that Fulton, with the assistance of Robert R. Livingston, our Minister to France, made his experiment with a steamboat on the Seine, at Paris, which was not a success. Three years later he commenced building the Claremont, at New York, in the shipyard of Charles Browne. It was not completed until August, 1807. This boat was a success, but it did not equal the speed of Fitch's boat of 1790 by three miles an hour. Fulton lived in Philadelphia in 1785 and 1786, the time Fitch was making his steamboat experiments in that city, and when he was petitioning Congress for assistance, and the States of Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and New Jersey for exclusive rights to their waters for steam navigation, and when it was in July, 1786, that Fitch made a successful public trial of his skill steamboat on the Delaware, can it for a moment be doubted that Fulton, with his inquisitive mind, was not fully aware of Fitch's inventions? This was more than twenty years before Fulton made his experiments on the Hudson. Some time in 1786 Fulton went to England and spent several years in the family of Mr. West, perfecting himself in the art of painting. After leaving that family, he spent two years in Devonshire, as a painter, and while there became acquainted with the Duke of Bridgewater, famous for his canals, and Lord Stanhope, a lover of mechanics. Owing, probably, to their influence, Fulton first turned his attention to canals and steam navigation. He then went to France, and spent seven years in Paris. While there, he visited Mr. Vail, with whom Fitch had entrusted his drawings and specifications pertaining to his steamboat, and Mr. Vail says, "I lent Mr. Fulton of Paris all the specifications and drawings of Mr. Fitch, and they remained in his possession several months." According to the affidavits made by Robert Weir and Jacob Perkins, Mr. Fulton, in 1801, visited England, and was on board Symington's boat, on the Forth and Clyde canal. To gratify him, the boat was propelled by steam four miles and back, at the rate of six miles an hour. Fulton took drawings of the machinery. Chancellor Livingston, who was aiding Fulton in his steamboat projects, was a passenger on Fitch's boat on the Collect, and was also a passenger on Morey's boat from New York to Greenwich, and no doubt had seen the steamboat experiments of Stevens and Roosevelt on the Hudson. With the drawings and specifications of Fitch, with the drawings and observations on board of Symington's boat, with the observations of Livingston on Fitch's and Morey's boat, it may be asked, to what discovery or invention pertaining to steamboats is Fulton entitled? One writer very justly remarks, "If the inventions of others which Fulton has copied were removed from his boat, nothing would be left but the hull." In 1817 the original patents, drafts, specifications, and models, of Fitch and Fulton, were exhibited before a committee of the New York legislature, raised upon the petition of Governor Ogden of New Jersey. Witnesses were examined, and able counsel employed. Fulton and Livingston were represented by Cadwalader D. Colden and Thomas Addis Emmet; Fitch by Samuel A. Southard, Joseph Hopkinson, and Colonel Ogden. Certificates of Dr. Rittenhouse, Andrew Edlicott, Oliver Evans, and John Ewing, were produced, stating the performance of Fitch's steamboat. General Bloomfield testified that he "had been a passenger on board Fitch's boat on the Delaware in 1787 and 1788, and regarded the experiment as successful." The committee, after much deliberation, reported to the legislature that "The steamboats built by Livingston and Fulton were in substance the invention patented to John Fitch in 1791, and Fitch, during the term of his patent, had the exclusive right to use the same in the United States." What stronger evidence can any one ask than the above to substantiate the claim of Fitch over Fulton to priority in steam navigation?

Fulton, when he commenced his experiments, had the advantage of the models, specifications, drawings, and plans of Fitch; had made a successful trip on Symington's and Miller's steamboat and taken drawings of the machinery; had the benefit of Livingston's observations on Fitch's and Morey's boats; had his engine built in England by James Watts, had influential and wealthy friends to assist him. Fitch, when he commenced his experiments, was not aware that there was a steam-engine in the world; made his own engine with the assistance of common blacksmiths, had to experiment as he progressed to know the relative position and power of the parts; was poor, but by selling lands in Kentucky, which he acquired by surveying, and by limited assistance from friends, surmounted incredible hardships, misfortunes, and discouragements, overcame every obstacle, and demonstrated to the world the first successful steamboat enterprise. To-day Fulton's memory is honored by a statue in the Capitol, from Pennsylvania, but Fitch's lone grave at Bardstown, Kentucky, has only a rough stone without inscription to mark his resting place.* Let the State of Connecticut honor John Fitch, by erecting some fitting monument (preferably a statue, in one of the niches which adorn the front of its noble Capitol at Hartford) to perpetuate the memory of one of her most useful inventors. FOX, Jabez (contrib. by Mrs. M. S. P. Green of Lynn, Mass.) m. 1769, Mary (da. William, Jr., and his 1st wife Janet Archibald) Thompson of No. Bridgewater, b. at Middleborough, Mass., 10 Aug., 1719. He was a clothier at E. W., and built a dam across Ketch Brook, where the Thompsonville carpet factories are now. He was killed in a skirmish bet. Tory dragoons and Con. troops, 20 May, 1780, during Arnold's invasion of the Con. coast. Sgt. Fox raised a company of militia and went to Gen. Putnam's aid, and was surrounded (in a brick schoolhouse) by a superior force. They fought until their ammunition gave out, then sought safety in flight across a field, pursued by the dragoons. Fox was among the last to leave, and was overtaken as he was getting over a fence, and decapitated by a blow from an English broadsword. One other of his party was killed in this skirmish, and six of the dragoons—all were buried in one grave—which Sgt. Fox's son (Capt. Jabez) visited 40 yrs. later. The hat which the Sgt. wore at the time of his death, with a bullet hole in it, and his coat and sword, are now in a museum in the town of Becket, Mass. His wid. abt. 10 yrs. after his death, m. Richard Ely and Elizabeth Lynde) Selden of Lyme, 16 May, 1849; she b. 23 Mch., 1830; d. 13 May, 1871, in Hadlyme; (3) Eliza Jane (daughter David and Huldah Piney) Ellsworth of Windsor, 22 Jan., 1873; b. 4 Jan., 1837. General Elihu Geer attended school in East Hartford, at the academy; he learned the printer's trade and then carried on job printing for fifty years on State St. He was the author and compiler of Geer's Hartford City Directory (acknowledged the model directory of the world), which also gave a succinct history of the city for those fifty years; impressed himself on the city's life by the power of an ardent, original, and invincibly resolute disposition. He taught the printer's trade to four of his sons, who now conduct the business as the Hartford Printing Co.

He founded the famous Congregationalist in 1839; in two years sold it to a Boston firm; the Literary Harvest in 1840; the Hartford Evening Journal and the Hartford Weekly Journal (Whig, Protection, and Henry Clay paper) in 1843; the Conn. Bank Note List in 1849, the first of this kind of papers; a republican in politics, represented the town of Lyme in the Conn. Legislature in 1861 and 1870. He was the author of military measures and laws which are the basis of the present militia system of Conn., and also of other States; from a private he rose to Brigadier General, and labored for twenty-five years, before the war, to perfect the militia system, foreseeing the certainty of war, which few in the North had any belief would come. He was a member of the Old North Congregational church, of whose pastor, Dr. Horace Bushnell, he was an ardent admirer. In 1861 he moved his family to Hadlyme; d. Hadlyme, 27 Mch., 1887; was buried by the Knights Templars in the Old North cemetery in Hartford. Children:

GILBERT, Thomas, of W. in 1644 (see p. 157, Vol. I.) owned land near Henry Stiles, who (being a bachelor) seems to have boarded with him; and G. seems also to have worked S's farm. Lydia Gilbert (whether dau. of Thomas or not, we know not), was indicted in 1651 for causing Henry Stiles's death by witchcraft, and condemned to be hung. Shortly after this trial G. rem. to N. Haven, where he had two bros., and d. there, 1659, his will in N. H. Prob. Rec. gives names of children, but the witch Lydia is not among them. — See Chapter on Windsor Witches (p. 449, Vol. I., also Stiles Geneal., this vol.

GILES, Edward, had (W. C. R.): (1) Tabitha, (2) Edward, bp. 12 Feb., 1769, "in his wife's right."

GILLETT, Jonathan, with his brother NATHAN came to Dorchester, Mass., with Rev. Warham, and (both) to W. with the first emigration (see p. 157, Vol. I). Both he and his wife were members of the orig. D. and W. ch. (O. C. R.); D. W. P. thinks that he probably d. 27 Feb., 1697-8; O. C. R. says: "Jonathan, Sen.," d. 23 Aug., 1677, and in its list of persons taken into W. ch. "and are now living" (the date of this Rec. is Dec. 21, 1677) is mentioned "Wid. Gillett." The Rec. in Gillett-Holcomb Bible, referred to below (see, also, Note, p. 290), says: "Father Gillett dyed in 1667." There is still extant, in the possession of a Windsor family, a copy of the Geneva edition of the Bible, of 1599, commonly known as the "Breeches Bible," because the fig-leaf garment made by our first parents in the Garden of Eden, and which in the King James's Version is called apron, is herein given as breeches. This Bible was brought to New England by this Jonathan Gillett, Sen., and afterwards passed into the hands of the present Holcomb family, prob. through Lois, who was the daughter of Jonathan Holcomb by his second wife, Wid. Mary Gilbet, whom he married 28 June, 1721. Lois Holcomb, b. 5 July, 1748, was married July, 1772, to Noah (father of Perly, father of Dea. Anson) Cooley of North Granby, Conn. In the family, this Gillett-Holcomb Bible was familiarly known as the "Bear Bible," because it was once, in the olden days, placed in a window to keep the sash raised, when a bear, endeavoring to effect an entrance, clawed it, leaving the marks of his claws so deep upon the edges of its leaves, that they are still very plainly to be seen. In this Bible occurs the following manuscript record: "My father Gille[tt] came into new-Englan the second [d] time in June in the yeare 1634 and Jonathan his sonne was born about half a yeare after he cam to land." [The italics are ours.] A jar now in possession of Mr. Norman F. Stoughton of So. Windsor, was, it is said, "brought over" by the first Jonathan Gillett. It is white with blue lines, 6 inches in height and 7 inches in diameter. Ch.:

FAM. 30. Francis<sup>6</sup> (Hon.) (Asht.,<sup>2</sup> Abel,<sup>3</sup> Thos.,<sup>1</sup> John,<sup>2</sup> Joan,<sup>1</sup>), changed the spelling of his family name when young, at the suggestion of a distant relative, to accord with its original French form of Gillette. He was b. in that part of W. now included in Bloomfield, 14th Dec., 1807. At the age of six years he lost his father, and his mother, on her second marriage, two or three years later, took the family to Ashfield, Mass. Owing to the lack of sympathy or interest in him manifested by his stepfather, his childhood was not a happy one; yet, though he could hardly be said to have a home, and was made frequently to feel the loss of his natural father, he exhibited even then those qualities of truthfulness, honor, and courage which afterwards characterized him as a man. Even his harsh stepfather, whose hatred of him seemed almost insane in its malignity, acknowledged that he had never known him to utter a falsehood or use a profane word. When a little more than fifteen years old, young Gillette attended the Ashfield academy, and was not long in finding that he must have a collegiate education; and amid many obstacles and discouragements, with unexampled industry, he fitted himself, in one year's time, to enter Yale College. When the time arrived for him to go to New Haven for examination, his stepfather's wrath burst forth, and, knowing the boy's dutiful obedience to his mother, he persuaded her to interpose and prevent his going. But he had underestimated the quiet boy's force of will. Suspecting the source of her objections (which might have had more force had he not fortunately possessed the means of acquiring an education, independent of her), the young student reasoned with his mother and sought to obtain her approval. Finding, however, that she was too much under her husband's influence to be readily moved, and, determined to have an education, he closed the conference by saying, "Well, mother, I must and will go to college, in spite of father or the devil!" And go he did. In college he was studious, emulative, yet social and popular with his fellows. In the classics and belles lettres he ranked high; and though mathematics were not favorite studies with him, yet he maintained a fair standing in them. He was elected a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, and chosen unanimously by his classmates as their valedictorian. After graduation (1829) he entered a law office, but was compelled by weak lungs to relinquish his legal studies. He took up life again on his little Bloomfield patrimony, as a scientific farmer, upon which, in 1834, he erected a house of un-hewn stone brought from the near mountain side, and which is still a striking feature of the town, set far back from the street, and approached from two directions by winding avenues of trees. This was the west half of his father's farm, of 200 or more acres, lying a mile and a half from the Centre on the Hartford road. Here, for eighteen years, he lived, his health fully restored by his out-of-door life, his mind ever devoted to the interests of Bloomfield and to his beloved family circle.

But he soon, and irresistibly, became a man of mark in larger circles. Upon taking the electors' oath in 1832, he was chosen to represent the town of Windsor in the General Assembly, and, in 1838, received the same honor from Bloomfield, which, three years before, had been incorporated by the Legislature, and which received its name at his suggestion. It was in that year that questions touching the subject of slavery were first pressed upon the attention of the Legislature, and his earnest advocacy of the anti-slavery cause first showed itself in a forcible speech on the proposition to erase from the Constitution of the State the word "white." He had become so thoroughly and permanently identified with the cause of humanity and justice that when, in 1841, the Liberty Party was organized in Connecticut he was nominated as its candidate for governor, notwithstanding his frequent declinations, and this nomination was frequently repeated by the Liberty and Free Soil parties during the next twelve years; and more than once the old stone house sheltered the flying slave en route to Canadian shores and liberty. In 1851 he was elected to fill the unexpired (long) term in the U. S. Senate, vacated by the resignation of Hon. Truman Smith, and his first vote was cast against the Nebraska Bill, which was passed at midnight of the day of his arrival in Washington. It is doing no discredit to the many eminent men who have occupied a seat in our National Senate, from Connecticut, to say that, during his brief term of office, no Connecticut Senator ever departed himself with more of dignity or propriety; none knew better when to speak and when to be silent, while by his votes, not less than by his speeches, he evinced that capacity for statesmanship which caused his retirement from the Senate to be regarded as a serious loss by the ablest statesmen in it.

In matters nearer home, however, Mr. Gillette was ever active. With the cause of temperance he early identified himself, and no man in Connecticut was more consistent and earnest in its advocacy. Some of his most eloquent addresses and his most powerful written appeals were directed against the traffic in intoxicating drinks. And in the promotion of education he was equally active, from the building of the neat little brick schoolhouse in his district, in Bloomfield, to the larger movements which concerned the educational interests of the whole State. From 1838 to 1842 he heartily sympathized with and aided Hon. Henry Barnard in his zealous labors for educational reform. In 1849, at the organization of the State Normal School, he was named as one of its trustees, and was soon after chosen chairman of the Board, an office which he filled with great acceptance for many years. In 1857 he was chosen Acting Visitor of the Board of Visitors of Schools in Hartford, and filled the office with rare fidelity and ability. In 1852 he rem. to Hartford, and, in connection with John Hooker, Esq., his brother in law, purchased the Nook Farm estate, in the management of which, in literary pursuits, and in the performance of his public duties, he found ample enjoyment and won the continued respect of his fellow citizens until his death, Sept. 30, 1879, at the age of 72. He was buried in Farmington, Conn.

FAM. 32 Horace Cornelius (*Horace, *Jabez, *John, *Dan, *Corn., Jonat,) Gillette (which form of the spelling he preferred) spent his boyhood and early manhood chiefly in his native town (Torrington, Conn.), which, at that time, had a high reputation for the excellence of its schools. From his earliest days he had a decided preference for the study of medicine, and, at an early age, began reading with Dr. Case of T., continuing his studies afterward with Dr. Woodward, also of T., who enjoyed a wide reputation as a medical teacher. In the winter of 1826 he attended lectures at the Harvard Medical School, and next year entered the Medical Dep't of Yale College, where he grad. 1829. He immediately located in practice at So. W., where he remained actively engaged and much respected for over 30 years. Oct. 1, 1831, he m. Sarah A. Watson of New Hartford, Conn. A natural love for the curious and antique led him, early in life, to begin a collection of minerals, relics, etc., etc., which ultimately became a valuable and interesting one. The Revol. and Indian history of the State was therein largely represented. He was a ready writer and took much pleasure in collecting facts and materials regarding the early history of East and South Windsor, with an ultimate intention of writing a history of these towns, and a series of papers on these topics was published in the Hartford Times (see Profiter, p. 9, Vol. 1). Dr. Gillette rem., in 1863, to Chicago, Ill., served in the War of the Civ. Rebell. as one of a Volunteer Corps of Surgeons, after the battles at Pittsburgh Landing, and his name is mentioned in "The Roll of Honor" in the Yale Coll. catalogue. After 12 years' residence in C., he rem. to St. Charles, Ill., 35 miles west of C., where he res. until his death, 21 Dec., 1878, in his 52d year, his wife surviving him only 3 months. *Ch. (bp. E. If the records of the third marriage of Thomas shall ever be found, they may prove that this Jona. was his son —D. W. P.] He was several times called in the records Jonathan, sr. His wife Abigail died 23 Apl., 1758, a. 39 years, 6 mos.; he m. (2) (being then called "Lieut." Jonathan) 26 Apl., 1758, Rachel, prob. wid. of Stephen Goodrich, and dau. Jonathan and Mary (Lewis) Gillet, b. 9 Mch., 1737, and who d. 14 Aug., 1798, a. 61. Tradition says that Jonathan had three wives. Ch. (bp. Wbys. Ch. Rec., in which they are called children of Jonathan, sr.):*

Some of the confusion among these Jonathans, in the first edition of this work, undoubtedly arose from the practice, in some of the early records, of writing the name Jonah as Jon, it being thus mistaken for the modern abbreviated form of Jonathan.

Jonathan of West Hartford, is one whom we have failed to connect with the main line; but he evidently belonged to the Windsor Gillettes, and is worthy of commemoration in these pages. We therefore reproduce here the substance of what has been told about him in a little privately printed volume entitled Letters from the Prisons and Prison Ships of the Revolution, by HENRY R. SEILS, M.D., issued in 1865, in a limited edition of 80 copies.

He was b. in the West Division of Hartford Township, Feb. 4, 1738; was a farmer; early enl. in the Revol. service, and was prob. the Lieut. G., of Col. Huntington's reg., who, with a number of other Am. officers, captured at the battle of Long Island, sent (Sept. 5, 1776), by flag, for their baggage and cash. In the retreat after that battle Mr. G., with seven men, were, owing to a scarcity of boats, captured by the British before they could embark. He was at first confined in the prison-ship, but through the influence of John Archer (or Hutton, acc. to another acc't), a Masonic bro., was released and had the liberty of the city on parole. He remained a prisoner in N. Y. city for two years, when his health became so broken down that in the fall of 1779 he was permitted to return to his home in W. H., and d. there 9 Dec., 1779, from the effects of his privations and troubles. During his last illness he said to his son Jonathan, Jr., who was by his bedside, "The war may continue many years, and should you enlist, or be called into the U. S. service, you may be taken prisoner and carried to N. Y. If so, I would have you inquire for Mr. John Archer, a man with whom I boarded after I came from the prison ship, and he will assist you." Singular as it may seem, all these incidents, as suggested by the dying man, did actually occur. The son, after his father's death, enlisted in the service, was captured at Horse-Neck by Col. De Lancey's Light Horse, taken to New York, and imprisoned, as his father had been before him, in the Old Sugar House; notified Mr. Archer of the fact, and was much befriended by him during his imprisonment.

Among "the Seven" to whom Mr. Gillett refers in the following letter, as having been taken with him, were Timothy Watson of East Windsor, and John Waterman; the latter was released from confinement in prison through Masonic influence, and was allowed parole. It is probable, also, that Roger Filer and John Moody, mentioned in the letter, were of Old Windsor.

During his confinement Mr. Gillet addressed a letter to his wife, of which the following is a copy :

"MY FRIENDS. No doubt my mis-fortunes have reached your ears. Sad as it is, it is as true as sad. I was made prisoner the 27 day of August past by a people called heshens (Hessians) and by a party called Gagers, Yagers, or Jagers, the most Inhuman of all mortals. I can't give Room to picture them here; but thus much I at first Resolved not to be taken but by the Impertunity of the Seven taken with me and being surrounded on all sides by numbers I unhappily surrendered; would to God I never had. then I should never [have] known their unmercifull cruelties; they first disarmed me then plundered me of all I had, watch Buckles money and sum Clothing after which they abused me by bruising my flesh with the butts of their [guns]. They knocked me down; I got up and they [kept on] beating me almost all the way to there [camp] where I got shot of them. the next thing was I was almost starved to death by them. I was kept here 8 days [then] sent on board a ship, where I continued 30 days and by much worse than when on shore after I was set on [at New York] confined a strong guard till the 20th day of November after which I have had my liberty to walk part over the City between sun and sun, notwithstanding there generous allowance of provision I must inevitably have perished with hunger had not sum friends in this [city] Relieved my extreme necessity, but I can't expect they can always do it. What I shall do next I know not, being naked for cloths and void of money and winter present, and provisions very skerece, fresh meat one shilling per pound, Butter three shilling, per pound Cheese two shillings Turnips and potatoes at a shilling half peck milk fifteen Coppers a quart Bread equally as dear; & the General says he can't find us fuel thro' the winter tho' at present we Receive sum coles.

I was after put on board seized violently with the dysentary — it followed me hard upwards of six weeks — after that a slow fever, but now I am vastly better — I pray these lines might find you and your children in health and should be glad to here from you if possibly. My sincere love to you and my children — may God keep and preserve you at all times from sin & sickness and death — May he feed and cloth you but above all prepare you all to appeare before his righteous bar, that you might endoe of you. Render you accounts with Joy; my being absent from you I hope don't hinder your being mindfull of your soul's welfare; nor my suffering take your thoughts from your duty to God; never murmur nor Repine at the hand of providence what God doth Remember it is Right teach your Children the paths of Virtue, and to walk therein; may they Remember there Creator in the days of there youth, and live to do much good in there day and generation — may you have the presence of God with you to enable and assist you in this important worke — I love you all, if alive, in the hands of a merciful God who will have mercy on all that seek him, and may you be of that happy number whose God is the Lord, and when you quit this mortal shore may you Reach a far better, where Sorrow and Vexations troubles never come.

After giving you a small sketch of myself and troubles, I will Endeavor to faintly lead you into the poor situation the soldiers are in, especially those taken at long Island, where I was; in fact, there cases are deplorable, and they are Real objects of pity — they are still confined and in houses where there is no fire — poor mortals, with little or no cloths, perishing with hunger, offering 8 dollars in paper for one in silver to Believe their distressing hunger; occasioned for want of food their natures are brook and gone, some almost loose their voices and some their hearing — they are crowded into churches and there gauded night and day. — I can't paint the horable appearance they make — it is shocking to human nature to behold them. — Could I draw the curtain from before you; there expose to your view a lean Jaw'd mortal; — hunger laid his skinney hand and whet to keenest Edge his Stomach cravings surrounded with tattered garments, Rotten Ragg's close beset with unwelcomed vermin. — Could I do this, I say, — possible I might in some (small) manner fix your Idea with what appearance some hundreds of these poor creatures make in houses where once people attempted to Implore God's blessings &c. — He then asks them to obtain, and it possible send him a part of the money due him; gives them a brief statement of the American lines in the battle of Aug. 27th, and says:— We lost two Sergeants and how many since [we] land'ed — cant Rightly say but I believe at least one-third part, but notwithstanding this we are not discouraged yet, &c. — Roger Filer hath lost one of his legs and part of a Thigh, it was his left John Moody died here a prisoner.

So Now to conclude my little Ragged History will be in a few words. — Has you know ever did I impress on your mind to look to God for so still I continue to do the same — think less of me but more of your Creator. — Remember you are born to die and you could not but expect to meet with troubles. Ware if Gods will I should be glad to see you and the children before I am called to Depart this life, but if I dont I shant allow myself to be uneasy, for a complaining uneasy temper of soul carries punishment along with it. — So I exhort you to shun that folly.

So in this I wish you well and bid you farewell, and subscribe myself your nearest friend and well wisher for Ever.

Tell Co. not to forget | her dad for he ha[s]n't |
forget her. |

* One account gives another daughter, — — — who m. a Gibbs.

† Almerin Gillet (incorrectly called Almond by Dr. H. C. GILLETTE, who gives the following anecdote concerning him in his E. H. Sketches.) was a hatter, and set up in Windsor. — He was a staunch Democrat, and his brother in law, Shem Stoughton, was a thorough going Federalist, and in their inter-course they had many a warmly contested political argument. — A son of Shem's was learning the hatter's trade with his uncle Almerin in W., and by him Gillet sent a new hat to his bro. in law, with the following rhyme pinned thereon:

"Here's your new hat, sir,
Made of skunks and cats, sir!"

As soon as his eye caught these lines, Shem quickly replied:

"Yes, I see that, sir,
Made by a Democrat, sir!"

Such occasional items and additional matter as have been added by Miss Sperry, or myself, are duly bracketed, and with our respective initials.

EXPLANATION. In the system of cross-references used in this genealogy, each individual is given one of a series of Arabic numbers, in light faced type, which distinguishes him from all others; and to which the corresponding number in heavy-faced type always refers, wherever found. The heavy-faced figure given in connection with the light faced figure refers to that individual's first child. The Roman numerals designate the individual's place in the household, as determined by dates or tradition.

1. MATTHEW GRANT<sup>1</sup> was one of the original company who came, in 1630, to Dorchester, Mass., in the Mary and John, with Maverick and Warham, which fact led Dr.

Savage to suppose that he came from Devonshire, England, but the publication in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, Vol. 18, p. 40, of the record of marriage, at St. Mary le Strand, London, 25 March, 1609, of "Mathew Graunt and Susin Showers, by lycence from the facultties," leads to the supposition that he might have been from London, and that this marriage may have been the second marriage of his father.

He was admitted a freeman 18 May, 1631, and continued in Dorchester till the removal of the company which settled Windsor, of which he was a prominent member. His name appears on the Dorchester records as late as 2 Nov., 1635, and though he was, without doubt, among those who went, in 1635, to prepare their new homes at Matianuck, now Windsor, it is not likely that his wife and children left Dorchester before 18 April, 1636.

"He was the second town clerk in Windsor, also the first and for many years the principal surveyor; was a prominent man in the church; evidently was just and exceedingly conscientious in all his public and private transactions and duties, and, as recorder, he often added notes, explanatory or in correction, to the records which have considerable value to the investigator of the present day."—Stiles.

He was the compiler of the Old Church Record, so often quoted by Dr. Stiles, in the History of Windsor, "which, in the absence of some of the earliest records of the town of Windsor (1635-50), assumes a value which can scarcely be over-estimated; in short, he was a pious, hard-working, conscientious Christian man, and a model town clerk."

In the Archives of Connecticut, Private Controversies, Vol. 1, Document No. 138, may be seen his testimony in his own handwriting, in a dispute concerning land, between Joseph Loomis, the elder, and Joseph Loomis, the younger, 21 April, 1675, as follows: "And if any question my uprightness and leagal acting about our towne affairs, that I have been employed in, as measuring of land, and letting out of lotts to men, which has ben don by me from our first beginning here, come nixt September is 40 yere. I never let out land to any man untill I knew he had a grant to it from ye Townes men and Townes approbation, or about recording after ye Book was turned to me, which is nere 23 yere fene. I can saye with a cleare confidence, I have been carefull to doe nothing upon one mans desire."*

His character for accuracy is shown by the following transcript of his family record, made 7 Feb., 1870, by permission of the Hon. J. Hammond Trumbull, from the original in his possession.

7 Child of Samuel and Anna (Fillyg) Grant.

- 28 i. Sarah Grant,<sup>4</sup> b. at W. 2 Sept., 1684, m. 19 July, 1705, with Thomas Skinner, had five children.
 In the distribution of her father's estate, 2 Meh., 1712 13, her name stands as the first of his daughters, as "Sarah Skinner"; but her birth was first rec. on town record as "Hannah"; the Col. Rec. has it
 "Hannah," and the O. Ch. Rec. "Anna."

* The Windsor Town Record shows the birth of Josiah, son of Josiah Grant, 24 Nov., at night, 1678, and no other record of either has been found. May it not be an error of the transcriber who made the present copy?

7 Children of Samuel and Grace (Minor) Grant.

- 29 ii. Hannah Grant, b. at W., 28 Mch., 1689, m. with Thomas Morton of E. W., who d. there 20 July, 1708. Tradition says that when the first burial ground was laid out there he was heard to say, "I hope I shall be the first one buried here"; and, not long after that, he fell from a cherry tree in the yard since occupied by Major E. W. Grant, breaking his neck and killing him at once, so that he was the first one buried there. She m. 2/3 Apr., 1712, with John Caylord, b. at W., 8 June, 1686 s. of John and Mary Clark Caylord. He d. 25 June, 1722. She m. 3/ with — Moseley; was living in Westfield, Mass., in 1751. She d. 23 Feb., 1765, in 76th year; had two children by Morton, and three by Caylord. Epitaph in R. B. O. reads Hannah Caylord. See Caylord.
- 30 iii. Samuel Grant, b. at W., 19 Sept., 1691; m. W., 1 Jan., 1718-19, with Theophyle Bartlett. He d. at E. W. 7 Apr., 1651, in 60th yr.; sexton's record calls him "Sarg't Samuel." His est. was distrib. 3 Dec., 1751, and report made to the court 5 Feb., 1751. "Widow Off Grant" d. at E. W., 23 Dec., 1775.
- 31 iv. Noah Grant, b. at W., 16 Dec., 1693; one of the earliest sett. of Tolland, upon land laid out for him by the committee app. 18 Apr., 1713, by the town of W., "to lay out a settlement upon the east side of Wind-or, upon lands formerly purchased of the Indians." He was one of the petitioners, 9 May, 1713, for the incorporation of the town, which was granted by the General Assembly of Connecticut two yrs. later. He m. 12 June, 1717, with Martha Huntington, b. at Norwich, 9 Dec., 1696. Some of her ancestors are named in the following pedigree:

* Gen. Peter Buell, Peter of Niagara Falls, a nat. of Salisbury, Conn., and Sec'y of War under Pres. John Q. Adams, was the gr. 2d son of Martha (Grant) Buell; Gen. Don Carlos Buell, of the War of the Civil R. b. hon. was also of this family, wh. is prob. desc. from William Buell, an orig. settler of Windsor.

" March 30, 1783, Mrs. Grant died, after 3 o'clock at night & buried 23d day — in 50th year.

" 1784, June 24, I marry ye second Time, Mrs. Jennina Elsworth, Capt. David Elsworth Widow [and mother of Chief Justice Oliver Ellsworth]

" 1790, Feby 1st My Wife Dyed [of plenty] 40 after 7 o'clock in ye Evening and buried ye 3rd Day 2 o'clock afternoon" [in 69th year].

" Capt Ebenezer Grant Died on the 19th day of March, 1797, being Sunday at two o'clock after noon, and buried on Tuesday next following at two o'clock afternoon, in the 91st year of his age." His second wife, maiden name Jennina Leavitt, was born 9 Nov., 1721.

[Mr. Grant became the leading merchant and citizen of East Windsor; and his mercantile history and that of his son, Col. Roswell, have already been alluded to on pages 767-769 of Vol. I. of this work. Mr. Grant was surveyor for many years; also, was clerk of the Second Ecclesiastical Society of Windsor from 1733 to 1765, inclusive; with Eustas Wolcott and Joel Loomis, formed the committee of three to build the new meeting-house in 1761; Mr. Grant appears to have taken the chief care. Ebenezer Grant was a deputy sheriff for a short time between the years 1745 and 1749. He held many civil offices in town, and was one of the selectmen in 1779. He had somewhat to do with the affairs of the Revolutionary War at home — just what we have been unable to determine. Was on the "Committee of Correspondence." He probably assisted in raising supplies, and was known as a friend to the cause. To his house, 23 July, 1777, was brought the British General Prescott, who was confined here, under guard, as the accounts would show, about a week; perhaps retained again in August. In early life Capt. Grant bore his share of the perils of the French and Indian wars. We have "An Asst. of y<sup>e</sup> Men that went upon an Expedition into y<sup>e</sup> frontiers under his Command, Dec. 19, 1745. We are happy to say these y<sup>e</sup> Persons all Returned from their Expedition on Dec. 30, 1745." This Expedition was "on his Majesties Service to Deerfield."

 256 Wolcott, b. in W. 5 Jan., 1754, dau. Gen. Erastus and Jerusha (Wolcott) Wolcott. She d. at E. W. 23 May, 1827, a. 73. Col. Roswell Grant d. of old age, 31 Dec., 1831, a. 89.

[His early education was received at Mr. Nath'l Williams's School, at Tolland; afterwards he prepared for college with Rev. Mr. Perry, pastor at E. W. Immediately after leaving college, he became a partner in his father's extensive business, and, like him, a man of public cares and offices. He was clerk and treas. of the Eccl. Soc., and prob. an officer in the militia. It is quite probable that he commanded the Conn-stand, in the affair on Lake Champlain, in 1776 (see Conn. Record, 504); he enl. in the Continental service, joining the camp 3 July, 1778, and 30 Dec. same yr. was app. capt.; enl. again 7 July, 1780, and disch. 9 Dec., 1780; was one of the commissaries of a Brigade of the Continental Army app. by Cong. Leg., Oct., 1780, for which he rec'd a pension. After the war he served as paymaster and Judge Advocate, and 28 May, 1794, he was app. Lieut.-Col. of 19th Conn. Mil. Reg., and was Captain of a Co. of Volunteers, 22 Oct., 1812. Much of his service during the Revol. was done at home, in the execution of responsible duties which were entrusted to him by the public authority. In 1799 and 1800 he was U. S. Collector for the 5th Collect. Dist. of Conn., and for many years a Justice of the Peace, succeeding his father-in-law, Judge Erastus Wolcott, prob. about 1794-5; also, a memb. of a Conn. Assembly 1797 and 1811. He res. and d. in his father's old mansion, respected by all. We append a copy of a letter written by him to his father, while a student in college:

"Honored Sr.

Mr. Lyman gave me your Present the last week for which im extremely thankful to you for; & hope and praye to Retain with Gratitude the solemn warnings & pious injunctions therein laid Down, as knowing they come from one who always is consulting my Interest and aiming at my good. Thank'd be Heaven that ive such kind Parents to take Care of me, and take me by the hand & lead me through the various vicifitudes and Changes we all meet with here while in this transitory & probationary State; & lead me in virtue's Paths & fix me in the Road both for this & a future Life, & as it were, say, follow my Direction, & Everlasting peace will be your happy Lot when you Quit and bid adieu to these trifling Scenes.

"Am sensible my Continuance at my Alma Mater is but short; the Rotation of a few Months will finish the short four years, which have glided so imperceptibly, & will fix me in an untried State, if alive,—can't but Reflect often upon my Departing from this delightful seat where I received my Education, where I enjoyed the best advantages & most peculiar Privileges a Rational Being can Desire, & that now it stand me in hand to improve every Moment to the best Purpose; now is the only time to lay a stable foundation for future usefulness, for being an Honor to the Place of my Education, a Comfort to my Parents & serviceable to my Friends, at the completion of my Residence at the seat of the Muses. Should be very glad of a Chesse if it could be conveniently sent me, as our Commons are poor. Shall not want that Cherry you Reserved for me before vaceney, as all the Scholars have unanimously agreed not to Drink any foreign spiritous Liquors any more, a Scheme proposed by Mr. Woodhull & seconded by the other Tutors & the scholars in success; there was no Compulsion, but all a voluntary Act. Sho'd be very glad for some more Money, as my former Supply is almost exhausted; have been sorely afflicted with a whitton on my Thumb the week Past, & the Pain still increases so that I take no Quiet Day nor Night; my Duty to my Honour'd Mamma & love to Sister concludes all that's Desired by

Yale College,

28th Novr. 1764.

Your obedient Son,

ROSWELL GRANT.

P. S.—Elsworth sent me a Letter this Day, & says he has entered the Jerseys and likes it much Better than here. [Oliver Ellsworth, afterwards Chief Justice, see p. 213.—H. B. S.]—R. 64.

To Capt. Eben Grant,

Favor — Windsor.

In 1760 Ann Grant attended boarding school at "Mrs. Mary Longwell's," who was paid 30 shillings "to teach ye art of wax work." Meantime, Miss Grant bought of Anne and Elizabeth Cuning finery to the amount of £23, 8 sh. This bill included two "Breast flowers, 1 pr. Silk Shoes, 1 pr. Kid gloves, 1 Silver girdel, 1 Ellen Hat, Beeds, Earings," etc. Add to this bill £13, 12 sh. for "Boarding 17 weeks," and we learn what it cost to give the Rev. Mr. Marsh's wife a solid education.—R. T. Spragg's Children:

"It is probable that there have been but few men in this town who have possessed greater financial ability than this man, and very likely but few who possessed such ability ever used it to more honor to themselves and the town. He was a man of decided character and resolution, and yet to all appearance was governed by a decided sense of justice and right, and beyond that he could not be moved. He and his brother Matthew, living in the same house, had some differences of judgment, and the result was that all friendly communication ceased between them; they did not speak to each other. There were no words, no perpetual disturbance; each thought the other wrong, and there the matter ended. Daniel was a tax collector, he would put his brother's tax bill through the key-hole in the door into Matthew's room, and Matthew would return the money by the same express."

In his last will he gave to the town a farm in New Hartford for the benefit of schools, and this remains yet as the Daniel Grant fund." See History of Torrington, p. 461.

When seventeen years old he enlisted in the service of the country, took the camp fever, which left him with one leg disabled for several years, during which he worked as a tailor; but, on recovering, he began farming and continued it through life. He spent many years in the service of the late Solomon Rockwell of Winsted, taking the entire charge of his farm, and managing it as faithfully as if working for himself. He was so much troubled with asthma for many years that he could not sleep in a bed, but took his rest in a chair, and often spent much of the night in labor. While a little eccentric, he was entirely honest and a great lover of justice, but inclined to punish his own faults with great severity. One night he failed to fasten the barn door properly, and the next night he fastened it open and spent the cold winter night sitting in the open door. He once walked to Litchfield, fourteen miles, and to favor a neighbor, undertook to deliver a letter there; but, on his return, when four miles from home, found the letter still in his pocket, and, to punish himself for neglect, returned at once, delivered the letter, and walked home before he slept.

151 1822 with Ann Ellsworth Stoughton, who was b. E. W. 25 May, 1810, dau. of John and Sarah (Wilmore) Stoughton; they sett. on the homestead, wh. had been occ. continuously by his ancestors for four gens., beginning with the first Samuel Grant. Very great help in the work of preparing this genealogy was given by him. He d. East Windsor Hill 21 Feb. 1886.

Major Grant, on coming into possession of the paternal estate, found it in an embarrassed condition. His father, Capt. Roswell, a man of genial manners, strong social instincts, and largely occupied by public duties which invited expense and laxity of attention to his own affairs, had left a good estate badly encumbered with debts. Major Grant assumed these obligations, pledged himself to support his parents, and undertook the redemption of a property that otherwise would have passed to strangers. To this work of love he brought to bear a comprehensive intellect, and improved the estate until it passed into the hands of his heirs as one of the finest of the many beautiful farms of this wondrously fertile valley. He embodied his beliefs in his life. His bodily infirmities were few, and no mental weakness impaired the rare companionship of his declining years. The politician or antiquarian could find no more agreeable companion with whom to travel the ways of our earlier political and social life than Major Grant. He had an unusually clear mind with the results of much laborious reading and years of thoughtful observation. A severe and protracted disease of the eyes early in manhood nearly permanently impaired his vision and rendered the study of books a task through life; yet few of the great questions that affected the European or American politics of his generation were left by him unconsidered.

In private life Mr. Grant supported a comfortable style and maintained a beautiful old school hospitality. Few men could receive a guest with greater dignity and more assuring manners than he. His "young servant son" was the very epitome of graceful urbanity, and at the board or about the hearth his conversation charmed and instructed. To him Stiles, Wolcott, Tarbox, and many others whose clearing histories and sketches of colonial life are so well known, went for information on subjects connected with historic Windsor. Mr. Grant never professed religion, but, until late years, was in the habit of gathering his family for daily Scripture reading. He was a pronounced enemy of all frivolous reflections on sacred things, and reverently treasured the traditions of his simple Puritan ancestry. He fitted for college, but was prevented by illness from following out his intentions; held during his life various town offices, selectman, etc.; was somewhat of a military man; app. Corp'l in 2d Co., 1st Cavalry Reg't, 29 Aug., 1822; held successively the offices of Sgt., Cornet, 2d Lieut., and Captain in same Co., app. Maj. of 1st Reg't Cav., 31 May, 1832, and declined subsequent offers of military honors.]

GRISWOLD. (The following statements concerning the English Griswolds are furnished by Hon. SUREX O. Griswold of Windsor, Conn., as the results of his own personal examinations, in England.)

The English Griswolds were an ancient county family established at Solihull, in Warwickshire, prior to the year 1400. The name was usually written Greswold;

but, without doubt, the "e" in the first syllable had the Latin sound as "i" short, for it was often written Griswold, or Gryswold, and sometimes with a terminal "e." This family had a pedigree and were entitled to a coat of arms, viz. Arg. a fess Gu. betw. two greyhounds current Sa. They traced their descent from a certain John Greswold, who, about the middle of the 14th century, came from Kenilworth and married the dau. and heiress of Henry Hughford of Huddersly Hall, in Solihull, and, in Burke's Landed Gentry, they are styled the Greswolds of Kenilworth and Solihull. This latter place is on the northwestern border of Warwickshire, with Knowle on the East, and Yardley in Worcestershire on the South and West, and is about 8 miles westerly of Kenilworth, and twelve northwesterly of Stratford-on-Avon. It was a place of note in Saxon times, and was the site of a holy fountain much resorted to for its miraculous cures, and called the Well of St. Alphege. After the Conquest it came into the possession of a Norman family named Linsie, who had a tower there and, it is supposed, built a church, though the exact date of its building is not certain. From them it passed, by marriage, to the Knights of Odingsell. Will De Odingsell, in time of Edward I., built a chantry, i. e. a chapel attached to the church, requiring, by the terms of its foundation, that daily masses should be said for the souls of himself and wife, their progenitors and descendants. From failure in the male line of descent, the estate became a Royal demesne and was granted to different favorites. It was held, at his death, by Hugh De La Spencer, who was killed at Agincourt. King Henry VI., in 1436, granted the estate, for the term of seven years, to one Thomas Greswold, jointly with one Sheldon. The chantry, erected by De Odingsell, having fallen somewhat into decay, this Thomas rebuilt it and added some valuable gifts to its support. He must have been a devout adherent of that unfortunate monarch, as the condition of his gitts was, that the chantry priest should daily pray for the good estate of King Henry, and at his death and the death of himself (Thos. Greswold), should daily say masses for their souls. At the termination of this grant, the King gave the estate to his son, the Prince of Wales; but, doubtless, there was no transfer of possession, for we find that, in King Henry the Eighth's time, Richard Greswold of Solihull became the owner of the estate in fee, as also of other lands in the vicinity. From him sprang the other branches of the family, viz.: the Greswolds of Langdon Hall and those of Yardley.

Part of the estate of Langdon Hall was in the adjoining parish of Knowle. Upon this estate, within the bounds of Solihull, Malvern Hall was built. It is a stately Manor house, in the style of Inigo Jones, in the midst of a large park, surrounded by a moat, and over the stone gateway is carved the family crest. John Greswold of Langdon Hall married the daughter of Richard Varney of Compton, made notorious by Scott's romance of Kenilworth. He was, undoubtedly, a strong adherent of the great Earl, and was member of Parliament from the county, but the story of his villainy is, as it purports to be, a pure romance. A large portion of this estate passed, by marriage, to the Dabridgecourts, a local family of distinction.

In Yardley, a grandson of the above named Richard became possessed of the Manor of Greet; and, for several generations, his descendants were lords of this manor and rectors of the parish. The most famous of these was Rev. Humphrey, who was born 1621. In the church at Yardley there is a costly engraved funeral monument to his memory and that of his father, on which is inscribed a record of their virtues, learning, and charities to the poor and to the parish. The Rev. Henry Greswold, who was rector of the Solihull church from 1660 to the end of the century, was his second son. In the Solihull church is a beautiful alabaster slab to the memory of the aforesaid Richard, on which the date of his death is given as 1547. There is also another similar slab to Thomas Greswold and his three wives; he died in 1577. The chantry, built by Thomas, as above mentioned, is still in good repair, and the church itself is noted for the beauty and fineness of its interior architecture. Around the chancel was a wooden screen which was characteristic of church adornment at the close of the 15th century. In the north transept, in raised position to be reached by a flight of steps, was the Greswold par, also fronted with a wooden screen. The present rector is the Rev. Charles Evans, distinguished for his archaeological learning, and whose history of this church has been published by the Birmingham Archaeological Society.

About the middle of the 18th century there occurred a failure in the male line of these families, and the estate fell to the gr<sup>d</sup> dau. of the Rev. Marshall Greswold of Yardley. In the meantime the manor house at Solihull had been alienated, as also a large part of the Langdon Hall estate; but the union of the balance of these properties rendered the heiress quite rich. She married a Mr. David Lewis of Solihull, who assumed also the name of Greswold. The Greswold Lewis family are quite noted, the daughters marrying into the nobility, and Mr. Henry Greswold Lewis, the last of the name in the male line, marrying the daughter of an earl. He died in 1829 without issue, and in the Yardley Church is an elaborate tablet to his virtues, etc. The estate fell to his niece, or grand niece, Mary Greswold Lewis, and she married a Mr. Williams of Worcestershire, who also assumed the Greswold name; and her son, Mr. John Greswold-Williams, is the present owner of the estate, which includes Malvern Hall and park and adjoining lands, with considerable property both in Knowle and Yardley.

At Knowle there is a very ancient inn, a part of the estate called "The Greswold Arms" and at Solihull, an endowed grammar school of ancient foundation, the mastership of which is valuable for its salary. In Boswell's Life of Dr. Johnson there is a copy of a letter written in 1735 by a Mr. Henry Greswold of Solihull as one of the Feoffees of the Trust, in reply to a letter written them soliciting the appointment of Mr. Johnson as master of the school. He states they have inquired as to his standing, and, though they found him to be a most excellent scholar, he had a haughty temper and also was afflicted with an involuntary twitching of the muscles of his face, and hence the gentlemen declined to give him the appointment.

The family was one of local distinction; they held county offices, were summoned by the sheriffs, with the other gentlemen of the county, to be present at the proclamation of the Acts of Parliament, and sworn to sustain them. They sought and obtained wives from the leading local families, and an alliance with their daughters was considered honorable. As primogeniture prevailed, it follows that, in a family extending through so long a period, there would be poor as well as rich, and they spread into a number of the adjoining parishes. They were not of the nobility, but belonged to the middle class landed gentry, — that devout, patient, and, above all, valiant race, which has contributed so much to make England, for centuries, the foremost of nations.

The Connecticut Griswolds are descended from EDWARD and MATTHEW who came to Windsor in 1639, and from MICHAEL, who, some years later, came to Wethersfield. There appears to have been no relationship between the latter and the brothers Griswold of Windsor.<sup>28</sup>

Edward and Matthew came from Kenilworth, Co. Warwick, Eng., in the year 1639 in company with Rev. Mr. Huit's party, who came to Windsor that year.

MICHAEL Griswold's Eng. origin is unknown; he d. 1684, his will and the wills of his sons being now on file in Hud. Co. Prob. Rec. One of his grandsons, Capt. Jacob, was a first settler of Litchfield, another, Mr. Joseph, was famous as a soldier in the French War.

<sup>28</sup> See pp. 74 and 75. The affidavit of Edward, then aged about 57 yrs., as given May 15, 1684 in the celebration case of Henry Whiting's sons (see John Bissell, says: "About the year 1629, Mr. Wm. Whiting (deceased) was undertaken for a ship in England, in which ship I came to New England"; and his brother

They had lived at Kenilworth* and owned property there, but we know not whether it was their birthplace. They had a brother Thomas, who continued to reside there, and the record of his marriage, in 1634, is still to be found in the old Kenilworth Church records, also the baptisms of several of the children of Edward and the burial of a daughter, but the old church records of K. suffered so greatly from the ravages of the War of the Great Rebellion, it has been found impossible to find any other connecting links between that parish and the two emigrant brothers. †

It has been claimed that they belonged to the ancient county family of Solihull, near Kenilworth, and, as such, entitled to the use of the family arms, but there exists no evidence to prove the claim. Indeed, all that has been said in regard to their relationship to Humphrey Greswold, lord of the manor of Great in Yardley, and also rector of Yardley parish, or of their connection with the Greswolds who held Malvern Hall in Solihull, has no foundation in fact, and can be proved untrue. There is a tradition that the name of their father was George, concerning which see Prof. Salisbury's genealogical article referred to, on page 350.

Whatever their local antecedents and connections in England, it is certain that the emigrant brothers Griswold were men of education and property and, after their arrival in the new colony, were always styled "Mr.," which was then equivalent to "gentleman" as distinguished from yeomen or tradesmen. Both brothers, though young men when they came to this country (Edward being then 32 and Matthew 19 years old), speedily allied themselves with the best social element of Windsor, took positions of commanding influence, and quickly became prominent in colonial affairs. "Besides, if it be a principle of heredity that the characteristics, physical, intellectual, moral, and social, of a strongly marked ancestor are repeated in his descendants, so that from the offspring may be inferred what was the progenitor then, apart from all we know of the first generation of the Griswolds of New England, the qualities developed by succeeding generations of the family have been an accumulating proof that its emigrant ancestors were high minded, intelligent, Christian gentlemen." ‡

MATTHEW GRISWOLD, the younger brother, did not long remain at Windsor, though (see page 75, Vol. I.) he came very near being a permanent resident here, and we will therefore discuss his history first. Coming to Windsor, 1639, being then 19 years old, he m. 16 Oct., 1646, Anna daughter of Henry Sr., and Elizabeth Sanderson Wolcott of W., and, between that date and 1649-50 removed to Saybrook as agent for Col. Fenwick. He speedily assumed a prominence at Matthew (then aged 64) in his affidavit made in the same suit, says: "Further I declare that when I came over to New England about the year 1639," State Archives, Probate Court Records, Vol. II, 166, 203, 204.

* From New London Prob. Rec.: "George Griswold, aged about 67 years, test. (No. 115) 1683; that in his youthful years he lived with his father in England in a town called Kenilsworth, Kenilworth was, in Queen Elizabeth's time, called Killingworth, in Warwickshire; he did several times since he and his father Edward Griswold say that the house they then lived in, and lands belonging thereto was as brother Matthew Griswold's, and have lately seen a letter under the hand of Thomas Griswold of Kenilworth (since deceased) directed to his brother Matthew Griswold aforesaid, wherein the said Thomas Griswold intimated that he did then live in the aforesaid house belonging to his said brother Matthew Griswold aforesaid."

† May 9th, 1700. George Griswold appeared before me in Hartford, and made oath before me, as above, sworn. JOSEPH GRISWOLD, Clerk.

‡ The reference to one Francis Grissell by Dr. J. Hammond Trumbull, mentioned in Old Saybrook State Papers, Col. Series, 174-190, Local, and May, Am. History, pp. 121-22, Vol. XI, is a clerical or printer's mistake in spelling. There was no Francis or other Grissell among the Dorchester settlers, and the name mentioned refers to a person of another name.

§ The large views of Matthew, very much in advance of his time, are well illustrated by the following item from Windsor Town Records:

"April 23rd 1693, Hannah Griswold, wife of Matthew Griswold, has a portion of meadow Land in Windsor Great Meadow, twelve acres more or less . . . this comes to her as part of her portion made to her by the Last will of her brother Christopher Wolcott Deed, out of his Estate that was to be Divided among his Relations; and this parcel of meadow is allowed by her Husband Matthew Griswold to be Retained in her sole use to Hannah his wife, to remain to her and her children, and their Dispose, forever."

that place; was Deputy to the General Court in 1654, and, in same year, was directed by the Court to go with Capt. Mason to Pequitt and join with Gov. Winthrop to draw the lines between that town and Uncas, etc. He was largely instrumental in the movements which led up to the settlement of Lyme on the other side of the Great River, and became the leading and wealthiest man in that town, which was set off from Saybrook in 1665, 6. He was frequently a Deputy and Commissioner, Justice of the Peace, Lieutenant of the Trainband, etc. His landed possessions soon assumed baronial proportions, especially upon the shores of Long Island Sound, where, near the mouth of the Connecticut River, he established "Blackhall," since the family seat of the Griswolds of Lyme.

He died at Lyme, Conn., 27 Sept., 1698, and was buried at Saybrook. His wid. survived him, and was living in Sept., 1700, a. about 80 yrs. Their children were (1) Elizabeth, b. about 1652; m. (1) 1670, John Rogers of N. London; m. (2) Peter Pratt; m. (3) Matthew Beckwith. (2) "Mr." Matthew. (3) John, d. young. (4) Sarah, b. abt 1655; m. Thos. Colton. (5) Anna, b. about 1656, m. Lieut. Abraham Bronson, and was the ancestress of Hon. Henry Matson Waite, until 1854 the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Connecticut, and of the late U. S. Chief Justice Morrison Remick Waite.

Through their only surviving son, Mr. Matthew, b. 1653, who followed in the footsteps of his father in public life, and died full of honors in 1715, they founded a family "that has been unusually free from the vicissitudes which are apt, in the course of many generations of a family, to occur to lower the social standing of some of its persons, or branches." Those who would study a singular and (in American family history) an almost unparalleled prominence in public affairs and in intellectual ability, are referred to the Appendix to the Wolcott Genealogy in this work, and to The Griswold Family of Connecticut (already referred to), by Prof. EDWARD E. SALISBURY of New Haven, Conn., an exceedingly interesting and gracefully penned contribution to Connecticut genealogy.*

Edward,† born in Eng. about 1601, m. (1) 1630, in Eng., Margaret ———, who died 23 Aug., 1670, her gravestone, inscribed "M. G., 1670," is known as the oldest monument in Cong. graveyard, Clinton (formerly Killingworth), Conn.; he m. (2) 1672, or 3, Sarah (wid. of James) Bemis of New London.

Mr. Edward Griswold came to America at the time of the second visit of Mr. George Fenwick, at which date, also, came a large number of new settlers to the Conn. settlement. It was at a time when many of the gentry of England and wealthy persons connected with the Warwick Patent were intending removal hither; but the breaking out of the Scotch Rebellion compelled King Charles to call a Parliament, and they stayed at home to carry on their struggle with the King and Arch-bishop Laud. Mr. Griswold undoubtedly came in the interest of some of these patents. He was attorney for Mr. St. Nicholas of Warwickshire, who had a house built in Windsor, and also a tract of land "impaled" (fenced), as had Sir Richard Saltonstall. The Rev. Ephraim Huit, who came, also, in 1639, was from the same parish, as, also, the Wyllys family, who settled at Hartford.

His first location in W. is not known; but he had (see p. 157, Vol. D) a grant of land in Poquonock, to which he removed, in 1649, accompanied by a few families, who there found an "outpost" settlement. His residence at P. was on the site of the present dwelling of the heirs of the late Eliphalet S. Ladd, and who, on the female side, are Griswold descendants. The spot is a beautiful knoll which overlooks the brook on the west, and the Tunxis River on the south and east. As soon as he had fairly established his home, he began to take that active part in public matters which was natural to a man of his character. In 1650 he built the "Old Fort" at Springfield for Mr. Pyncheon; in 1656 he was a deputy from W. to the General Court, and continued, with the exception of one session, to represent the town until the reception of the charter from King Charles. At this time he was the principal promoter of a new settlement authorized by the court, called Hommoscett, which lay immediately west of Saybrook, and to which, about 1663, he removed with his younger children, deeding to his sons, George and Joseph, who remained behind, his W. lands, reserving a small life annuity therefrom. The settlement was organized as a town in 1667 and received, probably from him, the name of his old English home Kenilworth, afterwards corrupted to Killingworth, and now known as Clinton. He was the first deputy from K., and continued to be its magistrate and representative for more than 20 years, 1662 to 1678-89, and was succeeded by his son John.

* Prof. Salisbury, also, disposes satisfactorily of the tradition that Matthew Griswold was a stone-mason, and that he cut the tombstone of Henry Wolcott in Old Windsor Cemetery.

† We learn from Dr. Rufus W. Griswold of Wetherfield, Conn., that the late Rev. F. W. Chapman, prior to his death, had ready for collection a very large genealogical collection of the Griswold family. We have not been able to obtain access to this collection. — H. B. S.

The Col. Rec. show him to have been a very active, influential member of the legislature — pre-eminently one of those men who, in the first half century, did so much to make the small colony of Connecticut so important a factor in American affairs. As a member of Sessions, he had the pleasure of meeting with his brother Matthew and his own son Francis; and there has, since that time, rarely been an Assembly of Conn. in which some of their lineal descendants have not been members. He was frequently a commissioner, and, in 1678, was on a committee for establishing a Latin school in New London, and was first deacon of the K. church. He died at K., it is said, in 1691, in 84th year. Children (all by 1st wife): <sup>5</sup> Kenilworth (Eng.) Rec.:

His d., 16 May, 1777, a. 92, caused by a fall, he was dragging in a back log for the fire by an axe which was stuck into one end of it, the axe suddenly loosening, he fell backward, the shock causing his death. In person he was but a little above middle height, eyes, hair, and general complexion light; an enterprising and influential man in all public affairs; rep. the town in General Assemb., 1732, and accumulated a large estate. His res. was on a farm of nearly 500 acres, beautifully located in the bend of the Farmington River, in Simsbury, where it breaks through the Talcott mountains. His dwelling was on a lovely swell of ground, commanding a romantic view of valley and mountain scenery, and of the river for a considerable distance above and below its plunge into the wild gorge of the mountains, whence it rushes to meadows of the Connecticut River. These beauties have since been much marred by the erection of the manufacturing village of Tariffville. His est. was div. between his two youngest ch. — Ch. (by 1st wif.):

Four grandsons of this Levi still reside in Windsor, Conn., viz.: J. Randolph, Charles A., Sewell, and H. Isaac A. Griswold, also the sons of Allen P. Griswold (who d. 1890), a great grandson of Levi. The Hon. Stephen M. Griswold of Brooklyn, N. Y., is also a grandson of Levi, by his son Jerome, Mrs. Jacob Hess on her mother's side, her mother being a granddaughter of Levi. J. R. Chas. N., and Hudson N. have marriages. S. O. G.

(then called Griswold's Mills) to Ohio, Sept., and arrived 29 Oct., 1805, at Worthington, O., then an unbroken wilderness, in which they were the first white settlers. Mr. Griswold was a plain looking, well-built man, about 5 feet 7 or 8 inches in height, always spare in flesh, rather thin face, but generally healthy and very athletic. In his youth he seldom met with a man who could excel him in those manly exercises which were then the universal sport of the young. He was a devoted adherent of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and although he had never received a liberal education, but was, with the aid of his excellent mother, mainly self-taught, he was, on two occasions, engaged in religious controversy, in defense of the doctrines of that Church, as having the sanction of Christ and his apostles. He sometimes indulged himself in the composition of poetry, of different familiar styles, confining himself mostly to objects of satire. He was admirably qualified for public employment, but was of a retiring, domestic nature, and was never called to any higher office than that of justice of the peace, in which capacity he served for many years, and enjoyed the universal respect of all who knew him best. Ch.:

HARPER. (Information gleaned from Windsor Town Rec., East Windsor Prob. Rec., family Bibles, State Library MS., etc., by RUTH T. SERRA of E. W. Hill, and from communications of Mr. CHARLES BARTLETT, Windsorville, Conn. Arranged by H. R. S.) From 1720 to 1765 appear upon records the names of JAMES, JOSEPH, and (from 1747–54) JOHN Harper, who were undoubtedly of North-of-Ireland origin, and probably brothers. On E. W. tax lists, 1743, Joseph Harper pays for 3 heads, and tax of £79; in 1752, 3 hds.; 1747, John Harper pays for 1 head; 1752, for 2 hds.; 1765, Joseph, James, and Joseph, Jr., are on the lists.

JOHN and JOSEPH (and probably JAMES), were the sons of JAMES HARPER, who (acc. to Hist. Delaware Co., N. Y.) emigrated from County Derry, Ireland, arriving in Casco Bay, in the Province of Maine, October, 1720, where he settled. The outbreak of Indian hostilities, however, forced him to remove, with his family, to Boston, his youngest son, John, remaining for the defense of the Province, and continuing in the service about 3 years and 8 months. This JOHN, after his discharge, rem. to Boston, thence to Hopkinton, Mass., where he m. 8 Nov., 1728, Abigail Montgomery; rem. thence to Nodell's Island, near Boston; rem. in 1741 (as is supposed) to Middletown, Conn.; 1747, rem. to (E.) Windsor, Conn., from whence, in 1754, they rem. to Cherry Valley, Albany County, N. Y., where they purchased, cleared, and cultivated a farm. This family were most intelligent, and eminently patriotic; and, after the War of the Revolution, all became prominent in their respective localities. (Children (b. near Boston)):

1. William, b. 11 Sept., 1729; was a member of the Provincial Congress; one of the Judges of Montgomery County, and, after the County of Otsego was formed, was app. one of its Associate Judges; also member of N. Y. Assembly from Tryon Co., 1751, 1752, 1754; and from Montgomery County for 1785-9. His long and useful life ended at the age of 87, at his res., Milford, Otsego Co., N. Y. From N. Y. Calendar MS. we learn that he was app. to deliver clothing to troops, and was member of a committee app. to make essays in manufacturing lead, gun flints, and sulphur. (1760)
2. James, b. 26 Feb., 1731; d. of small pox 22 Feb., 1790.
3. Mary, b. 23 Jan., 1732; m. John Moore, afterwards a member of the Committee of Safety of Tryon Co. She and her three daughters were made prisoners at the Cherry Valley massacre and taken to Niagara by Brant, where they fortunately found friends to protect, and afterward to restore them to their home.
4. John (Col.), b. 31 May, 1731. FAM 2
5. Margaret, b. 7 Feb., 1740.
6. Joseph, b. Middletown, Conn. (1740-47); fought bravely in the frontier war; was a member of the Committee of Safety of Harpersfield, N. Y.; is probably the Joseph who was recommended by William Harper to the New York Committee of Arrangements in the Revol. War (v. N. Y. Calendar Hist. MS. II, 66) for position as lieutenant in Capt. McKean's company; saying that he had served in last campaign as volunteer at his own expense on purpose to qualify himself for the service. Joseph Harper was app. Ensign, 1777. N. Y. Calendar Hist. MS. II, 8, 9. He emigrated to Ohio with his bro. Alexander, and founded the town of Harpersfield in that State.

7. Alexander (Capt.), b. Middletown, Conn. (1740-47), was after his brother (Col. John) the most fearless and sagacious of the family who came to Harpersfield, and was nearly as prominent in the various affairs which border warfare entailed upon them as his more celebrated brother. In April, 1780, he was sent in command of 14 men, on a scout, from Schoharie to Harpersfield, for the purpose of making a quantity of maple sugar and of watching certain disaffected persons in those parts. This party was surprised by Brant and his Indians. Some were killed, others taken prisoners to Niagara, where Capt. H. fortunately found relatives among the prisoners, who saved him from many of the miseries his fellows were made to suffer, and, after three years of unmitigated suffering, from which some died, the survivors were released, after peace was declared.

- The first town meeting, after the town was org. under the State law, April, 1788, was held at Capt. Alexander's house, and he was chosen treasurer. He was Justice of the Peace, 1788, and probably earlier; was interested in the org. of the first Presb. church; kept the first inn as early as 1786 or '87, at the Center; rem. to Ohio with his bro. in law, Wm. McFarland, and his brother Joseph, and founded the town of Harpersfield in that State.
8. Abigail, b. Middletown, Conn. betw. 1740-47, m. William McFarland, a member of the Harpersfield Vigilance Committee, and, after the war, settled about a mile east of Harpersfield Center. He was Town Clerk, 1787-'89, Supervisor, 1789-'92, and evidently a man of abilities. With his brothers in law Joseph and Capt. Alex. Harper, he emig. to Ohio, where they founded Harpersfield in that State.

FAM 2. John (Col.) (John James), during his youth attended school at New Lebanon, Conn., where he became intimate with a young Indian, placed there by Sir William Johnson, and who afterwards became the celebrated warrior known as Joseph Brant; and it is certainly in favor of this probably much misrepresented Indian, that the friendship thus early contracted for him, by so honest a man and strong a partisan as Col. Harper, continued unabated during the war, in which they were on different sides, and for many years after.

In 1767 the Harper brothers determined to purchase from the "native Indians of Ononghquage" certain lands which they owned and were willing to sell, at the head of the Delaware and Charlotte rivers, in the (then) Albany Co. Province of N. Y., and obtained from Sir Henry Moore, Governor of N. Y., a license to make such purchase (original in possession of D. N. Gaylord, grandson of Col. John Harper), which was completed 14 June, 1768; and a patent was duly granted for said purchase (250,000 acres, "more or less") in the king's name, by Cadwallader Colden, Esq., Lieut. Governor, to John Harper, Sr., and to his sons, William Harper, John Harper, Jr., Joseph Harper, and Alexander Harper, and to 17 others, most of whom afterwards assigned their interest to the Harpers, in compliance with the English rule which restricted (in ordinary cases) each settler's claim to 1,000 acres.—N. Y. Calendar Land Papers, 441. Of this tract, 22,000 acres were subsequently patented as a township by the name of HARPERSFIELD.* Among the earliest settlers or owners of lots, we find the names of Joel and Jedediah Gaylord and ——— Osborn — Windsor names, and who probably emigrated thence with the Harpers.

In 1771, Colonel Harper, accompanied by several men, removed his family from Cherry Valley to Harpersfield, for the purpose of making a permanent settlement and dividing his patent into lots. The colonel first erected a shelter for his family in the form of an Indian wigwam and there lived till a house could be built, but not long after was called away on business. His wife then superintended the erection of a dwelling, directing the men whom the colonel had brought with them, and before his return the walls were fully raised. The house was soon roofed and fitted for the residence of the first white family that ever made a home in Harpersfield. The survey was completed in 1772, and soon after a number of emigrants arrived, most of them from New England, but some from other sections. Colonel Harper's father and two brothers are known to have been in the town at this time. This was an emigration into a country covered with dense timber, and involved all the labor, danger, and privation which accompanies the clearing and development of a new country; and the adventures and experiences of Col. Harper's family can be found more at length in Jay Gould's Hist. of Delaware Co., N. Y.

The settlement grew apace, and in 1775 Col. Harper erected a grist-mill, which saved the settlers the toilsome use of the mortar, or a journey to Schoharie. When the Revolutionary War began, nearly every settler in H. sided with the Colonies. They formed a Vigilance Committee and prepared for self-defense, but continued to enlarge and cultivate their clearings until 1777, when Brant and Butler's horde of Indians and Tories invaded the settlement, and nearly all the inhabitants fled. Col. Harper and family and many of his neighbors went to Schoharie, and some returned to New England. It appears that an Indian belonging to Brant's party had received favors and kind treatment from Col. Harper, and as the hostiles were on their way to H. with intent to kill, capture, and pillage, this Indian contrived to leave the camp and reach Col. H.'s home by night, and inform him of the approaching danger. On receiving the news, Col. H. hastily concealed such household stuff as he could not carry, put his wife and younger children on his only horse, and, with the other children, started on foot, through a dark and tempestuous night, to Sharon, Schoharie Co., which he reached before noon the next day. The next morning the house they left behind them, the first ever built in H., was burned to ashes by the disappointed savages, as was also the grist-mill above referred to.

Col. Harper returned with his family to H. after the close of the war (his noble wife having died at Johnstown, in 1778), and rebuilt the grist-mill about 1785 or '86. The first (Presb.) church organized in H. was formed at Col. H.'s house, 7 June, 1787, and he was one of its first trustees and gave it a burial-lot, which was the first burial place used in Harpersfield. He d. 20 Nov., 1811, and was buried there, as also was his second wife; their remains, however, were removed in 1853 to the cemetery at the Center.

One who personally knew from his own experience whereof he spoke, says of the Harpers, as a family: "They were kind and generous to the poor, and ready at any time to do anything in their power to make all around them happy." HAWLEY, Matthew, d. 16 Feb., 1695-6.

HAYDEN. [Since the issue of our first edition, the Records of the Conn. Line of the Hayden Family has been published (1888) by Jabez HASKELL HAYDEN, Esq., of W. Locks. In condensing from this for our present edition, we have been compelled by limitations of space imposed on us by the amount of Windsor material at our disposal to confine ourselves almost exclusively to the families of Windsor, Conn., Haydens, leaving the Hartington (Conn.) and western lines to refer to the fuller published Genealogy, above referred to — H. R. S.]

William (prob. of a Somerset or Devonshire family; recent discoveries by Rev. Wm. B. H. of Portland, Me., furnish strong presumptive proof that he was a brother of John Hayden of Braintree, Mass., and both from Hinton Blewitt, Co. Somerset, Eng.), was of the Maryland John emigration to Dorchester, Mass., 1630, in 1634 was made a freeman at D. (evidence that he was also a memb. of the then D., now W., ch.); first appears in Conn. at Htfd., where he rec'd land in the first distribution, 1639, served under Capt. Mason (whose life he saved at the Pequot Fight, 1637, for which he was granted a lot on the Soldiers' Field at Htfd., to which the Court after his death added 50 acres more for his heirs; the date (on W. R.) of birth of his s. Daniel, 2 Sept., 1610, prob. fixes date of his coming to W. (see, also, Old Ch. Rec.); sold his Htfd. prop. with dwelling-house thereon, 9 Feb., 1642-43; first bought at W., 21 Jan., 1644-45, and J. H. H. thinks it prob. that in the interim betw. these dates, he may have res. in the old Plymouth Co.'s Trading House at W., and that Daniel, the first American born Hayden, may have been b. therein, in the first house built in Conn. He bought of Mr. Francis Stiles 25 acres, the site of his house being occupied now by the late Ezra Hayden homestead, east side highway, at junct. of two roads SE. of Hayden's Station.

On Sept. 2, 1887, the 245th birthday of Wm. Hayden's first born s., Daniel, a large flint boulder, 5 by 3½ feet in size, was set as a memorial to mark the spot of Hayden's first dwelling (the site of the orig. house was abt. 13 rods SE. of the boulder and abt. 3 rods E. of the street). It bears, chiseled deeply upon its surface, the legend: "Memorial Stone. William Hayden, born in England — Dorchester, Mass., 1630 — Hartford, with the first settlers — Windsor, 1640 — settled here, 1645 — removed to Homoscoett with first settlers; died there Sept. 27, 1669. Dedicated Sept. 2, 1885." The dedication was made the occasion of a great gathering of Haydens and H. descendants, and the address delivered by Jabez H. Hayden (to whom is due the credit of the Memorial boulder), was published on that day, under the title of "Sketch and Genealogy of the First Three Generations of the Connecticut Haydens, with a map showing the locality in which they settled"; 8vo, pp. 20, map.

On that part of his farm lying west of the present R. R. station, Wm. H. had a stone quarry, worked as early as 1651, and then called his "lot where his stone pit is"; but his principal occupation was that of farmer. He was one of the first Troop of Horse in the colony, 1657, 8. His wife d. 1664 (O. C. R.), and in 1665 he rem. with the first settlers to Homoscoett (Clinton, Conn.), abt. which time he m. (2) Margaret (wid. of Wm.) Wilcockson of Stratford, Conn.; 1667, he was one of the deputies from Town of Kenilworth (Killingworth, Conn.); one of three petitioners for authority to organize a church there, and his name is third on its roll of members. Aug. 12, 1669 (see Jessup Gene.), he was app. one of four com'rs to divide ld. betw. Ed. Jessup and John Richardson, which the latter had bought of the Indians in Westchester, near N. Y.; Sept. 27, 1669, he d. Kenilworth, Conn., decding all his W. land to his eldest s. Daniel, who had not left the old homestead. (Children of W. — O. C. R.);

FAM. 17. Thomas<sup>1</sup> (Lieut.) (Dan.,<sup>1</sup> Dan.,<sup>2</sup> Dan.,<sup>2</sup> Wm.), m. 19 Nov., 1767, Abigail

(dan. Moses and Elizabeth) Parsons of Durham, Conn., who d. 14 Dec., 1817; he d. 28 Nov., 1817, ae. 72. The following sketch of this admirable patriot and soldier is furnished us by his descendant, Rev. HORACE EDWARD HAYDEN of Wilkesbarre, Pa.:

"Lieut. Thomas Hayden's father was unfortunate in his second marriage. Having no issue, this second wife lavished his property on her two sons by a former marriage, and set them up in business with their step father's money. In 1760 her husband, Daniel Hayden, engaged, with another person, to furnish the British Government with a large quantity of timber, but, owing to his partner's dishonesty, he lost so heavily by the venture that he was forced into insolvency. This threw his sons entirely on their own resources.

"Lieut. Thomas, when his school days were ended, learned the trade of a carpenter, and became an architect and builder, occupations which, in those days, were not separated. Two of the houses, built and owned by him, two hundred years ago, still stand, admirable and substantial monuments of his ability. One, located on Palisado Green, Windsor, is now owned and occupied by his granddaughter, Mrs. Gen. Ambrose Fowler. Mr. Hayden also owned and cultivated his paternal farm at Hayden's. But he was not permitted to spend his entire life in peaceful pursuits. When the clash of arms occurred at Lexington, April 19, 1775, he promptly rode express, carrying the news to Sudfield (see p. 311, Vol. 1), and was one of the Lexington Alarm party which left Windsor, under command of his cousin, Capt. Nathaniel Hayden. He served until July 17, 1775, when he became Sgt. in the Simsbury Co., commanded by his brother in law, Capt. Ebenezer Fitch Bissell. His reputation as a soldier led to his selection as superintendent, in part, of the fortifications erected at Roxbury, Mass., during the siege of Boston. Before this, the attention of his colonel had been attracted by his diligence as a soldier, and promotion soon followed; he was app. Sgt.-Major in 8th Continental Reg't (Col. Jedediah Huntington), Aug. 11, '75; 2d Lieut. in Capt. Hubbard's Co., 15th Reg't Foot, Col. Huntington, Jan. 1, '76, commis. signed by John Hancock; Adjutant of same Reg't, Oct. 20, '76; was recommended for promotion and made 1st Lieut. in Col. Wyllys's Reg't, 1 Jan., '77; was Adj't to Col. Zebulon Butler, in command of Conn. troops at Danbury, Apl. 8, '77. In Aug., '77, was on recruiting service at Windsor, for Capt. Ell's Co., Col. Wyllys's Reg't, then at Peckskill; took the Oath of Allegiance and was discharged, at his own request, Apl. 25, '78. This was probably done at great sacrifice of pride and devotion to his country. But the occasion justified his action. It was taken at the most trying period in the history of Connecticut during the Revolution. In that colony silver money was not to be had, and continental scrip was worthless. When he entered the army he left at home his wife and five young children, the eldest then just 6 years old, and with no male person on the place to work the farm. An absence of three years in the field was not calculated to improve his estate; and the worthlessness of the paper money made his pay of little value to his family. With it his wife found it quite impossible to buy even the necessaries of life for herself and children, all of whom were ill. She rode miles on horseback to procure meal or flour for bread, and, failing in this, she sent for her husband to come home to his sick and needy family, which summons he obeyed by resigning his commission. By the proclamation of Gov. Trumbull, June 20, '82, calling for 18 companies of 96 men each for the Continental Army, Lieut. Hayden was again commis. first Lieut. of Capt. John Francis's Co., 1st Conn. Reg't, Lieut. Col. Hezekiah Sabin, Jr. His service, like that of the entire army, was virtually ended by the surrender of Cornwallis, Oct. 19, '82. During the following year he was enabled, by the Declaration of Peace, to return to his home and spend the rest of his days in tranquility. The writer of this sketch still owns five of his eight commissions, the handsome sword, the watch, inkstand, and Order Book used by Lieut. Hayden in the Revol. War."

Lieut. Hayden, we are told by aged Windsor people, "was a tall man and fine-looking; but his wife was small in stature and weight, with a sweet face and most lovely disposition. She was always spoken of as an excellent wife, a kind neighbor, and in every way an estimable woman." In 1777, "Abigail, wife of Thomas Hayden, was adm. to the W. ch., under the Half-Way Covenant."—No. Ch. Soc. Rec., 1767-91. Children:

Horace, he learned the trade of builder and architect; early displayed a great fondness for books; and by the aid of the common school and his mother's instructions acquired a very creditable education. In 1812 he removed to Baltimore, Md., and studied dentistry with him, at the same time taking a course of medical study at the Med. School of the Univ. of Md. He had a

FAM. 30. Horace H. (M. D.) (Sift, Thos.,<sup>7</sup> Dan'l,<sup>4</sup> Dan'l,<sup>5</sup> Dan'l,<sup>5</sup> Wm.<sup>1</sup>), b. Hayden's, W., 13 Oct., 1769. [The following biog. is from the pen of Rev. HORACE EDWARD HAYDEN of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.], bp. "in the mother's right," 29 June, 1777, in W. ch. He was remarkable from his childhood. — Rev. Thos. E. Bond, D. D., LL. D., in an address before the students of the Dental College of Baltimore, and published in the Balt. Dental Journal, 1844, says, "he learned to read almost as soon as he did to talk, and at once contracted that fondness for books which was so remarkable in all his subsequent life. . . . Such was his industry and systematic application that, at the age of four years he had read the Bible regularly through, and from early childhood to the day of his death the Bible was his favorite book, and he was always a thorough student of the Word of God. While a boy he also manifested a remarkable fondness for natural history, and frequently surprised his friends by the ingenuity and success with which he discovered objects of interest, while rambling through the fields and woods, a propensity remarkably exhibited in his after-life. At ten years of age he began the study of the classics, but, probably from want of means, soon abandoned it; but, at the age of 11, in the humble capacity of cabin-boy of a fine brig, he had the happiness of making two voyages to the West Indies, returning with renewed zest to his studies both of books and of natural objects. Obligated, by his circumstances, to leave school at the age of 16 and provide for his own maintenance, he became apprentice to an architect, and, although it was not exactly what suited his tastes, he pursued his practical studies in this department of art with most commendable zeal and industry, and when, soon after coming of age (1790), he sought at Point Petre, Guadaloupe, in the West Indies, employment in his business, he succeeded very well, until compelled by the periodical fever to return to America. The next year brought him a similar experience; and thereafter, for several years, he pursued his vocation in Connecticut, and subsequently in New York; during the winter of 1798 becoming the first teacher of the 1st North School District of Hartford.

About this time, however, he had occasion to call for professional work upon Dr. Greenwood, who had been Gen. Washington's dentist, and who was then the only regular dentist in the United States. During this interview he suddenly conceived the idea of devoting himself to dental surgery. Bidding farewell to architecture, and obtaining such information as he could from Dr. Greenwood's few books upon the subject, and from his instructions, he went, in 1801, to Baltimore, Md., without friends, and almost without money, and but imperfectly acquainted with his newly-chosen art. Dentistry was then but little introduced or practiced, and had little claim to be considered a science. To a man of Hayden's quickness and industry, it was a small thing to equal the best operators of the day. He aimed to do more—to elevate the employment to a parallel with his own abilities. With this view, he attended the Medical School of the Univ. of Md., and studied anatomy and medicine so eagerly and fully that, though he did not graduate in medicine, he acquired such extensive knowledge in these departments of science, as to gain for himself the respect and confidence of the medical profession, and fully entitled him to the honorary degree conferred on him, in later life, by the Jefferson College of Philadelphia, and by the University of Md., each of which institutions granted, without application on his part, the honorary degree of Doctor of Medicine. So respectable was his knowledge of surgery considered, as early as 1812, that, during the attack of the British upon Baltimore in 1814, his services were put in requisition as surgeon, and his kindness and skill were fully employed in caring for the wounded.

Rising rapidly in the public confidence, he also won the respect and intimacy of the medical profession of Maryland, and in 1809 was invited to read a course of lectures on Dentistry, before the Medical class of the Univ. of Maryland—an honor never before, or since, conferred upon a practitioner of dentistry. In 1810 he was a member of the Medical and Chirurgial Faculties of Maryland, among whose duties was that of examining and licensing for the practice of medicine in that State. He was also a valuable contributor to medical journals on matters surgical and dental. Next to Pathology and Physiology, his favorite study was Geology. Indeed, in 1780, when only 12 years old, he had witnessed and noted the effect of a great ice flood in the Conn. River, by which the surrounding country was overflowed, and large masses of rock floated in ice cakes to the meadows of the valley; and, in 1809, almost at the beginning of his practice in B., he investigated the mineralogical and geological character of that vicinity, and, at request of its editor, pub. in the Bolt, Med. and Philos. Jecorum (1810) a "Geological Sketch of Baltimore," in part subsequently reprinted in Silliman's Journal (1833), and referred to by Professor J. P. Lesley, in his Geol. Society of Penn., as "a model of careful description and accurate field-work." It was near B. that he discovered that form of Chabasite to which Prof. Silliman gave the name of "Haydenite."

Dr. Hayden was no scientific unbeliever; he believed firmly in Nature's God, His Word, and His Revealed Religion. He was proud of his profession, and early saw the necessity of an association of its respectable members for purposes of mutual encouragement and common effort. He took a prominent part in the formation of the "American Society of Dental Surgeons," of which, in 1838, he was elected president; and he wrote largely for its published organ, The American Jour-

and Library of Dental Science. To his labors as an instructor of office-students, and as a lecturer to a night-class, in a hired building, for many years, may be largely attributed the formation, in B., of the Dental College which was opened in 1840, of which he was first president and Prof. of Dental Path. and Physiology. The old line of the ancient writer, "Nil actum credens dum quid supervisset agenda," might well be applied to Dr. Hayden. He reckoned nothing done while anything remained undone. Hence, to the very end of his life, he was ever active, looking upon acquisition as but preparatory to requirement, and delighting in effort rather than in possession.

Dr. Hayden inherited his father's military spirit, and when the British landed at North Point, Md., in 1814, as soon as Maryland called her citizens to her defense, he enlisted as a private in Capt. Thos. Warner's Co., 39th Reg't, Md. Mil., of which Co. he was at once app. first, sgt., serving as such at North Point and at Fort M'Henry. After the action which resulted in the repulse of the British, he was app. acting surgeon by General Smith, and served in the hospitals. He was a versatile writer, as his numerous published papers on Dentistry, Geological and Mineralogical subjects, Intonation, Silk Cocoons, Pathology, etc., testify. He obtained in 1823, a patent for the application of pyroligneous acid and oil to the tanning of leather; also for preventing dental decay; and the very valuable collection of minerals which he left at his death became the basis of the extensive cabinet now owned by Roanoke College, Va. He was a member of Am. Society of Surgeon Dentists; Cor. Sec. Balto. Physical Assoc., 1819 (now Md. Acad. of Science); member of Am. Geol. Soc. (now Am. Assoc. for the Advance of Science); memb. Md. Med. and Chir. Faculty; corr. memb. Acad. Nat. Science, Phila., Pa.; of West. Acad. Nat. Science; hon. memb. Med. Soc. Balto.; of Med. Soc. Orange Co., N. Y.; of Western Museum Soc.; and, in 1843, the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries, Copenhagen, Denmark, requested his acceptance of a Fellowship in that Soc.—an honor of which death prevented his acceptance.*

HIGLEY, Capt. John, the American progenitor of all bearing the name in this country, came from Frimley, Surrey, England, to Windsor, in 1666, when about 17 years of age. His father was Jonathan Higley, who died in 1664, and his mother, before her marriage, was Katherine Brewster, daughter of the Rev. John Brewster, who died in Eng. 23 Aug., 1657. They were of the lineage of the ancient Brewster family of Mattaboscet fame.

John Higley, born 22 July, bp. 12 Aug., 1649; m. (1) Hannah (dau. of John and Hannah Moore) Drake of Windsor, 9 Nov., 1671 (O. C. R.). He m. (2) Wid. Sarah (Strong) Bissell, dau. of Return Strong, and the grand-dau. of Rev. John Warham. Soon after his first marriage he appears to have taken up his residence upon the eastern side of "y<sup>e</sup> Great River." In 1672 Major Pyncheon hired him "to view and search for a place" for the location of a saw-mill on "Stoney River." In June of the same year he is found in the list of persons who were appointed to make some improvements upon a road upon the "east side" of the Connecticut. It is supposed that he removed with his young family for safety to the main settlement when the general order was given during the Indian troubles, in 1675, for the families on the eastern shore to remove "forthwith, with their cattle and grain, to the west side into places of best security."

He soon acquired property. On January 25, 1676 7, his "List" is recorded £24, and his tax sixteen shillings. The following year his list was £22, and the "Rate" 14s. 3*d.* [Hannah Higley, prob. his wife, contributed 1s. 3*d.* to the Conn. Fund for the Relief of Poor in Other Colonies, 1676, O. C. R.] At a town meeting held "March y<sup>e</sup> 14th, 1677, s." John Higley was "granted liberty to take a parcell to bild on, 25 foot in length against y<sup>e</sup> river, and 20 foot in breadth y<sup>e</sup> other way; but he must take after y<sup>e</sup> widow marshall has sit out her grant next after George Griswold." This grant was again confirmed in 1679 and was further described as a "Small parcell on the North side of the ferry by the Rivulet to build a warehouse upon . . . and is in length on the top of the bank against the River, thirty foot in length downward, and in breadth twenty four foot"; "alsoe, he has a parcell of Land whereon he has bilt his Dweling house; the land was set out to him by his grandfather, Deacon [John] Moore; it is one acre and a half of the Land called Cowfield." He owned, in addition, "a parcell of woodland" deeded to him by his father-in-law, John Drake, which is described as "out of that land he [John Drake] formerly bought of Richard Lyman; it Lyes towards Hartford Bounds; he is to have out of it fifteen acres of the South end of said Lott," etc.

His warehouse appears to have been the beginning of his commercial transactions, and proved a channel through which his genius achieved success and great business prosperity. He held the appointment of Officer of Customs, Windsor then being a port of entry. One important item in a very considerable trade which the warehouse commanded was the importation and transportation of rum from Barbadoes. From entries found in his account book, which his descendants now have in possession, the following extracts are taken:

"April 25 1683. Mr. Henry Wolcott made entry of one barroll of Rum for transportation and if he did not transport it, he would pay the custom of it."

"July 10 1683. Nathaniel Bissell made entry of a cask of rum of about 52½ gals. which he entered for transportation, marked NB."

"August 5th 83. Mr. Thos. Cook made entry of one hhd of rum for transportation, marked TC. ye was [illegible] same boats and barroll of Rum for Thos. Dewey."

"—— 1683. Josias Wolcott made entry of 6 barrols of Rum for transportation and if he did not transport it for custom [illegible]."

In connection with the advancement of trading interests, John Higley made voyages to the Island, as well as coast wise trips. The tradition of the family is that he owned vessels plying between the American coast and Barbadoes. There is ample evidence that he was one of the leading and prosperous merchants of early Windsor.

December, 1680, he was chosen constable for the town, the first public office to which he was elected. May 10, 1683, his name was "propounded" as freeman and accepted at the term of the Gen. Ct. in the October following. During these years he added to his ownership of Windsor lands. About this time his attention was turned towards the settlement at Simsbury, and in 1684 he made purchase of the homestead, which, until the year 1670, had been the property of Simon Wolcott, and is claimed to have been the birthplace of his son, Gov. Roger Wolcott. To this estate John Higley removed with his family in 1684. He afterwards purchased adjoining tracts of land until his estates in the northern part of Simsbury extended from the village of Simsbury to the village of Salmon Brook, a distance of about five miles; and thence running from the Farmington River to the west mountain, a distance of fully three and a half miles, and included some of the best meadow lands in the township, as well as the present site of Tariffville. This region of country was afterwards called Higley Town, and was so known for more than one hundred and fifty years. He also was the owner of lands at Turkey Hills, and at a settlement called Scotland, and finally became the largest taxpayer in the township. He held lands at Windsor until his death, and these were divided among his children. Capt. John Higley was one of the seven who became the original proprietors of Simsbury in 1685 and was a leading spirit, taking an important part in all the public affairs of the town. In December, 1685, he was chosen one of the three selectmen, to which position he was repeatedly re-elected for several years following.

In 1687 he was commissioned Ensign of the train band. From this time onward his whole life was connected with military service. In 1690 he received the commission of Lieutenant. "It was not until 1698," says Phelps, "that there were soldiers enough in the town to make up the complement of a full company, at which time Lieut. Higley was promoted to the captaincy—an office of great dignity in those days, and, with a single exception, the highest then known in the Colony." May, 1688, he was chosen Commissioner for Simsbury. This invested him with the power of a public civil officer, whose duty was "the dispensation of justice." August, 1689, he was chosen "Deputie" to the General Assembly, and was elected to a seat in that body as Representative for thirty-seven terms held during the twenty-two years following. In 1691 he was again appointed by the General Assembly a "Commissioner," which office he held by successive annual elections, until the Colonial Legislature in 1698 "provided by law a Commission for Justices." To this office he received the first appointment for Hartford County, and filled it by annual election for twelve successive years. In 1710 he was appointed a "Justice of the Quorum," an office akin to the County Court.

In the early days of the century [1705-7] he was prominently identified with the discovery and development of the rich copper mines at Copper Hill [now Grauby]; he manufactured tar from his "pine plains"; and in 1705 received the honorable appointment as one of "Sundry principall gentlemen in this and other governments to undertake the management of procuring masts and other navall stores for the supply of her fleet [Lady Queen Anne's], and other shipping of the nation."

of Hartford. He discovered a process for making steel, for which the Legislature of Conn. granted him a patent. His petition for the same is found upon the Windsor records. It was the first patent for this purpose applied for in this country. But such difficulties were laid in the way by the stringent laws of Great Britain regulating manufacturing in the Colonies, that it does not appear that the steel making was pursued to any extent.

Dr. Samuel Higley held prominent appointments in town affairs, and was the owner of quantities of valuable lands. He owned and worked one of the copper mines in Simsbury. From the product of this mine he not only devised but manufactured a currency — the "Higley coppers," which were in circulation until the Revolution, and are said to have been the first copper coin put into circulation to any extent in the country. Specimens, which are now very rare, may be found in the collection of the Conn. Historical Society, and in the U. S. Mint at Philadelphia. "It is alleged" says the Visitors' Guide to the Mint, "that the fineness of the quality of the copper made them sought after as an alloy of gold, and their use in this way may in part account for their present great scarcity." Crosby's Early Coins of America states that "the coin is said to have passed for two and sixpence (forty-two cents)." Another writer remarks: "He has certainly left evidence of having been an artist as well as a financier, for the creations of his genius and skill were for the times well executed."—[See Phelps' Hist. Norgate of Conn., pp. 19-21.]

In Burke's Annals, and also Fabled Geology of England, the name is almost uniformly spelt thus; in one place he spells it Holcombe, or Holcombe, and remarks in a note, "Holcombe is compounded of Holt, a Saxon word signifying woody, and combe, or, as it is written in Derenshire, combe, a valley between two hills." The Windsor Holcombes, coming from the W. of Eng., would naturally have retained the final e; and there are some families in the Southern States which so spell it. (New Jersey Holcombes are from John and Jacob, who came with William Penn abt. 1700. The name in England is pronounced Hol-combe, speaking of the Hol as we say it in the word "Holland." — W. F. H.)

An extensive Genealogy of the Holcombes is in preparation by Wm. FREDERICK HOLCOMBE, M.D., of 74 East 35th Street, New York city.

[* Died at Windsor, on the 10th inst., after a short and painful illness, James Hooker, Esq., in the 60th year of his age. He was a man whom nature had endowed with brilliant talents. He was easy and sociable in his manners; polite without affectation; the friend and benefactor of the poor, and ready at all times to plead the cause of the oppressed, and to redress the wrongs of the widow and fatherless. Noble and generous in his disposition, he disdained whatever favored of contracted parsimony. He was a firm and liberal supporter of religious institutions, and of whatever was conducive of public utility. To these he devoted much of his time without pecuniary reward, and cheerfully aided them by liberal donations. In his family he was an affectionate husband, and a kind and tender parent; and in all his professions a sincere friend. In his death the public are deprived of a great benefactor, the rich and poor mourn, but to his afflicted widow and eight children the loss is irreparable."—Conn. Courant, Dec. 18, 1805.] Child by first marriage; b. at W.; bp. from W. C. R.:

JAMES HOOKER STRONG, was appointed midshipman in the U. S. Navy in 1829. By regular course of promotion he became a commander in 1861, and as such he took an active part in the late war. At the Battle of Mobile Bay, August 5, 1864, he commanded the steam sloop of war Mononopeloba, and after passing the forts, while the fleet was steaming up the bay, seeing the rebel ram Tennessee approaching to attack the flagship H. Ohio, Commander Strong turned his wooden ship out of the line, and, going at full speed, ran on the iron clad ram, striking her fairly and giving her a staggering blow, which, however, also crushed the Mononopeloba's stern and head. As his ship swung around, after striking the ram, he gave the iron-clad a broadside of eleven-inch solid shot from his guns, with, however, but little effect. Other ships, following his example, also attacked the ram in similar manner, while the guns of the ram were doing great execution among the fleet. Having gained a sufficient distance for effective work, Commander Strong again turned his stern toward the enemy, and skillfully working his way among the surrounding ships, ran her into the ram under a third head of steam. He had again turned his badly battered ship, and was about to run into the iron-clad ram a third time, when her flag was hauled down, and she surrendered to the fleet, disabled and almost destroyed by the tremendous assaults which she had received.

HOOPER, Lucinda, m. Harvey Partridge of Randolph, Vt., 18 Jan., 1796. — W. C. R.

HOPEWELL, Thomas, "the Indian," the only Indian to whom land is rec. in W. His first purchase, 1657, was on the road W. from Palizado, cor. Hosford's Lane; this was "returned" 1662. He then bought a lot opp. John Rockwell's; this was returned again. And still later another lot was "returned again." July 19, 1670, he sold to Samuel Forward his lot containing 132 r. lying N. of highway which ran N. of Samuel Gibb's ho. lot, bdg. W. on the continuation of Backer Row highway, there 9 $\frac{1}{4}$  r. wide, it ext. E. 17r., 5r. beyond the angle in the Sandy Hill road. On this lot Hopewell had "a frame for a house on it, set up by him, and a shelter of boards by it, in which he lives." This Indian appears to have been an acknowledged resident of the town, and one of their poor. There appears in expenses of Town, 1668, five loads of "wood to Hopewell." Oct., 1670, he petitioned the Gen. Ct. for a confirmation of his title to some lands given him near Fairfield. He d. 17 Aug., 1683; had a dau. Sarah, b. 31 July, 1658.

WILL OF JOHN HOSKINS.

I, John Hoskins, of Wynsor doe make this my last will and testament, as followth; Item, I give unto the Church three pounds, to bee distributed by the Deacons unto the poore, to be paid in wheat or pease, as we are able. Concerning my man servant, Samuel Rockwell, my desire is that hee should serve in my house one quarter of a yeare after his covenant is out, which hee hath formerly made; and in case he is willing so to doe, my will is that at the end of his service hee shall have six pounds of mee, as we are able to pay it; but in case hee is not willing, then my will is that hee shall have foure pounds, when he hath completed his term of service already covenanted. Some persons owe me some small sums of corne wch I shall leave to the disposing of my wife and my some. Five bushells of Indian corne and seven pecks of pease is due mee from Robert Winchell and Thomas Hollcomb owes mee seven bushells of pease; and Samuel Gaybord owes mee two bushells of pease and eight shillings or thereabouts of an old reckoning; and Abraham Randall owes mee foure shillings. And all the rest of my goods, moveable or immoveable, cattell, howses and lands, and anything growing thereon, I leave to my wife and my some Thomas assuing them to receive my debt and also to make payment of these things for-named, or any other engagement of mine. In witness whereof I have herento put my hand, this first of May, 1648.
